IOWA G. O. P.'S 23 DELEGATES UNINSTRUCTED

Willkieites Lose in Convention Fight.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., March 31.—Iowa's Republican state convention today elected an unpledged, uninstructed delegation of 23 to the national convention at Chicago June 26. Supporters of Wendell Willkie after a battle that lasted most of last night were defeated in an effort to get a leading Willkie adherent elected as one of the seven delegates at large. Of the 23, only two are regarded as committed to Willkie.

Party leaders months ago adopted a policy of doing nothing which might embarrass Harrison Spangler, G. O. P. national chairman, who in that capacity has to be neutral. Discussions on the convention floor were devoid of mention of any Presidential candidates, pro or con, and a no-instructions resolution was adopted.

Hold None Indispensable.

"The Republican party has many men qualified for the Presidency and does not believe in the indispensable man idea," this resolution said. This was interpreted as a dig at Willkie, who in his Wisconsin speeches has been declaring that unless he is nominated the Republican party has small chance of winning. Of the 16 district delegates an Associated Press poll showed 9 with no avowed preference, 2 for Willkie, 1 for Dewey, and the rest not contacted. Friends of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York tonight said the majority of the delegates favor Dewey as first choice and that those who were noncommittal or not canvassed in the poll were friendly to the New Yorker. Dewey has been the most talked of nomination possibility in the hotel gossip among the convention delegates.

The general opinion, except in the Willkie camp, is that of the 23 delegates, Willkie has no more than two or perhaps three delegates gained from the series of battles in the district caucuses. The Willkie men claim eight are inclined to their candidate altho not committed, but this is hotly disputed.

Nominating Committee Fight.

The outstanding fight of the convention was in the committee on nominations, which picked the seven delegates at large. In this the Willkieites were stood on their heads.

At the head of the Willkie group in Iowa are the Cowles brothers, members of an old and powerful newspaper family. Gardner [Mike] Cowles runs the Des Moines Register and Tribune company and is president of Look magazine. His brother, John, runs the Minneapolis Star-Journal and Tribune. Both are pals of Willkie. John went with Willkie on his trip to Britain in 1941. Gardner [Mike] accompanied Willkie on his world trip. Gardner Cowles some months back evinced ambition to be a national delegate from the Des Moines district, but barriers popped up and he repressed this avowed desire, and he is not a delegate. Last night the Willkie forces sought to get control of the nominating committee which picked the delegates at large.

Relative of Cowles Family.

Mark G. Thornburg, former secretary of agriculture, was the Willkie-Cowles candidate for a place among the big seven. This caused a prolonged battle. Thornburg is a relative of the Cowles family and is one of the original Willkie men. In 1942 he was a candidate for senator in the Republican primaries, with the blessing of the Wall street barefooter, but was defeated by Sen. Wilson. When the controversy came to a vote today Thornburg was beaten for delegate at large by Arthur Coburn of Cherokee, by a 6 to 2 vote. Coburn is rated as friendly to Dewey. This battle, which took place in the committee room, did

Tax Opponent Branded Nazi Agent's Lover

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 31.—Miss Vivien Kellems, Westport, Conn., business woman, who caused a sensation last fall by urging an income tax strike, was named on the house floor today by Rep. Coffee [D., Wash.] as "the lover of a Nazi spy."

Rep. John M. Coffee.

To support his charge, Coffee read excerpts from what he said were love letters written by Miss Kellems to Count Frederick Karl von Zedlitz of Buenos Aires, Argentina, who is on the "British black list No. 1760 as a well known Nazi agent and reportedly the brother of a former chief of staff of the Nazi army in Russia."

Miss Kellems' Connecticut plant manufactures signal corps equipment.

[Miss Kellems who arrived in Toronto, Ont., last night said she had no comment to make on Rep. Coffee's charges. "I have absolutely nothing to say," she declared. "I will make a complete statement tomorrow."]

To the obvious disappointment of house members, Coffee said the rules of etiquet prevented him from reading the more impassioned portions of the missives. He refused to disclose how he obtained the correspondence.

Brands Her "Menace."

"I say Vivien Kellems is a menace to the American war effort, in constant contact with our hated Nazi enemies," he told the house. "She is the lover of a Hitler fifth column spy in Argentina by her own statements and she is now, in Connecticut, engaged in work of a highly restricted and confidential nature for the armed forces and has in her desk blueprints, drawings, and specifications of inestimable value to the enemy.

"It is high time for the department of justice to put an end to this incredible conspiracy. Under the espionage act and the sedition laws of the United States her reprehensible conduct justifies prosecution. She has shown an intent to incite action hostile to our government. Shall she be vouchsafed immunity because she happens to be a member of the feminine sex?"

In a letter dated Dec. 28, 1943, Miss Kellems addressed Von Zedlitz as "my darling boy," Coffee said, and acknowledged an affectionate cablegram from him.

Marriage Plans Mentioned.

In another letter written last October, according to Coffee, she referred to marriage plans.

"She wrote him," continued Coffee, "that she had been to an astrologist who told her she would 'play a part not only in national affairs, but also in international affairs.' Shades of Adolf Hitler! She concluded with the remark, 'How could that be if I am not married to you?' In her own words, she has every intention of marrying him.

HERO OF 'GHOST ARMY' RAID ON JAPS IN JUNGLE

LONDON, March 31 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Orde Charles Wingate, the adventurous and spectacular leader of allied jungle fighters in Burma, was killed recently in a plane crash, it was announced today.

The war office said Wingate was killed in Burma on March 24, but gave no other details of how death overtook the 41 year old British soldier who early last year led a "ghost army" on a four months expedition deep inside Japanese lines in Burma.

A relative of the late T. E. Lawrence, the famed "Lawrence of Arabia," and a nephew of Reginald Wingate, who was associated with Lawrence, Orde Wingate was called "the new Lawrence," "the man of legends," and "a Cromwellian captain" as a result of his exploit.

Obtained Vital Information.

His force covered more than 1,000 miles thru the deepest Burma jungles, fought countless skirmishes with enemy patrols and finally returned to India, after suffering great hardship, with vital information for the allied command.

Bobbing up everywhere to the consternation of the Japanese, Wingate's raiders destroyed 100 miles of railway at 70 places along the Irrawaddy river from Mandalay to Myitkyina, and finally came out of the bush after eating their own mules and subsisting for weeks on supplies dropped by plane.

A strict believer in the unorthodox, Wingate hammered at the theory that allied troops—British storekeepers as well as colonials—could be quickly conditioned to fight in the jungle better than the Japanese.

Fathered Commando Force.

His recommendations were reported to have played a part in the strategy decisions reached at the Cairo conference of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek last December, and the decision at the earlier Quebec conference of the British and American leaders to organize an air Commando force in India.

This force of British and Indians was suddenly set down near Myitkyina, 150 miles behind the Japanese lines, by glider on March 8.

In a dispatch received from New Delhi March 26—two days after his death—Wingate was quoted as saying the "first stage of the air borne operation was completely successful. Everything we set out to do has been done."

Defeated Arabs in 1936.

A holder of the triple distinguished service order, Wingate first won recognition as a brilliant leader of guerrilla fighters in 1936 when he built British and Palestinian Jews into an unorthodox band that beat marauding Arabs at their own type of night fighting and broke up a threat to the Haifa-Mosul pipeline.

Later, in Ethiopia he led 3,000 Sudanese and Ethiopian warriors against the Italians and captured or destroyed 40,000 of them.

His romance was as unorthodox as his warfare. His wife-to-be was 15 and he was 30 when they met aboard a ship bringing him back from Libyan explorations. She said last year that "I marched up to him and said, 'You're the man I'm going to marry.' We both felt the same way about it."

She returned to school but left it two years later to marry him.

Cellist Strays to Play Rippling Rhythm Version

Terre Haute, Ind., March 31 (AP).—As Fabian Sevitzky, director of the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra, raised his baton for the first number of concert here he noticed that a cellist was missing. There was a hurried search and it was found that en route to the concert hall the musician had taken a wrong turn and had plunged, full dress, and with his cello, into a swimming pool.

Hawaii Judge Tells Army to Free Prisoner

HONOLULU, T. H., March 31 (AP). Federal Judge Delbert E. Metzger today ordered the release of Lloyd C. Duncan, 25, on a writ of habeas corpus despite affidavits by commanding naval and army officers of the Central Pacific that he should be held under martial law. The commanders had maintained that martial law still is required because of the "imminent danger of invasion" of Hawaii.

Judge Delbert E. Metzger.

The court directed Duncan to post $500 bond. It also set next Wednesday for trial on the issue of whether the navy yard worker from Sheridan, Wyo., has been held illegally by military authorities. Duncan is under a six months sentence by a provost court for assaulting two marine sentries.

May Settle Issue by Appeal.

In next Wednesday's hearing the lengthy dispute over continuation of martial law in Hawaii may be joined into a clearcut issue which may be conclusively settled by appeal.

Edward J. Ennis, special assistant to the United States attorney, asked that the writ be denied. He contended that martial law prevails with the writ of habeas corpus suspended. He cited affidavits filed by Adm. Nimitz and Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., declaring Hawaii was still in imminent danger of Japanese invasion and martial law was required for public safety.

In announcing his decision Judge Metzger said: "I can conceive that a state of martial law can exist without the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus. This court has so held and the court has seen nothing since to convince the court that it was in error."

Attorney's Statement.

Garner Anthony, former attorney general for Hawaii and now counsel for Duncan, had told the court: "I do not comprehend how the government can feel that by simply filing affidavits by an admiral and a general that a judge cannot look any further into the facts which every one here has full knowledge—the fact, namely, of the absence of imminent danger of invasion of these islands."

Nimitz and Richardson did not amplify their statement about the continued danger of invasion, which they said had been imminent ever since the Pearl Harbor attack of Dec. 7, 1941. They argued that the conviction and sentencing of Duncan "were and are necessary for the prosecution in the territory of Hawaii by the United States of the war against the empire of Japan."

35,183 Alien Japs.

The government quoted army and navy authorities as saying that of the territory's total population of 485,000, approximately 35,183 are Japanese aliens and approximately 124,351 are American citizens of Japanese ancestry. Of the latter group, 67,675 are dual citizens of the United States and Japan.

The government also said that certain Japanese aliens and citizens of Japanese ancestry "are known by intelligence agencies of the United States . . . to be loyal to the empire of Japan and disloyal to the United States."

It further declared that some of these are interned in the territory and that such internment "is necessary for the prosecution of the war" in the theater of which Hawaii is a part.

ITALIANS TO GET SUGAR AND MEAT IN APRIL RATIONS

NAPLES, March 31 (AP).—Allied authorities announced last night that for the first time since southern Italy was liberated food rations for Italians in April will include sugar as well as canned meats and vegetables.

The sugar allotment was placed at 250 grams per person, a little more than half a pound for the month.

The rations also include a can of United States army C rations—combination ground meat and vegetables—and two cans of meat per person. Bread, olive oil, beans, and soap are other items on the ration list.

Parade Rest? For Arnold It's Arrested

A number of bartenders and their clients in Aurora and vicinity breathed easier last night when they heard that Pvt. Harry Carlton Arnold was lodged in the city jail, and that a detachment of soldiers was being sent from Camp Ellis, at Macomb, to claim him.

The police blotter says that Pvt. Arnold, who is 29 and who lived in Johnson, R. I., in peace time, is a menace to the peace and calm of the community. Those who have met the private in his meanderings this week say this is a gross understatement.

Enter the Lone Musketeer!

Pvt. Arnold first appeared in the Aurora area Tuesday and he attracted immediate attention. On one shoulder he carried his army rifle. Over the other shoulder was an ammunition belt fully loaded. Adults turned to watch him and boys fell in behind the private, who appeared to be doing parade duty all by himself. He lost his juvenile admirers at the first tavern he saw, but inside he gained a new, altho apprehensive, group of observers.

"Matter of regulations," explained the private. "The army's very strict about regulations."

Alcohol Dissolves Amiability.

But as the soldier stood at the bar too long he frequently lost his amiable mood, gestured with the rifle, and sometimes asked other patrons whether they'd like him to "let a little daylight" thru them. Police locked up Pvt. Arnold a couple of times, and finally canvassed the army camps to see if one had missed him.

Their quest ended at Camp Ellis, where Capt. I. D. Claxton said the private was one of his men and that he was a little overdue on an official errand. The errand? To go to Camp Grant and bring back, under guard, a fellow soldier.

Find Lonergan Guilty in Wife Slaying Case

New York, March 31 (AP).—Wayne Lonergan, 26, was convicted of murder in the second degree tonight in the slaying of his heiress wife, Patricia, 22, last Oct. 24. The verdict carried with it a prison term of from 20 years to life.

The all-male jury returned its finding at 10:23 p. m., after being out since 12:45 p. m. today. Judge James Garrett Wallace fixed April 17 for sentencing.

The stolid poise with which Lonergan had conducted himself since the beginning of the trial remained with him as the decision of the jury was read. He stood with his head slightly bowed, bit his lips, and blinked as the verdict was read.

Confession Key to Case.

The trial turned the spotlight on high life in cafe society, but the prosecution based its case chiefly on Lonergan's purported confession.

In it he was quoted as saying that he battered and choked his wife to death as she lay unclothed on her mahogany and bronze bed after both had been on gay rounds of night clubs—but not together.

He said in the statement that he and his wife quarreled violently, accusing one another of unfaithfulness, and that he struck her with an antique candle holder when she said she never would permit him to see their baby son again.

The prosecution contended, however, that Lonergan killed her with premeditation after being cut off from her money when they became estranged.

Defense Attacks Confession.

The defense directed its chief attack at the purported confession, with Defense Atty. Edward V. Broderick contending it was obtained under duress.

The trial began March 20 and the jury was chosen in two days from a special panel of 300 business executives. Lonergan was not called to the witness stand.

Probably the most dramatic testimony was that of Annaliese Shonberg, a children's nurse employed in the apartment over Mrs. Lonergan's, who told of hearing screams from the pretty brunette's bedroom and of going to the door with her hand upraised to knock, only to "think better of it" and walk away.

Miss Ruth Forster, a florist, testified she saw Lonergan walking toward the East river two hours later with a duffle bag—a bag that the state contended held a uniform stained with blood. Lonergan's statement said he threw it into the river. It never was produced.

Borrowed Clothes.

John Harjes, scion of a banking family, identified a coat and slacks Lonergan borrowed from his wardrobe. He also identified a note Lonergan had left, which said he lost his uniform owing to "mistaken trust."

This was a reference to Lonergan's alibi—that the uniform was stolen by a soldier whom he had invited to the Harjes apartment.

The defense called only three witnesses, an arresting officer, the Lonergan family physician, and Mario-Enzo Gabellini, an interior decorator who had escorted Mrs. Lonergan to dinner and the Stork club the night before she was slain.

CHINA BELIEVES REDS NEVER WILL JOIN PACIFIC WAR

CHUNGKING, China, March 31 (AP).—The new Russian-Japanese agreements which forced Japan to surrender coal and oil concessions on Sakhalin Island and renewed the fishing pact between the two countries generally were taken here to imply that Russia will remain neutral in the Pacific war after Germany's defeat.

The developments also were regarded as explaining why Japan has found herself in a position to withdraw troops from Manchukuo.

The new agreements were received with some disappointment in Chungking. Hopes of the Chinese of shortening the war against Japan have been based partly on the theory that Russia, after Germany's defeat, would enter the Pacific conflict and hasten Japan's collapse.

ASSERTS ACTOR SAID HE WOULD BLACKEN NAME

Testimony Ended in Mann Act Trial.

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 31.—Charlie Chaplin's trial for alleged violations of the Mann act came to a sudden close today when both sides rested. Closing arguments will be heard Monday and the case will go to the jury Tuesday.

The government and defense rested in late afternoon after a day of high wire tension with the ex-comedian nervous but defiant on cross-examination and his discarded mistress, auburn haired Joan Berry, a frightened rebuttal witness. She was recalled by United States Atty. Charles H. Carr to answer only one question. Her answer was a whispered: "Yes."

Carr's final question dealt with a conversation Miss Berry and Chaplin had beside the swimming pool at his Beverly Hills mansion in mid-June, 1943. Both sides admit a conversation took place, but Chaplin contends that in it Miss Berry tried to mulct $150,000 from him for her, her mother, and her then unborn child.

New York Suggested.

"I will ask you if this conversation did not take place," Carr began.

"Did you not refer to your unborn baby and say: 'What are we going to do about it?'

"And he said: 'I suggest you go to New York and have it.'

"And you said: 'Charles, why can't you marry me?'

"And he said: 'I'm not marrying any one. If you make this matter public, Joan, I'll spend my entire fortune fighting it and, if necessary, blacken your name, and I will not be any issue at all.'

"Did that conversation take place?"

"Yes," came her whisper.

It might have made more of a stir in Judge J. F. T. O'Connor's packed court room had not Chaplin already denied it on cross-examination just as, four days ago, Miss Berry denied Defense Atty. Jerry Giesler's insinuation that she tried to blackmail $150,000 from Chaplin.

Not Too Effective.

Certainly Chaplin did not help his cause too much today. His emotionalism, his convulsed features, his tragic King Lear sorrow at a frustrated and besmirched faith [his own], the casual manner in which he threw all the blame for intimacy and associating upon a young girl—these were not too effective.

He told the jury freely of making the girl his mistress, of taking her yachting, motoring, into his home many nights a week, and yet not once, he said, did he tell her he loved her. Nor, he insisted again and again, not once did he telephone her. She loved him, he said. She telephoned him.

"I hate telephones," he shrilled in petulant explanation. This was one of many insights into that unknown Chaplin who for so many years has shrouded himself in aloof mystery.

He Was "So Upset."

Again and again he explained his actions by saying, "I was so upset. I was so disturbed. I . . . ." Once he observed with what seemed pride that "sex is not very important in my life." Once when he answered a question before it had been concluded he apologized with a sweet smile and the explanation: "It's just my eagerness!" The latter, however, was on direct examination. Later his eagerness palpably lagged.

Mr. Chaplin's most extraordinary admission of the day, made on cross-examination, concerned the cross he has borne since January, 1942. He did not make it particularly clear, but he said he had been suffering ever since.

That cross, one inferred, is Joan Berry.

It came about like this: She appeared at his home one day with a nurse after, he said, an absence of three or four months. He told this swiftly, apparently forgetting that he had just admitted she had been in his home on Christmas day, 1941. She told him she had had an operation.

"I believed her," he told the jury, tears in his eyes. His voice trembling. "I was suddenly confronted with this and that's why I have been suffering ever since. . . . That's why she's been doing as she likes ever since—— "

Prosecutor Objects.

"Now," Prosecutor Carr interrupted. "I object to that 'doing as she likes.' "

Chaplin abjectly deleted it, but just what it was with which he was confronted he never said. In fact, he didn't mention any of it until it was drawn from him by Carr. He revealed himself, of course, as a most delicate individual, one quite reluctant to call a girl a drunk until his own attorney forced it out of him. He phrased it more subtly with "acting strangely. . . inarticulate . . ." The girl in question was Miss Berry.

Chaplin began the day in a drowsy, tolerant mood, one elbow on the judge's bench supporting his head. He seemed a man at ease with the world, tolerant of its frailties, and just a little sleepy. As he talked under the pleasant examination of his attorney, he was the brooding genius. Absent-minded, vague about details, gifted with a godlike detestation of detail.

A Blanket Denial.

Giesler first led him to the end of his controversial New York stay in October, 1942. He issued a blanket denial to every statement made by Joan Berry.

Then Giesler brought him back to California and the gun episode on Dec. 23.

Q.—Did you tell her at that time you were going to give her $25 a week, that she was far too extravagant, that she had fascist ideas?

A.—I did not.

Q.—On the early morning of Dec. 31, did you see Joan Berry?

A.—I did.

Q.—Will you kindly relate to the jury what happened.

Chaplin leaned toward the jury. As he talked, his well-kept face gradually disintegrated, becoming flushed, wrinkled, one flabby fold of flesh after another:

Hears Bells Ringing.

"I know I was home. I believe I was playing solitaire in my front room. I suddenly heard bells ringing in my kitchen. I went to the door. I opened the door. I saw lying on the mat outside Miss Joan Berry . . ." his voice drifted away into sorrowful reflection.

"Just go ahead," Giesler soothed him.

"I looked at her. I went to the kitchen. I rang all the bells to see if any one was up. I knew we were going to have a lot of trouble."

Prosecutor Carr was on his feet. "I move to strike that, your honor!"

The judge leaned toward the defendant. He told him his conclusions were improper testimony.

"I see," Chaplin said contritely. "I beg your pardon. Well, I wanted to see if I could find some help. I shouted and nobody paid any attention to me. I wanted help because on the night previous or two or three nights before that she had come up with a gun."

He said the only man he could rouse was a new second man, one he didn't know well, so he went back to the door alone, the girl still lay there.

Gets Her Into Car.

"I aroused her. I said: 'What do you want?' She said: 'I'm destitute.' I said: 'I don't care what you are. You can't stay here!' She said: 'I haven't any car.' I said: 'I'll drive you.'

"So eventually I got her to the car. She said, 'Drive me to Olympic boulevard.' She said: 'Never mind that. I'm destitute. I'll sleep at the police station.' I said: 'Very well, you'll sleep at the police station.' "

"Did you enter the—"

"She did not" Chaplin replied before Giesler could finish.

The judge leaned over. "Mr. Chaplin, you should wait until your counsel finishes the question."

"I beg your pardon," Chaplin said quickly, shaking his hands in vexation, and smiling at the judge. "It's just my eagerness!"

"Repeat the question, Mr. Giesler," the judge requested.

Q.—Did she enter the house at all?

A.—She did not.

He Was Excited.

Q.—How long after the ringing of the bell did you go out?

A.—It wasn't very long because I was very excited. I really couldn't determine the time.

Q.—Is that the last time you saw her in 1942? A.—Yes.

[Miss Berry testified she had an act of intimacy with Chaplin that morning.]

Under Giesler's questioning Chaplin reaffirmed his contention that Miss Berry tried to blackmail him for $150,000 in a conversation at his home in June, 1943, and again he denied there was any immoral intent in his mind when he ordered tickets to New York purchased for Miss Berry and her mother.

Carr started on the night Chaplin met Joan, an introduction arranged by Tim Durant. Chaplin said they went to Perino's for dinner.

Q.—Then you and Miss Berry drove to and from the beach several times?

A.—That isn't true. No, we didn't.

Q.—Where did you go?

A.—We . . . uh . . . I think we drove to her home.

Q.—What did you do?

A.—We talked a great deal in the car.

Q.—You saw her the next day?

A.—No, two or three days later.

Q.—You had Mr. Durant get in touch with her again?

A.—I did not.

Q.—You called her?

A.—No. I did not.

Q.—She called you?

A.—No, she did not.

Q. [in exasperation]—Well, how did you get together?

A.—I think we met at Mr. Durant's home.

Q.—Mr. Durant left you and Miss Berry alone for quite some time that evening, didn't he?

A.—I think so.

Q.—You had a long conversation with her?

A.—I think so.

Q.—At that time you told her you were more or less enchanted by her?

A.—No [with asperity], I did nothing of the kind.

Q.—You told her she was a very pretty girl and very interesting?

A. [curtly]—I told her she was interesting. I . . . just a moment, I may have said something about her having personality.

Chaplin admitted they had dinner alone, but he couldn't recall where. Then a few days later:

Q.—When?

A. [petulantly]—Now, this is a long time ago, you are pinning me down to dates, and I cannot remember.

Q.—How soon did you see her again?

A.—I don't know, a day or two.

Q.—Do you remember telling her she was a very pretty girl and that particular night trying to kiss her?

A. [with a smile]—O, I think I kissed her before that!

The courtroom rang with laughter. Judge O'Connor leaned forward: "This is a court of justice, not a place of amusement."

Q.—How long were you together that evening?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—You took her home then?

A.—Very soon . . . I think it is the time you allude to . . . I'm trying to catch the entire scene.

He caught it at last and well. His voice was puzzled as he related it.

"She came to my house and said she was going to New York to marry some one. And I said I thought it was a very good idea. She said: 'O, don't send me back to New York!' I said: 'My dear girl, I hardly know you. And," to the jury, "I thought it very strange. O," shaking his head at the words "I'm sorry! I couldn't understand this conversation so very soon after I met her."

Q.—Had you signed a contract at that time?

A.—No.

He admitted he took her to Santa Barbara. He spoke of it dreamily. He admitted they talked on the way. He spoke of her "pleasant nature." He spoke of a contract.

Q.—Did you tell her you were in love with her?

A.—No.

He admitted he took her on a yachting trip and that she sometimes—"not often"—spent the night at his home. "Sporadically," he amended it.

Reading of Shakespeare.

Q.—About July 1, you began to tell her you were in love with her?

A.—Not at any time!

Q.—Did she tell you she was in love with you?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you read Shakespeare to her at your house?

A.—Probably.

Q.—And quite often she would spend the night?

A.—No.

Q.—Well, how often?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—And that relationship existed up to December, 1941?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And up to that time you never told her you were in love with her?

A.—No, no. I never really,—No!

Q.—Do you recall calling her hunchy?

A.—Yes, yes. A term of endearment.

Q.—When did you stop calling her hunchy?

A.—I don't know.

No Memory for Dates.

Carr now asked him when he purchased "Shadow and Substance," the play in which he said he planned to star Joan. Chaplin said he didn't know. "I haven't a memory for dates," he shouted as the Carr certainly should have known it by that time. "The studio records will show."

Q.—You had Miss Berry read part of it at your home on Christmas day?

A.—I'm not sure. These are all minor incidents, during the course of three years.

A.—No.

Q.—You didn't start your first draft of it until January, 1942?

A.—No.

Q.—How often was she up to your house at that time?

A.—I don't remember. She was absent quite a bit.

A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever call her?

A. [exasperated]—I never call any one. I hate telephones!

Always in Operation.

On direct testimony Chaplin had referred to his losses in connection with his lost star [Joan] as $500,000. Carr now made him admit he had not spent that on "Shadow and Substance," that the sum was hypothetical and referred to the amount that would be risked in making the picture—if ever it were made. He admitted his studio was always in operation.

A. [a long pause]—No, I was not.

Q.—During July, 1942?

A.—No.

Q.—June, 1942?

A.—No.

Q.—May, 1942?

A.—I haven't any fixed date, but it was quite a long, long time.

Q.—Did you see her in May, 1942?

A.—I don't recall.

Q.—In April?

A.—Maybe.

Q.—In February?

A.—I think all that ceased when—after I bought "Shadow and Substance."

Q.—"When" you purchased it?

A. [frowning]—Not when. Around that time.

Q.—That was in January?

A.—Might have been.

Four or Five Days in House.

Q.—But she spent four or five days in your house at that time?

A. [firmly]—She never spent four or five days at my home!

Q.—But you recall she came home from a sanitarium and a Dr. Tweedy visited her there?

Q.—A nurse?

A.—No.

Now, flustered, Chaplin turned to the judge with a swift: "May I explain?" The judge nodded.

"She had been away two or three months. Suddenly she phoned my house and said she was at a certain address. I didn't pay any attention to it at that time. I sent my chauffeur, my Japanese chauffeur. She turned up with a nurse. She took me to one side and told me she had had an operation and—"tears filled his eyes. "—and I believed it . . . and I was suddenly confronted with the nurse, and that was the first I knew of it.

"That's what took place," he said quickly. "That's why I have been suffering ever since! That's why she has been doing what she has ever since!"

Calls Her a "Poor Thing."

Prosecutor Carr went on:

Q.—Don't you recall you embraced her and said: 'You poor thing!'?

A.—Yes, when she told me.

Q.—Don't you recall that Dr. Tweedy visited your home?

A.—He did not.

A.—She was.

Carr now went back to September, 1942, right before the New York trip. When questioned, Chaplin denied he had arranged for Joan to have seats at his second front speech in New York, denied he telephoned her the morning after his speech to discuss it, denied he had rehearsed it on her in Los Angeles, denied he had vouchsafed her more than a smile at the Stork club in New York, and said their conversation in his suite at the Waldorf-Astoria was "just a cursory conversation" that lasted only 20 minutes.

Yesterday Chaplin stated that after his return to California Joan called him several times and that he then called her. Today he denied that he called her. "I never called her," he said. "I answered the phone."

Says Joan Intoxicated.

He admitted he and Joan quarreled at dinner at Romanoff's early in November, but denied it was because of Hans Ruesch, a film writer. He charged it was because Joan was intoxicated.

He denied seeing Joan at the Players, a restaurant, around Dec. 12, after which, she testified, she went to his home for an act of intimacy.

Q.—Did Miss Berry have a key to your home?

A.—Yes, [pointedly] she stole keys.

Q.—She stole four different keys?

A.—She must have done so.

The Gun Episode.

Carr then tried to trip Chaplin on the gun episode of Dec. 23.

Q.—Do you remember she said she came up to kill herself?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And you told her she should wait until in the morning?

A.—No, it is not right.

Q.—She accused you of talking endearingly to some one on the telephone?

A.—I don't know. I don't remember, as a matter of fact [with a sudden spurt of memory] I was.

Q.—She never let go of that gun the whole evening?

A.—She might have when my sons came in. I don't know.

Q.—How long was she in your bedroom?

A.—I don't know. I was so excited, so upset, so bewildered. It seemed hours, maybe two hours.

Q.—Do you recall saying having an affair under those circumstances was a new wrinkle?

A.—No, of course not.

"She was destitute and had no place to sleep," he volunteered suddenly. "That was her reason and motive for being there."

Q. You didn't call the police?

A. No.

Q. You had cars available to take Miss Berry away, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you have breakfast with her the next morning?

A. No, I had breakfast alone. Then I went up to see her. She was still asleep with the gun.

"Yes.'

"On Dec. 30, when you said you found her lying on your doormat, was she unconscious?"

"No, because she spoke to me at the door."

"What time was that?"

Running his fingers thru his hair until it looked like a ruffled gray crest: "I don't know. I didn't look at the clock. I was too excited."

"Didn't you drive her around Beverly hills while she argued that $25 was too little to pay for her hotel bill?"

"No," flatly. "That is not true."

A Flat Denial.

"And didn't you finally say, 'Well, here's a good place for you,' and point to the police station?"

This Chaplin flatly denied. He said he didn't even know where the police station was. He added quickly, "I didn't notice. I was very upset."

Carr now jumped to June, 1943. He asked Chaplin if he had a conversation at his swimming pool with Joan at that time. Chaplin said he had, that it lasted three or four hours.

"And did Joan not at this time," asked Carr, referring to her unborn baby, say: 'What are you going to do about it?'

"And you said: 'I suggest you go to New York and have it.'

"And she said: 'Charles, why don't you marry me?'

"And you said, 'I'm not marrying any one. Joan, if you make this matter public, I'll spend my entire fortune fighting it and if necessary blacken your name, and I will not be any issue at all.'

Says It with Indifference.

"Didn't that conversation take place, Mr. Chaplin?"

"No," Chaplin said indifferently. "That is not true."

On redirect examination by Defense Atty. Geisler, Chaplin examined his studio records and discovered that his final payment for film rights to "Shadow and Substance" was on March 28, 1942. He said he had been considering it two months.

On recross examination, Carr asked him if he could remember the last date on which he had sexual intercourse with Miss Berry.

Chaplin's answer was arrogant and lofty. "Sexual intercourse," he said disdainfully, "isn't very important in my life, Mr. Carr!"

Q. You don't remember the date?

A. No, I don't.

Q.—Can you approximate the date? A.—No, I cannot.

Q.—Why did you raise Miss Berry's salary from $75 a week to $100? A.—Because I thought she was worthy of it.

"That's all," Carr said, and the ex-comedian hopped down. His face sagged, his hair was rumpled. He looked tired and suddenly aged.

It was a bad day for Hitler, that day some years ago in the little town of St. Anna, Austria, when Joseph Reinholtz was born, and when, later the same month, the girl he was to marry was born in the same town. But they never met in St. Anna. They met after both came to the United States. Then they married and reared a family.

"Our prize family," said Mrs. M. Byrne, clerk of draft board No. 45, at 4752 Washington blvd., yesterday as she mailed notices to two of the sons, Louis, 27, of 1111 Balmoral av., and Joseph, 33, of 4850 Adams st., to report for physical examination. Both are married; Louis has a son, 4.

If they are inducted, they will join six other brothers already in the war. They are Jacob, 24, and John, 25, in the army, and Andrew, 20, Fred, 21, Charles, 29, and Frank, 31, in the navy.

ISN'T LOVE GRAND? LOUIS PLANNING TO GIVE IT REAL TEST

Louis Voyer.

Louis Voyer, 46, wasn't nervous yesterday when he faced Judge Cecil C. Smith in Felony court on a charge of cashing a check for $111.82 belonging to his landlord, W. H. Oestman, 2316 Monroe st. He said he was confident he could pay back the money.

"How will you get the money?" inquired Judge Smith.

"That's easy," Voyer replied, "I'll just call my intended wife in Bloomington, Ind. She will give the money. We're to be married this fall."

"How will you get the money to make the telephone call?" persisted the judge.

"I'll just reverse the charges," Voyer answered.

Army Paper Uses Chaplin Story After 2 Days' Lapse

LONDON, March 31 (AP).—The trial of Charles Chaplin received a two column-spread in the army newspaper Stars and Stripes today. The newspaper printed stories about the trial regularly until Tuesday and Wednesday, when the lack of them led to reports they had been banned.

STIMSON BACKS FASCIST PLANS OF NEW DEALERS

Ever Frustrated, He Still Searches for Glory.

(This is the second of a series of articles dealing with the Fascist characteristics and tendencies of men high in the New Deal administration.)

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 31.—Foremost in the ranks of the New Deal Fascists is a frustrated old man, Henry Lewis Stimson, who has been an actor in the most dramatic situations of the century without ever attaining the stature of a hero.

Secretary Stimson.

Now, as secretary of war at the age of 76, he is making a desperate bid for the dramatic role of his lifetime. He is in the van of the army of New Deal Constitution scuttlers, who are at war with the American mind. Fascist measures he has supported include:

1. An oversized army, far greater than can be shipped or maintained abroad. To attain this end he has championed drafting older men unfit for the rigors of the combat fields and the conscription of fathers for the first time in the nation's history.

Granting of Commissions.

2. Swollen officer lists. Stimson has supported the New Deal effort to build the good will of the army thru rapid promotions and wholesale granting of commissions.

3. Draft of men and women for any job in agriculture or industry to which New Dealers might wish to bind them in defiance of the expressed prohibition of the 13th amendment of the Constitution against slavery.

4. Commandeering of industry for war production to the exclusion of civilian needs and refusal to return plants to civilian production altho huge surpluses of war materials are piling up.

5. Seizure of steel and other metals and refusal to let any go for civilians' needs because it might take their minds off the war.

6. Strict censorship over military information to control the public mind. Under the Stimson regime preservation of national security has been misused to hide blundering. A definite policy of terrorizing the public has been adopted in an effort to keep the people from questioning the conduct of the war.

Howls for Fourth Term.

7. Propagandizing of the military. Stimson has tolerated the issuance of New Deal and communistic propaganda to the military, being one of the first to howl for the fourth term.

8. Participated in the New Deal smear campaign against those opposed to remaking the United States into a totalitarian state. Stimson accused Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] of coming "very near the line of subversive activities if not treason against the United States" before this country entered the war. The charge was made because Stimson sought to create the impression that Wheeler was promoting discontent by circulating postcards which contained quotations from the President and other national leaders arguing against sending American soldiers abroad.

9. Neglect of the war in the Pacific. Following the New Deal-Communist line, Stimson has consistently neglected the war in the Pacific. He has strained to conceal his own responsibility for Pearl Harbor and has participated in the exile of Gen. MacArthur, whom the New Deal mortally fears as a Republican Presidential possibility. Stimson was assailed in congress for intimating that some tortured and starved soldier prisoners taken by the Japs in the Philippines might not have fought as bravely as they should have.

Waste of Man Power.

In promoting the oversized army Stimson has refused to release men who have passed the age of 38 from the army. In his efforts to justify an army of more than 10 million men, Stimson has insisted that the home front will not be disturbed because increase of efficiency of remaining workers will improve the outputs of farm and factory.

In arguing for the oversized army, he hid the waste of man power by the war department. Millions of men under training for two years are still unfit for war. It was found that the troops which went into action in Africa and Italy were not adequately or properly trained.

In calling for the enactment of universal service legislation, Stimson told congress that soldiers at the battle fronts were demanding enactment of the law. He said, "There is a strong feeling of resentment and injustice among men of the armed forces over the home front." He failed to meet challenges to prove this assertion.

A District Attorney.

Stimson's bid for the center of the stage goes back to the turn of the century when, as federal district attorney in New York City, he won the title "trust buster" when the role was most popular. Nothing came of it.

In 1910 he was picked to run as Republican candidate for governor of New York by Theodore Roosevelt when Roosevelt was setting the stage for his third term bid. Stimson lost.

In 1911 he was secretary of war under Taft. He did not distinguish himself. In 1917 he went to France to gain command of an artillery regiment. He was promoted and sent home as the regiment went into battle.

In 1929 he became secretary of state in Herbert Hoover's cabinet. Again his service was without distinction. Along the line he served as chairman of the American delegation to the London naval conference in 1930 and chairman of the American delegation to the disarmament conference of 1932. No lasting good came out of either of these council tables.

Comes Out of Retirement.

In 1939 he came out of retirement as a fervent internationalist. He called for war, favoring every American aid from repairing allied ships to convoying munitions to the allies while this country was allegedly neutral.

In 1940 his ambition moved him to participate in the great political conspiracy of the third term campaign. He deserted his party along with Frank Knox to play an active part in an attempt to demoralize Republican opposition. Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter is credited with getting Stimson the appointment as secretary of war as a reward for his mouthing of interventionist speeches allegedly written by Frankfurter.

How well the coup succeeded is evidenced by the fact that the internationalists were able to seize the Republican nomination for Wendell Willkie. Willkie later acknowledged he put on a phony campaign against the third term by telling a congressional committee his charges against the administration were merely "campaign oratory."

Wall Street Lawyer.

Stimson went into the cabinet as the representative of Wall street, whose interests he guarded over long years as a Wall street lawyer. He also kept on good terms with the communists as part of his services to the international financiers.

When Charles Poletti, pal of the Reds, wound up on Jan. 1, 1943, his 29 days as governor of New York by setting a record for pardons of pinko criminals, Stimson offered Poletti a job. Poletti is a lieutenant colonel with AMG, military governmental agency for occupied countires, in Italy.

Once in the cabinet Stimson steadily beat the war drums while Mr. Roosevelt was campaigning on the "again and again and again" promise that American troops would not be sent abroad to foreign wars.

Stimson's appointment drew heavy fire in congress. He was labeled a handicap to the army and incompetent. It was suggested that he get out and yield his place to a more competent man. This suggestion was repeated when Mr. Roosevelt won the election and Stimson had served his part in the election conspiracy.

Pleas of Fellow Fascists.

Vanity, ambition, and the pleas of his fellow Fascists kept him from making the exit. Stimson went to work for war and the remaking of America along the pattern of the New Deal Eden.

In almost four years in office, Stimson has become the dupe of the New Dealers. And he has become despised by them no less than he is by the party he deserted.

Every day in every way he is working to keep his luxurious office in the fabulous Pentagon with its private dining room, private bath, private barber chair, kitchenet, emergency living quarters, and private elevators. If he stays long enough, he is certain he will get his hour on the stage, if all America has to goosestep to the theater.

Twin Kangaroo

[Acme Telephoto.]

Philadelphia, Pa., March 31 (AP).—Nonesuch, the kangaroo who ignored the code of his kind by being born a twin, found himself a celebrity today. Four newsreel companies sent crews to record his antics, and he posed in a new blue pouch, especially knitted by Mrs. Isabelle Kauffeld, the Philadelphia zoo photographer.

"He looks just darling," said Mrs. Kauffeld.

The other twin, named Sitting Pretty, remained under cover in its mother's pouch after muscling out Nonesuch yesterday. The sex of the strong-arm twin has not been determined.

He got his name from the fact that Roger Conant, curator of the zoo, declared after a survey two years ago that kangaroos never gave birth to twins.

WAR MATERIALS STILL TIED UP IN AFL TRUCK FIGHT

For five days 40 tons of vitally needed material consigned to Chicago area war plants has stood untouched on the loading platform of the Northwestern Transit company at 2800 S. Halsted st., because of a membership war between two rival unions.

Yesterday pickets strolled their beats in front of the platform under the watchful eyes of union officials nearby in parked limousines with C stickers on the windshields.

No one seemed to have any authority to do anything about the dispute. The army can't act because the material, altho urgently needed in war plants, does not bear government bills of lading.

Company Not Involved.

There is no labor dispute at the plant. There is no quarrel over wages, hours, or working conditions.

C. P. O'Connor, manager of the transit company, emphasized that the company is perfectly willing to deal with any recognized union, and has, in fact, contracts with both unions involved. There is nothing the company can do.

The rival unions are local 75 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters [AFL] and the Chicago Truck Drivers independent union 705.

The tieup occurred when agents of the IBT instructed the dockmen under their control to refuse to load any trucks driven by members of the independent union.

Violates No-Strike Pledge.

Both the truck drivers and the dockmen are employed under contract by the company, altho they are members of separate unions.

The tieup constitutes a direct violation of the spirit, if not the letter, of the no-strike pledge given by Dan Tobin, international president of the AFL teamsters and a New Deal stalwart.

Joseph T. Harrington, attorney for the independent union, said last night there is no legal action his group can take to end the tieup.

"We apparently have no rights," he said. "Under New Deal policies today there is no such thing as law. The anti-strike pledge apparently doesn't apply to Dan Tobin's brotherhood."

Army officials were summoned early in the week when dockmen refused to load freight consigned to either the army or navy. After a consultation with IBT officials, an agreement was reached to handle freight bearing government bills of lading.

Matter Up to ODT.

But a study of the nature of the cargoes held up evoked from an army official the assertion that some of it perhaps was more vital than their own supplies. But they were powerless to act in anything but a military capacity, explaining that the matter rested with the office of defense transportation.

Lt. George Barnes, head of the police labor detail, reported that picketing was orderly. That was slight consolation to the war plants whose production schedules are being held up.

Barnes said the material held on the dock consists of scrap aluminum, drums of special lubricating oils, truck radiators, and trailer parts.

Principal union officials behind the dispute are Bill Woods, business manager and business agent of the AFL Brotherhood local, and Steve Slahor, president, and Edward F. Regan, secretary-treasurer of the independent union. They were not available for comment last night. Also OPA officials had no comment on the C stickers on the union agents' picket cars.

MAJ. CHARLES SCHUCK OF CIVIL AIR PATROL INDUCTED AS PRIVATE

Maj. Charles Schuck.

Charles W. H. Schuck, a major in the civil air patrol as wing commander of the Illinois group, was notified yesterday he had passed his pre-induction examination and had been accepted as a private in the army. Maj. Schuck, 36, has been wing commander of the CAP for the last year and was one of the organizers of the state group in 1942. Maj. Schuck explained that his CAP title is distinct from army ranking. He said he hoped to be assigned to the army air forces because of his experience in the CAP. Maj. Schuck was placed in 1-A last Feb. 23. He resides with his wife, Frances, and two children in Springfield where he is engaged in the retail lumber business.

BRITISH REVEAL DETAILS OF NEW 40 MM. WEAPON

Washington, D. C., March 31 (AP).—The British army staff here and the war office in London disclosed details tonight of Britain's self-propelled 40 millimeter Bofors anti-aircraft gun, hitherto secret.

The present model of the gun has been mounted on a Morris chassis with road speeds up to 40 miles an hour and four-wheel drive, the announcement said. The gun is able to combat tanks as well as planes. It fires 2 pound shells at the rate of 120 a minute up to 9,000 feet altitude.

LANDON CHARGES F. D. R. SEEKS LIFE TERM IN OFFICE

Accuses Him of Running 'Hate Campaign.'

Topeka, Kas., March 31 [Special]—President Roosevelt has revealed in his fourth term campaign strategy his ruthless determination to use any means to establish himself in the White House for life, Alf M. Landon asserted here tonight.

"There is no surer way to help the enemy than for a commander in chief to stir up factional hate in the rear of his country's armies," said Landon, former Kansas governor and the Republican party's 1936 Presidential nominee.

Addressing the Republican state convention here, Landon, who is expected to head his state's 19 member delegation to the national convention in Chicago next June, pleaded for a Republican nominee who "can bring some order into the war effort and the peace to follow."

Charges Brazen Methods.

"In time of immediate national danger," he said, "the President should lead the way in setting the example of mutual political forbearance. Instead, he attacks the good faith and distorts the motives of the congress.

"The President reveals with the utmost nakedness, in his fourth term campaign strategy, both his secret antipathy for our system of government and his ruthless determination to use any means, regardless of the country's welfare, to establish himself in the White House for life.

"He has done that so brazenly, so contemptuously, and so ruthlessly that his own personally selected party leaders have revolted, one after another."

Drops New Deal Label.

The voters, Landon asserted, must either elect another President, abandon our system of government with its divided responsibility, or face a breakdown in our national administration.

"The President," he said, "has now abandoned the New Deal label. There is no longer any one to claim this doorstep baby, except Henry Wallace. The life term candidate clings to no lasting principles of government or truth. He changes with the shifting winds of public opinion. He is ready to alter his window dressing from day to day with the shifts of public taste, from the left to the right."

Landon said that in foreign affairs we are drifting into imperialism or isolationism or a vicious combination of both.

Lists 2 G. O. P. Needs.

Landon said that tho a minority party cannot make much of a record, the Republican leadership in congress is not passively waiting to drift into power. Instead, he declared, "we are boldly preparing to meet our responsibilities."

He said there are two essentials the Republican party must meet in order to justify the confidence of the American people in the coming election. First, the party must have a platform that is definite, unequivocal, courageous, and forward looking, and, second, it must have a trusted candidate.

"Our candidate," he said, "must be able to inspire trust at home and abroad in his ability to do teamwork with the congress. . . . And he must command overwhelming confidence in his determination and ability to end promptly the confusion of red tape bureau-made laws, burocratic control of business, farming, and labor, that are interfering with our war efforts."

MARCH DEPARTS LIKE LAMB, BUT IN WOLF'S GARB

March went out yesterday like a lamb—in wolf's clothing.

It had the greatest number of cloudy days on record for the month, Forecaster O. T. Lay reported. He said there were 23 cloudy days in the month and only three clear days—the remaining days being partly cloudy.

The forecaster said the average temperature for the month was 32.2 degrees, 2.3 degrees below normal for the month. Daily temperatures ranged from a spring high of 65 on March 24 to a low of 9 degrees on March 9.

The precipitation for the month totaled 4.51 inches, including 7.9 inches of snow. The rainfall for the month was the greatest since 1929. During April, Lay said, Chicagoans can hope for the coming of spring weather, with temperatures averaging above 40 degrees.

INCOME TAX FOE BRANDED LOVER OF GERMAN SPY

speaking program.' On Oct. 13, 1943, she signed a letter, 'all my love, sweetheart. Vivien.'

"She discussed an unidentified third person who had brought her a letter from the count, which she described as 'a masterful presentation of world conditions and I am delighted to have seen it.' Her speech urging business men not to pay income taxes followed shortly, and she has since made similar speeches in Bridgeport, Conn., Providence, R. I., Springfield, Mass., and Philadelphia."

"This is the woman," Coffee asserted, "who told the Rotary club of Philadelphia on Feb. 9 that 'we are but one step removed in this country from the firing squad and concentration camp.' She poses as a patriot while she has consistently played the Nazi game and is a tool of the Goebbels propaganda machine."

HER BROTHER REPLIES.

Westport, Conn., March 31 [Special].—"My sister, Vivien Kellems, knows Count Karl von Zedlitz," David L. Kellems, production engineer of the Kellems company, said today in the absence of his sister.

"I believe that Vivien met Von Zedlitz in Belgium, either thru business connections or mutual friends, back about 1935," Kellems said. "She has made many trips abroad, doing business with Germany as well as France and Belgium before the war, but had greater success in contacts with English houses.

"Rep. Coffee has attacked my sister before. I believe that Vivien once called him a 'lesser light' and he has been trying to get even ever since.

Enemy of New Deal.

"Some of those comments Coffee made today had already been made by Drew Pearson. They work hand in hand.

"It is quite obvious that a person is either a New Dealer, and you can quote me, or is a Nazi," Kellems continued. "And as far as I can see, there is no difference. Both are our enemies. Vivien is waging war on two fronts. Material to kill the Nazis, and words to kill the New Deal.

"Even if you know a German you are being judged a Nazi, apparently. My sister also knows some Chinese, but maybe they wouldn't consider that. And we had a Jap butler once, or haven't they found out about that yet?

"If my sister was a spy, the floor of the house would not be the place to expose her. The FBI would do that. And the FBI knows all the facts. Vivien has had many conferences with the State Department and the FBI on this matter. The papers which they are now talking about may have been in the hands of the state department."

FINDS HER MOTHER HANGED.

Mrs. Annie Hussey, 67, of 1257 S. Pulaski rd., was found hanged in her home yesterday. A daughter, Mrs. Catherine Molterno, discovered the body. She told police her mother had been despondent.

DEWEY PLEADS TO BE KEPT OUT OF OREGON POLL

Portland, Ore., March 31 [Special].—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York today insistently requested by telephone and telegraph that petitions to place his name on the Oregon Republican primary ballot May 19 as a candidate for President be withdrawn.

Dewey told Frank S. Senn, Portland, chairman of a volunteer Dewey-for-President group, that he is not a candidate, and that a Dewey-Willkie ballot fight in Oregon would only create disunity in the party.

Senn said that his organization had not reached a decision on Dewey's request.

To get Dewey's name on the Oregon ballot 1,000 certified signatures must be on file by 5 p. m., Tuesday, April 4. Under the Oregon primary law it is not necessary to have a candidate's consent to put him in the race by petition. Candidates also may file without petitions by payment of $100 fee.

Wendell Willkie entered his name last week. Fifteen delegates to the Chicago national convention are to be elected.

ARMY REJECTS ACCARDO, FREED IN GAMING CASE

Tony Accardo, freed two weeks ago when a gambling conspiracy charge against him was nolle prossed because he was about to be inducted into the army, was rejected at the army induction station, 166 W. Van Buren st., yesterday.

Lt. Col. C. C. Curtis Jr., commanding officer at the station, said he was forbidden by regulations to make public the ground for the rejection.

The nolle prossed order entered in Accardo's case amounts to a complete dismissal of the charge against him, attorneys at the Criminal Courts building said.

HIGHER-UPS HALT DRAFT OF ADAMS, NOW AN OWI AID

Champaign, Ill., March 31 [Special].—The Champaign-Urbana draft board was ordered today to postpone the induction of Homer Matt Adams, former president of the Young Democrats organization, pursuant to orders from Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service.

Col. Paul G. Armstrong, state selective service director, requested the local board to send Adams' file to Springfield for transmission to Hershey. The action was taken after the Champaign-Urbana board had ordered Adams to report by April 1 or be declared delinquent.

Called a Boondoggler.

Members of the board had expressed official opinion that Adams should quit boondoggling with the office of war information and come home and be inducted along with his neighbors. One hundred fifty men were ordered by the board for pre-induction examination this week and 40 others were accepted.

"I have no feeling about Adams," said D. C. Dodds, member of the local board, "but the procedure is bad. It has made selective service in this community a joke."

It was pointed out locally that the draft board is supposed to have the final word in cases like Adams'. He was granted one six month deferment to leave the country on special duty for the OWI.

Second Request Denied.

A second request was denied on Dec. 3, 1943. By this time the draft board had begun taking fathers and decided that Adams, a father, could be spared by OWI for military service. This ruling was upheld by the appeal board.

One mysterious aspect of the case, which bothered local draft board members, was where Adams finally got permission to go abroad without his board's sanction. Further mystery was injected when Adams' wife told the board in a letter that he has no military commission.

Selective service officials refused comment on the case in Springfield other than to say that the Adams file will be referred to Hershey.

"Does this mean that the case will be investigated?" an official was asked.

OREGON WILL GO TO G.O.P. IN FALL, SAYS GOVERNOR

Bitterness Against New Deal Told.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Salem, Ore., March 31.—Gov. Earl Snell, ex-corporal of World War I, today promised Oregon to the Republicans in the November election.

"We have several potential Presidential condidates who can put this state in the G. O. P. column," he said in an interview while participating in two other conferences in separate rooms. His brain and feet move him quickly from room to room.

"Farmers, manufacturers, business men, and labor are all bitter against the New Deal," the governor continued.

Policies Are Told.

"Are there any policies Oregon will advocate for the Republican platform to be written at the Chicago convention?" he was asked. He is one of the 26 Republican governors in the United States who together are expected to be a strong influence in guiding party affairs.

"We must end government by bureaus and commissions, 3,000 miles from the Pacific coast," he replied. "On foreign policy, I believe America must take a leadership in world affairs, with protection for America's interest in world affairs."

Other Oregon politicians said the election of two Republican senators and four Republican representatives this fall seems to be assured but that the Presidential race is doubtful.

Holman Has Opposition.

Sen. Holman [R.], is a candidate for the nomination to succeed himself, opposed by Wayne L. Morse, former member of the war labor board. Sen. Cordon, who was appointed to complete the term of the late Sen. McNary, is opposed in the primaries by Charles A. Sprague, but it said he passed the peak of his popularity two months ago.

This is Wendell Willkie's strong state. His campaign manager is Ralph Cake, Oregon national committeeman. Willkie alone has filed for the preferential primaries in May and it is considered unlikely that any one will file against him.

There is sentiment for Gov. Dewey of New York in this state but there is no organization working in his behalf here. Dewey sympathizers are said to resent the national committeeman's expenditure of efforts in a primary which they say would better be spent in behalf of a ticket in November.

FOUR COIN BOXES STOLEN.

Otto Lorenz, a collector for the Hurley Washing Machine company, reported to police yesterday that four coin boxes were stolen from a community basement in the Jane Addams housing project at Roosevelt rd. and Racine av.

ROYALTIES CUT BOOK COST, SAYS SCHOOL LEADER

Royalties from books written or co-written by Supt. Johnson are deducted from purchase price of the books, Don C. Rogers, in charge of textbook survey, reported yesterday in answer to critics who have complained that the amount of such royalties does not appear in the board of education's financial records.

Books are bought by bid, Rogers said. The bids usually list the royalties and deduct them, or are made with the notation that royalties have been deducted. Thus the royalty amounts show on individual invoices, Rogers said.

The citizens schools committee sent letters to board members yesterday urging them to ask a complete accounting of book royalties from Johnson.

Rogers said 30 or more Chicago teachers other than Johnson also had written books, many in use in Chicago schools. The board saves several thousand dollars a year in royalties thru their use, he said.

ALLMAN MOVES 89 IN DETECTIVE BUREAU SHIFTS

Move Requested by New Chief Storms.

Police Commissioner Allman, acting on the request of Walter G. Storms, new chief of detectives, yesterday transferred six sergeants and 73 patrolmen from outlying districts into the detective bureau. He said they would be used to strengthen various details and that additional men would be brought in if needed. Ten patrolmen assigned to the detective bureau were sent to outlying stations.

Allman also announced the appointment of Lt. Philip H. Breitzke, a 22 year veteran of the department, to head the homicide and sex squad. Breitzke, who had been head of the bureau's street detail, succeeds Lt. Otto Erlanson, who will take a 30 day furlough and then retire. The shift in commands is effective tomorrow. Lt. Timothy O'Connor, a member of the force since 1927, will succeed to command of the street detail. Both O'Connor and Breitzke have served under Chief Storms in south side stations.

Stronger Homicide Squad.

All of the changes were made at the request of Storms and his deputy chief, John Warren, Commissioner Allman said.

"We asked for these additional men and picked them because we want to strengthen the homicide and sex detail, the robbery and cartage details and the zone squads," Storms said. "In the last several months operation of the zone squads has been virtually nil because of lack of men to operate the cars. Thru this order that condition will be corrected, and the commissioner has assured me that if more men are needed we will get them."

Several Unsolved Murders.

The homicide squad is considered one of the most important in the detective bureau, and Breitzke is inheriting several unsolved murder cases, including the slaying of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams in the Drake hotel and several gang killings. Breitzke has received 15 creditable mentions and five extra compensation awards.

Sergeants transferred to the detective bureau from the districts shown: John A. Olson, Englewood; Joseph P. Devery, Burnside; Frank B. Sheahan, Austin; Patrick C. Touhy, North av.; John J. Kirby, Central, and Roy Kilburg, Deering.

END DEMOCRATIC RULE IN CICERO, GOVERNOR URGES

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Gov. Green declared last night that next Tuesday's town election in Cicero, where Republicans are seeking to end 12 years of Democratic rule, has state and national significance.

The G. O. P. candidates appeared at five meetings, including a mass rally in Legion hall in Cicero. Gov. Green, Richard J. Lyons, candidate for United States senator, and Arnold P. Benson, aspirant for secretary of state, spoke at all of them. Four meetings were scheduled for Lt. Gov. Cross, Earle B. Searcy, candidate for Supreme court clerk, and Conrad F. Becker, candidate for state treasurer.

Gov. Green told Cicero voters that they are battling for the kind of administration which Republicans have maintained in the state since 1941.

Terms Election Significant.

"It is vastly important to you Cicero taxpayers that the wasteful and inefficient administration of your town be ended and that the Republican candidates headed by Joseph S. Kral for village president be elected Tuesday," the governor said.

"But your Cicero election is significant in state and nation. A Republican victory will encourage the overburdened taxpayers of Cook county, because it will be an almost certain prophecy of a Republican victory next November which will end the grip of the tax wasting Democratic machine on Cook county affairs."

Benson, president pro tem of the Illinois senate, demanded that congress give final passage to the "G. I. Bill of Rights" bill providing hospitalization, education, vocational training, and unemployment compensation for veterans of World War II.

Warns of Amendments.

Sounding a warning against destructive amendments, he said the bill should be passed in the form which won its approval by the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

State Auditor Lueder, unopposed for renomination, spoke in Benson's behalf in a radio address. He pointed out that the only Democrat state office holder to survive the G. O. P. sweep in 1940 was the secretary of state.

"This year the regular ticket includes a sure winner for that post —Sen. Benson," Lueder said.

"As Republican leader in the Illinois senate he has been close to Gov. Green and is familiar with his policies and methods. He is further qualified by fine character and lively and intelligent interest in public affairs."

Business men are being invited to a huge luncheon gathering in behalf of Benson in the Palmer House April 5. It is hoped that 1,000 will attend. Edward L. Ryerson, board chairman of the Inland Steel company, heads the group.

COURTNEY PREDICTS FARMERS WILL VOTE SECRETLY FOR HIM

State's Atty. Courtney, Democratic candidate for governor, rested yesterday and reviewed his downstate primary campaign tour before plunging into a round of ward meetings. He will speak at 3 o'clock this afternoon to the Illinois Federation of Democratic Women in the Stevens hotel.

Courtney and his advisers were pleased by his reception downstate.

Courtney said that he had been approached by a number of farmers who told him they wanted to be known as Republicans but planned to vote Democratic.

"I have an idea this secrecy was caused by fear of what a Republican assessor might do," Courtney commented.

The candidate expressed confidence of victory, and said women would exercise more power than in any previous election.

STRATTON HAILS HIMSELF AS A PARTY REGULAR

State Treasurer William G. Stratton, candidate for the Republican nomination for secretary of state, last night told an audience at 5353 Belmont av. that his opposition is misinformed when it uses the term "regular Republican candidate." He also spoke in Berwyn.

"It seems to me," Stratton said, "that the word 'regular' is being grossly misused to confuse the Republican voters. It has always been my understanding that every candidate is a 'regular' candidate until after the people made their choice in the primary election.

"I have always been a good Republican, with a record in public office for which the party never need apologize. I feel that having led the ticket with a 253,000 majority scarcely over a year ago in the November, 1942, election, I am just as much a regular candidate as my opponent. When the voters of Illinois make their decision, I will join with them in working for a Republican victory."

DAY CHALLENGES GLOBAL IDEA IN CONGRESS RACE

This is the 7th article in a series discussing candidates seeking nominations for state offices in the April 11 primary.

BY GUY GENTRY.

Illinois voters will have the opportunity to decide a clear cut issue of Americanism vs. internationalism in the election this year of a representative at large. Democratic leaders are sending Emily Taft Douglas, an avowed interventionist, into the fray for the congressional seat now held by Rep. Day, who has consistently opposed the administration's trend toward internationalism.

While Day is opposed in his party primary by Col. Edward Davis of Evanston, the congressman is considered a heavy favorite to win the nomination because of his indorsement by the regular state organization and by the state-wide acquaintance with the voters he has acquired in previous campaigns.

Day a Foe of New Deal.

Day, a bald, sober man with a forthright delivery, was among the first to point out the threat to American liberties from New Deal burocracy. His stand against the Roosevelt administration before the attack on Pearl Harbor brought him opposition within and without his party, but he won by comfortable margins both in the primary and in the general election of 1942.

Day was born in Ohio in 1882. His father, William R. Day, was secretary of state in President McKinley's cabinet and later was appointed to the United States Supreme court by Theodore Roosevelt. Day is the descendant of such American patriots as Gen. Joseph Warren, who fell at Bunker Hill, and Zephaniah Swift, an early chief justice of Connecticut. His home is in Evanston.

Sought Prohibition Repeal.

He made his first bid for public office in 1920, when he sought a seat in congress as an advocate of prohibition repeal. He maintained an active part in political affairs, running for office several times, and was first elected to his present office in 1940.

Davis is a veteran of the Spanish-American war, the Philippine campaign and World War I., rising from private to colonel. He filled a number of diplomatic posts after retirement from the army before becoming an executive of a Chicago mercantile company. He resigned as state purchasing agent to make the race for congress. One of two daughters is now serving as an army nurse in Italy.

Mrs. Douglas Native Chicagoan.

Mrs. Douglas, an attractive, dark haired woman experienced in public speaking, resigned as secretary of the International Relations center to make the race for congress. Her place on the ticket without primary opposition is recognition by Democratic leaders of the important part feminine votes will play in this year's election.

She was born in Chicago in 1900, the daughter of Lorado Taft, the sculptor. She was graduated from the University of Chicago when 20 years old. Mrs. Douglas was on the stage two seasons, playing the leading role in "The Cat and the Canary," but after 400 performances of that play she became organization secretary of the League of Women Voters. She took an active part in the Hyde Park committee of the Red Cross for several years.

Her husband, Paul H. Douglas, resigned from the city council shortly after entry of the United States into the war, and became a private in the marines. He has been commissioned a captain and is now serving in the Pacific. Mrs. Douglas has had a speaking role in the Democratic primary campaign second only to that of State's Atty. Courtney.

Cut Railway, Main Nazi Escape Route.

LONDON, April 1 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian troops driving thousands of Germans back into the Odessa bottleneck on the Black sea yesterday captured the fortress of Ochakov, 38 miles east of the big port. To the west the Russians cut the main axis escape route into Rumania by seizing a town on the Odessa-Kishinev [Chisinau]-Jassy railway.

Russian marines attacking across the Bug and Dnieper river estuaries from a peninsula two miles south of Ochakov aided in the capture of the fortress which Russia's 18th century military hero, Marshal Alexander Suvorov, seized from the Turks.

This blow by sea occurred while other Red army forces broke into the city from the northeast and advanced thru more than 160 villages.

Nazis Flee "in Panic."

Trainloads of German equipment were seized intact from an enemy fleeing "in panic" toward Odessa, said a broadcast-bulletin recorded by the soviet monitor.

Other Russian forces attacking southward in pre-war Rumania overran the Germans' major escape channel 30 miles east of Jassy which in turn is seven miles west of the Prut river and inside Rumania. They also advanced to within 32 miles of Kishinev, the capital of Bessarabia.

To the northwest the Russians reduced the Kamenets Podolsk pocket along the middle Dniester river to less than 200 square miles by capturing 20 localities in a circular area.

Nazis Report Attack.

Moscow dispatches also placed the Red army within 12 miles of the Hungarian and North Rumanian borders. Berlin said the Russians were attacking at Stanislau in the southeastern corner of old Poland, 70 miles northwest of Cernauti, Bukovina capital, which was taken Thursday.

[The German high command announced heavy fighting at Tarnopol, Brody, Kowel in old Poland, and near Mogilev in White Russia on the central front. The Berlin bulletin said more than 6,000 Russians had been killed southwest of Narva inside northern Estonia.]

Reports Badoglio Would Welcome Red in Regime

NAPLES, Italy, March 31 (AP).—Premier Badoglio would welcome a Communist into his Italian government, a close associate said today, as a sign of democracy and in keeping with Moscow's desires. The stand follows publication in the Moscow newspaper Izvestia of a statement that the soviet union is ready to contribute toward a government reform in Italy before the allies reach Rome.

'BRITISH DOWN U. S PLANE AND 6 MEN THRU ERROR

Washington, D. C., March 31 (AP).—British fighter planes from an aircraft carrier shot down a United States army transport plane and its crew of six men by error in the Atlantic this week, the war department and the British admiralty announced jointly today.

The fighters were protecting an allied convoy, said the announcement. They apparently mistook the four engine C-54 transport plane for a German Focke-Wulf 200 bomber when identification was not established as the transport plane approached the convoy. There were no passengers on the plane, which was loaded with cargo.

It was flown by a civilian contract crew, all of whom were lost. They were: Crew Capt. Charles S. Garber, Arlington, Va.; 1st Officer George Edward Shelton, Alexandria, Va.; Navigator Orville V. Scholtz, Alexandria, Va.; Engineer Royce Theodore Welliver, Alexandria, Va.; Radio Man Beuford Hermann Mann, Washington, D. C., and the purser, Avery Bruce Merritt, McLean, Va.

British Ambassador Halifax wrote Secretary of War Stimson asking him to extend sympathy to the families of the victims of the transport accident. "I hasten to send you a message to say with what distress I, and I have no doubt the whole British community in this country, have read this news," the ambassador wrote.

Turkish Vessel Destroyed in Aegean by Submarine

LONDON, March 31 (AP).—The sinking of the 3,359 foot Turkish vessel Krom by an unidentified submarine in the Aegean sea yesterday was announced today by the Ankara radio.

SOFIA BOMBINGS LINKED TO REDS' BALKAN ADVANCE

ALLIED HDQ., Naples, March 31 (AP).—Day and night assaults by American and British heavy bombers on the Bulgarian capital of Sofia have "definite political aspects" and are closely tied up with the Russian advance into the Balkans, it was disclosed by a high allied air officer today.

He said the bombings, which for a 36 hour period ending yesterday, rained almost continuous destruction upon Sofia's railroad yards and other installations and sent smoke mounting two miles into the sky, might have far-reaching effects upon Hitler's shaky Balkan satellite.

"They also are linked with any western front offensive which may come," the officer said. "The idea is to give the Germans as much trouble as possible and tie up as many of their troops as possible, both in Italy and the Balkans."

Army Officer, Former A.P. Writer, Dies in Crash

ALLIED HDQ., Southwest Pacific, March 31 (AP).—Capt. William H. Graham of Omaha, Neb., intelligence officer for a heavy bombardment unit, was killed in a non-operational plane flight over New Guinea on March 20. Graham, 45, was a former Associated Press correspondent at Sioux Falls, S. D. He also was on the staff of the Omaha World-Herald at one time.

REDS FORCE JAPS TO GIVE UP COAL AND OIL GRANTS

MOSCOW, March 31 (AP).—The soviet union in what may be its biggest diplomatic victory of the war has forced Japan to surrender coal and oil concessions on Sakhalin Island, north of Japan, it was announced today. The concession still had 26 years to run.

In an agreement signed in Moscow yesterday, the Russians won an immediate return of the rights to these resources, which were granted to Japan in 1925 for a 45 year term. The Russians on their part have agreed to furnish Japan 50,000 tons of oil a year for five years beginning after the war. The upper half of Sakhalin Island, which lies off Siberia, is soviet territory. The southern half is Japanese.

Fishing Pact Prolonged.

Announcement of the agreement followed prolongation of the Japanese-Russian fisheries pact for five years covering rights off Kamchatka peninsula, northeast of Sakhalin.

It was disclosed that in this pact the Russians induced the Japanese to cease exploiting certain fishing grounds off Kamchatka—the nearest points in the Pacific to Alaska.

A high ranking diplomat called the Sakhalin agreement "a great contribution" to the allied cause. He said Russia's agreement to furnish Japan oil after the war would probably meet with no objection from the United States or Britain because these two countries expect to win against Japan.

Bickering Recalled.

One diplomat said the new protocol was "the next best thing to giving us bases."

There was considerable bickering between Moscow and Tokio over the Sakhalin rights during the '30s. In the spring of 1941, it was disclosed in today's announcement, the soviet union "put before the Japanese government the question of liquidation" of the concessions. Japan agreed to the liquidation within a period of six months, but failed to carry out the promise.

Izvestia recalled in an editorial on the new agreement that some Japanese politicians in 1941 were betting on a German victory in the war, but that things had changed now.

"The Japanese-soviet agreement of March 30," Izvestia said, "solved a number of ripe questions of mutual interest between the U. S. S. R. and Japan.

Foreign Policy Corrected.

"These agreements indicate a strengthening of the soviet union's international position and correction of her foreign policy as well as consideration of the special interests of our allies in the Pacific."

Izvestia said that in 1941 when Hitler launched his invasion of Russia, many Japanese politicians thought his boasting had some grounds for belief in a German victory and that a few even placed money on a Hitler victory.

"But the successes of the Red army and the developing war operations of our allies have played their role," said Izvestia. "A sobering up had to come, but it took quite a while to come."

[The official Japanese news agency Domei in a Tokio broadcast interpreted the new agreement with Moscow as having "further bolstered" the "friendly relations between Japan and the soviet union."]

Under the new agreement Russia will pay Japan $950,000. Japan is to hand over to Russia all property, including equipment, materials, and food which belongs to the Japanese concessionaires. Japan is to get free export of oil and coal now in storerooms on the island.

NAZI BOMBS KILL OR WOUND 85 IN ANZIO HOSPITAL

ALLIED HDQ., Naples, March 31 (AP).—Ground fighting in Italy slackened almost to zero today following allied failure to take Cassino, but constant pressure is being maintained on German positions. The campaign to take Rome has not been abandoned.

The Germans occupied two positions on Monastery hill abandoned by Indian and New Zealand troops earlier this week and made small attacks inside the shattered city without success. Artillery rumbled in mountains to the north.

Two small enemy raids on the Anzio beachhead were repelled and allied artillery shelled German positions near Carroceto.

Hospital Casualties Reach 85.

Headquarters announced the toll of dead and wounded suffered at dusk Wednesday when enemy bombs fell on a hospital at the beachhead had risen to 85. According to information here tonight, 16 were known dead. It had not yet been learned whether nurses were among the casualties, or what percentage of the dead and wounded were patients.

The German bombs fell when allied planes intercepted seven attacking planes. The German attack followed a futile afternoon raid against beachhead shipping in which at least 10 of the 40 raiders were destroyed.

Allied air forces struck at German communications, paying particular attention to the west coast.

CRIPPLED FORTRESS BOMBS GERMANS IN 45 BELOW ZERO COLD

While the Flying Fortress Screaming Red flew over Germany Feb. 4, on a bombing mission a 200-mile-an-hour wind whipped a temperature of 45 degrees below zero into the pilot's cockpit, Lt. William K. Bowler, 24, of 2133 S. Drake av., said yesterday on his arrival in Chicago for a visit.

Lt. W. K. Bowler.

Lt. Bowler, an employe of THE TRIBUNE auditing department on leave, has completed 25 missions over Europe. He said that on the Feb. 4 flight, after anti-aircraft fire shot away the plastic nose of his plane, he was tempted to turn back without completing the bombing, but his crew voted to continue. The bombardier voluntarily crawled back into the smashed nose to drop the bombs.

The young flyer, who has participated in the bombing of Bremen, Frankfort, and objectives in France and Norway, holds the distinguished flying cross and the air medal with three clusters.

NAVY REVEALS 11 CRAFT LOST IN MEDITERRANEAN

Washington, D. C., March 31 (AP).—Two mine sweepers, a harbor tug and eight landing craft have been lost in the Mediterranean since Jan. 22 "due to a variety of causes," the navy announced today, bringing to 158 the total of naval vessels lost in the war.

The U. S. S. Portent, 700 ton mine sweeper, was the largest of the 11 craft and normally carried a crew of 100. Her commander, Lt. Howard C. Plummer, Beaumont, Tex., was reported to be safe, but the skipper of the other mine sweeper, the 260 ton YMS-30, was lost. He was Lt. [j. g.] Thomas E. Garner, Memphis, Tenn.

FIVE ARGENTINA BABIES QUINTS, DOCTOR REPORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 31.—The first authoritative medical opinion to support the veracity of the claim that the recently discovered five children of Franco Diligenti, a nearby ranch man, are quintuplets, was given here today by Josue A. Beruti, a leading obstetrician. Addressing a class of 200 doctors and medical students, he said he was satisfied by his investigations that the children are "quints."

All five of the children are biologically similar, are of the same size and similar weight, and show the same rate of development, he said.

Willkie Supporters Lose Convention Fight.

Named as delegates at large were United States Sen. Wilson; Spangler; Gov. B. B. Hickenlooper of Cedar Rapids; Willis York of Madrid, state chairman; Mrs. Gertrude Willharm of Sumner; A. A. Coburn of Cherokee, and W. H. Brenton of Des Moines, banker.

Three Keynoters Heard.

With three keynoters—Governors Hickenlooper and Kelly [Mich.], and Judge Dwight C. Rider of Fort Dodge, the state meeting sounded like a curtain raiser in the corn belt for the Republican national convention in June. Win the war completely and as soon as possible, return to constitutional government and the American way of living, nomination for President of the most capable and available man—these were themes on which the speakers hammered. The New Deal, regimentation on the home front, the cries of the "palace guard" that criticism is treason were assailed.

"Any one who seeks to speak against the administration in Washington is charged with being a traitor to his country," cried Judge Rider, a veteran of World War I. "Defense of our American form of government is just as vital now as in 1917. Four years more of the present administration and there will be nothing left to save. If this be treason, make the most of it."

Criticizes "Gallivanting."

Judge Rider said American industries are winning the production battles in spite of the New Deal, and he brought down the house with a reference to "gallivanting."

"We have an administration," he said, "that to aid an overtaxed transportation system, appeals to the people not to travel, and then goes gallivanting itself. I note Morgenthau [secretary of the treasury] just returned from Florida with a beautiful coat of tan.

"Eleanor is off again, in an attempt to line up the soldier vote under the guise of raising morale."

Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. Hickenlooper, wives of the two governors, were introduced as "first ladies who do not go gallivanting. They are American housewives."

Gov. Kelly, who served in World War I. in the air force was introduced as "a man who left a leg in France in the last war as his contribution to America."

"To those on the firing line and on the production line," Gov. Kelly said, "this is not a Republican or a Democratic war, this is a war to determine whether our children and grandchildren shall enjoy the full fruits of democracy or suffer under the heel of a dictator. It is too important to be touched by partisanship. The Constitution, this great charter of human freedom, is the envy of the world. It must be preserved in full vigor."

Constitutional Way Important.

"The important thing," he said, "is that all these [social changes] and all proper governmental objectives can be successfully accomplished within our constitutional framework and without violence to constitutional fundamentals."

Gov. Hickenlooper in his speech called this the "jump off convention of this most vital of all political years."

"November," he said, "will see the people placing the functions of government back with the people where they belong under the Constitution." The history of the last 11 years, he said, "dictates to the citizens this year that the arbitrary rule and control of the palace guards must be destroyed and government brought back to the people."

WHAT AN ARTIST SAW IN NEW DEAL BARRED AT SHOW

Ban on Criticism Arouses Storm.

St. Louis, Mo., March 31 [Special]—The removal of 11 paintings critical of the New Deal from an exhibition at the Artists' Guild galleries today provoked a controversy over politics in art.

All of the paintings and sketches in the exhibit, about 30 pieces, are the work of two St. Louis artists, Mrs. Jesse Rickly, founder of the St. Genevieve artists' colony, and Mrs. Mabel Meeker Edsall, art instructor at the John Burroughs school. The exhibition opened this week and will continue thru April 10.

One of the rejected canvases, done in pastel, water colors, chalk and ink, was entitled "New Deal Follies." It pictured President Roosevelt wearing a crown and leading a ballet of dancers labeled WPA, OPA, OWI, WPB, and other agencies, all of them flinging away money.

"FDR's Maze" Also Goes.

Another rejected painting, called "Enter FDR's Maze," showed a path meandering from platform to platform thru a group of alphabetical agencies. Also removed was a chalk drawing entitled "Gag Rule For Loyal Opposition" which depicted a patriot silenced by a gag labeled "Un-American" while smoke and confusion partly obscured the Statue of Liberty in the background.

Another sketch ordered down showed two figures hauling a long chain, the links of which were named for various New Deal acts. The picture was entitled "But, Buddy, What's on the End of the Chain?" The end of the chain was not in view.

Mrs. Rickly, when informed of the removal of the 11 canvases yesterday on the ground they were of "controversial character," protested against political censorship.

Mrs. Edsall said: "I thought we had free speech but we don't have free painting."

Voted Out by Board.

Henry Chadeayne, guild president, said removal of the paintings was not the decision of one man but was the result of a vote by the 10 members of the guild board.

Not all of the rejected paintings referred to the New Deal and some which did were left on display.

Seemingly as controversial as those removed was one left in the exhibit which depicted the New Deal in 1932 as a haloed child and in 1944 as an ominous figure armed with a barbarian's club. This was entitled "And So the Baby Grew Up."

Another one permitted to remain was a charcoal and crayon sketch called "The Sly Mr. Fly of the FCC." It showed Mr. Public trying to cut the red tape which "Mr. Fly" had entangled around microphones symbolizing the radio industry.

CHICAGOAN MISSING IN ITALY WRITES HE'S GERMANS' PRISONER

Pvt. Max Cychner.

A postcard from a German prison camp yesterday allayed the fears of Mrs. Mary Cychner, 1222 N. Hoyne av., who two weeks ago received a war department notification that her son, Pvt. Max Cychner, an infantryman, was missing in action. The card, written on Feb. 9 by her son, explained he had been captured in Italy and was confined at Kriegsgefangenenalager, Germany. The soldier urged his mother to not worry. He added that his captors were treating them fairly and that the Red Cross was helping the prisoners. Mrs. Cychner has another son, Anthony, stationed in New Guinea.

WILLKIE HEARS FROM NEBRASKA AGAIN: IT'S 'NO!'

G.O.P. Leader Spurns Meeting Bid.

Omaha, Neb., March 31 [Special].—Wendell Willkie was snubbed again today—the second slight administered to him by Nebraskans in two days—when a state Republican leader refused to meet with him because of a conviction that the roving politician is "not serving the best interests of our party."

John S. Samson of Omaha, president of the Nebraska Young Republican federation, said today that he had declined an invitation to meet Willkie at a conference in Lincoln on Saturday. An engraved invitation had been sent to Samson and other state political, labor, and business representatives.

Resents Willkie Attitude.

Samson's refusal came on the eve of Willkie's arrival in Nebraska for a five day campaign in quest of votes in next month's Presidential preferential primary. The meeting will precede his opening talk at Lincoln Saturday night.

Samson, an attorney, said he would not accept the invitation because "Mr. Willkie has declined to say that he will support the G. O. P. nominee, whoever he might be, who is selected by the national Republican convention."

"Party Bigger than Man."

"In my personal opinion the Republican party is bigger than any man," Samson assented, "and those who assume political leadership in our party who fail to say that they will do everything possible for the purpose of unity and permitting the Republican party to win in the general election are not serving the best interests of our party."

Yesterday a group of western Nebraska Republicans went on record with a resolution indorsing any Republican in the preferential primary who can beat Willkie. The action was taken at Alliance, Neb., at a Stassen for President rally.

GENERAL GIVES ARMY'S SIDE OF WAR NEWS GAG

Reviews Patton, Bari, Sicily Cases.

Kansas City, Mo., March 31 [Special].—Maj. Gen. A. D. Surles, director of army public relations, today attempted to justify the censorship of important military incidents that had been suppressed for long periods.

Maj. Gen. A. D. Surles.

His defense of such suppression came in a letter to Roy A. Roberts, managing editor of the Kansas City Star and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Roberts had warned of rising uneasiness in the nation over the suppression of military news not for security reasons alone.

Reviews Patton Case.

Gen. Surles discussed the Gen. Patton slapping incident, the Bari harbor sinkings, and the shooting down of 23 allied transport planes by allied gunners in Sicily. Part of his statement follows:

In the Patton case that general was to be used in a cover plan following his operations in Sicily. In view of that the theater commander was extremely desirous that his reputation should not be impaired by a wide discussion of the soldier slapping incident and the resultant punishment.

"At the very time that [Drew] Pearson broke the story Patton was in Corsica with his staff, closely watched by the Germans while he made certain surveys which he himself believed were preliminary to an amphibian operation from that island. There were 27 German divisions in Italy and it was vitally necessary that the bulk of them be held from attack on our projected thin line in the southern end of the boot.

"The story from the United States that he was in disgrace and was going to be relieved struck like a bombshell in the theater where responsibility is terrific and where, by agreement with the correspondents in the theater, the story was to be withheld until Patton's operations were accomplished.

Great Bari Damage.

"In the Bari incident the Germans tried a new method of attack to evade radar, struck successfully, and, in addition, blew up two ships filled with ammunition, causing great damage.

"The harbor is 60 feet deep and the ships sank completely, with the result that German reconnaissance the next day had no idea of the extent of the damage. They claimed, with what they thought exaggeration, only one-half of the loss to us in that harbor. There was an immediate job to be done in harbor clearance, reorganization of radar and fighter coverage before ordinary security would allow them to know the extent of their operation. In addition it was a British supply point and they should have had something to say about the matter.

"As to the loss of 23 planes, the majority by friendly anti-aircraft fire in the air borne operation off Sicily last summer, the loss of the planes was 'one of those things that will happen in a highly complicated operation due to a number of factors that could only be explained adequately by giving a blueprint of the plans to include the timing, method of identification, time of issuance of orders, etc., which led to the occurrence.

"I can sit at my desk here in Washington and recognize the fact that from our standpoint here things might be handled differently to better effect in the theaters, but I am also sympathetic with a man who, saddled with immense responsibility, has won or is desperately trying to win his ball game and can't quite see the advantage in having all errors highlighted by critical commentators.

"Relatively Unimportant."

"It hurts the morale and his own units, it weakens them in the eyes of their enemy, and as a rule these things are relatively unimportant in view of the over-all effort which is at stake. There is no student of former wars, and I make no exception of any war, but will admit that this one has been skilfully and effectively planned. To knock it out of balance by a continual harping on every personal error will destroy boldness of conception and action more surely than anything I know.

"Frankly, I would like every citizen to be informed concerning the circumstances of the incidents described above, immediately upon their occurrence. However, I believe that you will agree with me that the explanations, if made too soon, contain information of value to the enemy. Therefore, I must confess that I am at a loss as to how to proceed. I realize, as you so aptly point out, that general misunderstanding concerning the reasons for our reluctance to give out information is having a detrimental effect on the public's support of the war department and the army."

2-WAY BOMBER BLOW RIPS TRUK; BASE SET AFIRE

7th Air Force, M'Arthur Pound Stronghold.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, March 31 (AP).—Japan's five principal strong points on Truk atoll were bombed by 7th army air force Liberators Wednesday night while heavy fleet units struck elsewhere in the Pacific, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The Liberators hit Dublon, Param, Uman, Fefan, and Moen Islands. American bombs set off heavy explosions and started fires on Dublon. Other fires were left blazing on Uman and Moen.

[The latest announced 7th air force raid on Truk, coupled with another by planes of that group and two smashes by planes from Gen. MacArthur's Pacific bases earlier Wednesday (Pacific time) apparently made a total of four attacks on that day on the Japanese stronghold.]

Ponape Blasted Again.

These continuing attacks gave the Japanese on Truk plenty to do while the United States fleet moved against Palau, 1,150 miles to the west, probably preventing any transfer of Japanese air strength to Palau.

[Radio silence, invoked to safeguard the attacking fleet until it had finished its attack on Palau and reached safer waters, late last night veiled results of the smash at that enemy citadel.]

In other central Pacific operations, a Liberator bombed Ponape in the eastern Carolines, and army, navy, and marine planes struck at four enemy positions in the Marshall Islands.

[First Japanese mention of the attack on Truk was contained today in a Domei wireless dispatch for overseas consumption which claimed that five "enemy" raids on the Japanese base this week had caused only "negligible" damage.]

2d MacArthur Raid on Truk.

ALLIED HDQ., Southwest Pacific, April 1 [Saturday]—(AP).—Fresh raids on Japanese bases at Truk and Woleai Islands in the Carolines by navy bombers from the South and Southwest Pacific were reported by Gen. MacArthur today.

A headquarters spokesman said the Truk operation reported today was in the nature of a harassing raid. It was conducted by South Pacific Liberators early Wednesday, a few hours before the main assault, which hit Eten Island, damaged shop and hangar installations, and destroyed 49 grounded enemy planes.

Another Island Pounded.

Woleai was hit by navy Catalinas and Liberators the following night against intense anti-aircraft fire. Catalinas had attacked Woleai, 380 miles south of Guam, on Tuesday night for the first time.

Enemy installations on Euaripik Island, 60 miles southwest of Woleai, also were bombed by the Catalinas.

In the Admiralties, dismounted troops of the 1st cavalry division of Thursday seized Pityilu Island, in the chain of isles guarding the entrance to Seadler harbor between Manus and Los Negros Islands. The latter islands already are under allied control.

Tighten New Guinea Pincers.

On the northeast coast of New Guinea, the allies tightened the two-way squeeze on Japanese holdings in the Bogadjim-Madang area. Australian troops advancing thru the mountains south of Bogadjim reached a point only 10 miles south of that objective Wednesday.

To the east, on the same day, strong American patrols from the Saidor garrison reached positions only 13 miles from Bogadjim.

In Thursday raids on enemy installations north of Australia, Liberators raided Langgoer airdrome and Dutch manned Mitchells attacked Penfoei airdrome on Timor.

Japs Strike Deeper Into India

(Story in adjoining column.)

BRITISH ABANDON BASE; JAPS PUSH ONWARD IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, India, March 31 (AP).—Japanese forces invading along a front of nearly 200 miles have thrust into the vital Manipur plain above Imphal and have forced the British to abandon Tiddim, their forward base in Burma, 100 miles below Imphal, India, it was disclosed today, but Gen. Auchinleck, allied commander in India, declared there was no cause for alarm.

"It is only within the last day or two that they have come up against our prepared defenses and met serious opposition on our part," Auchinleck assured the Indian legislature. "I am convinced that the security of Assam [province in northeast India] never has been in danger, let alone the security of India.

Hit for Allied Supply Line.

"The opinion expressed in an American paper that the fall of Imphal would be of little importance is erroneous. Our commanders have no intention that Imphal should fall into the enemy's hands."

A bulletin from Adm. Mountbatten's headquarters disclosed that one Japanese invasion column had broken thru to the main highway running from Imphal to Kohima, 60 miles to the north, and had damaged a bridge before being driven back. Another enemy party was reported north of Kohima, striking toward the main allied supply system serving the Burma front. Japanese pressure also remained heavy near Palel, 24 miles southeast of Imphal.

Report Patrol Near Imphal.

A Japanese patrol, operating well ahead of the enemy force thrusting in from the southeast, was reported to have reached within a dozen miles of Imphal.

Auchinleck explained that Tiddim was abandoned because the objective of British troops was to attack the advance enemy, not merely to hold points on a map.

Lt. Gen. Stillwell's American trained Chinese forces tightened their noose around some 1,000 Japanese trapped in northern Burma by lunging southward on the Mogaung road to a point about two miles beyond Shaduzup and only two miles from Laban, where Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill's American marauders and their Chinese allies were stubbornly holding a road block.

REFUSE TO LET BRITISH TROOPS 'TALK POLITICS'

A Motion to Speak at Rallies Rejected.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 31.—A motion demanding that British service men be permitted, when off duty, to speak at political meetings and express their views on the war and post-war policy, was rejected in the house of commons today by a vote of 91 to 14.

Before the vote was taken Minister of War James Grigg said the government opposed any such innovation. He argued that if officers and men engaged in politics it would "be certain to lead to controversy, ill feeling, and a loss of discipline."

He also said that most revolts against established governments came from juntas of highly placed officers.

Recalls Lawson's Arts.

Lt. Hugh Lawson, Commonwealth party member who recently defeated the government's candidate in a Skipton by-election, was criticized by Grigg. He recalled that Lawson had said he consistently had broken the military regulation regarding political activities and had recommended that his friends in the army do likewise. The war minister said he could not understand why, if the breaches had been so frequent, Lawson had escaped disciplinary action.

When Grigg expressed the hope that Lawson's incitement of soldiers to defy the ban on political speeches would be disregarded, Earl Winterton, Conservative, demanded that "Lawson should be treated like any one else" if he broke the regulation himself.

Gag Resented, Lawson Says.

Lawson said that the ban on political activities would impair the morale and discipline of the army and charged there was great resentment against the gag.

Grigg, in winding up the debate, said every facility has been given service men to become parliamentary candidates.

"There can be no question of conceding general permission to take part in political demonstrations or in any political agitation," he said. "Soldiers may attend meetings but must not take an active part or appear on the platform."

100 MILES OF SAIDOR REGION COAST NOW IN ALLIED FORCES' HANDS

WITH U. S. 32D DIVISION, Saidor Sector, New Guinea, March 30 [Delayed]—(AP).—With advance patrols of the 32d division on the outskirts of Bogadjim, 50 miles west of Saidor, American and Australian troops now control the northeastern coast of New Guinea from Vitiaz strait to Astrolabe bay, a stretch of about 100 miles.

"It looks as if the Saidor sector is about cleaned up," proudly announced Maj. Gen. William H. Gill, commanding the Red Arrow division which landed on New Guinea Jan. 2 to begin its second major campaign against the Japanese.

Composed mostly of veteran members of former Michigan and Wisconsin National Guard units who have been overseas more than two years, the 32d division, with Australian forces, defeated the Japs at Buna last year.

4 STATES READY TO SEND TROOPS NORMAL BALLOT

Indiana Session Called to Adopt Same Plan.

Service men and women from Illinois and its four neighboring states are assured of voting the same ballot in November as citizens at home. Adequate, even generous, provision was made by Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Iowa without awaiting efforts in congress, which finally produced the "bobtail" ballot, and Indiana is about to act so that its soldiers, too, will have a complete ballot.

While the four other states were taking early action, Gov. H. F. Schricker of Indiana, a Democrat, chose to wait and see how the President fared with his bill. In the meantime he had a bill drafted simplifying procedure for soldiers, and when the President announced yesterday that he would permit the federal bill to become law unsigned, Gov. Schricker called the special session to meet April 11.

Change in Law Required.

Like most other states, Indiana has an absentee voter law under which any voter away from home may vote by mail, but its requirements in respect to registration and manner of applying for a ballot are too complicated and the time allowed is too short for service men in far away places. The drafted bill eliminates some steps, simplifies the matter generally and allows time for the most remote soldier to get a ballot and return it.

Since the primaries are too near at hand, May 2, only the November election is considered in the Indiana bill. Leaders of the Republican legislature are reported to have approved the bill and agreed to prompt passage.

Illinois' soldier vote bill was passed at a special session Jan. 12. Gov. Green had intended to give service men voting rights in the April 11 primaries, but the Democrats defeated the emergency provision, so the law will be effective for only the general election.

Ballots to Be Mailed.

It is not necessary for the soldier to be registered. Any time after July 1, when the bill becomes law, the soldier or any one acting in his behalf may obtain an application for a ballot from the clerk of his home county. This form states his eligibility to vote. It is to be returned any time after July 20, the earlier the better, and when the application is approved, his ballot will be mailed.

The service man will mark his ballot in secret and send it back in an official envelope, which will be delivered to his home precinct and the ballot counted with the others cast election day.

In his reply to the President's request to all the governors for advice on the effectiveness of the federal ballot, Gov. Green pointed out that the Illinois law gives to those in service "the same right to vote for all candidates for all offices as is enjoyed by those at home, whereas the federal ballot is limited to Presidential and congressional office. In my judgment the use of the supplemental federal ballot is not now authorized by the laws of our state."

Iowa Includes Comment.

Iowa's legislature, which adopted a bill Jan. 28 providing for soldier voting at this year's primaries as well as the November election, included a comment on the federal bill in the text of its measure. In the form of a "whereas," it stated:

"Any enactment by the national congress purporting to provide facilities for electors in the armed services to vote would be ineffectual insofar as state and local offices are concerned and would be of doubtful constitutionality under the Constitution of the United States."

Iowa's special law permits soldiers to register by means of an affidavit form on the ballot envelope. Applications for the general election ballot may be made 70 days before election and any member of the soldier's family may act for him. The bill sets up a war ballot commission to supervise operation of the law.

Wisconsin Makes It Easy.

Wisconsin has simplified procedure for the soldier to the extent that he doesn't have to register or apply for a ballot. City, village, and town clerks are charged with making up registration lists, including the names of service men and women who will become 21 years old on or before Nov. 7. The law directs that draft boards, newspapers, and citizens generally help with the lists.

A ballot and voting instruction will be sent to each listed man. If he should be moved after the ballot is mailed, a second one, marked as a duplicate, will be sent. Air mail is to be used for distances greater than 500 miles.

Michigan included merchant sailors, nurses outside the armed forces, and civilians absent on war duty in the provisions of its law. It also took into account the possible difficulty of obtaining a proper application blank in time and provided that any form the soldier might use would be acceptable if his signature checked with his permanent registration card.

The ballot envelope specified by the Michigan law is similar to that designed by several other states. A form for executing the election oath is printed on the outside of the envelope and is all that is necessary for registration.

10 Millions in Services Gain Right to Vote State Ballots

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 31.—The soldiers' voting law, which becomes effective at midnight tonight, sets up machinery designed to enable virtually all the 10 million service men and women in this country and overseas to vote complete state ballots in the November elections.

These ballots, printed by the states, will carry the names of all major party candidates—federal, state, and local—just as on the forms used by civilians at home.

If soldiers and sailors cannot obtain these complete ballots because of delivery delays or restrictions in state absentee voting laws, they will in some instances have a chance to vote short federal ballots which the administration had sought to have generally used by service men and women.

Requires Service Coöperation.

Sponsors of the legislation say use of the abbreviated forms will be necessary, however, in relatively few cases, assuming the army and navy coöperate in transmitting the state absentee voters ballots.

The federal blanks are popularly known as "bobtailed" ballots, because they carry no names of candidates, and provide a vote only for federal offices—President, Vice President, and members of congress.

While supplementary use of these short forms is permitted in the law, voting with them has been strictly limited by congress in recognition of the constitutional right of each state to supervise voting.

Must Be Certified.

A major limitation is that, before the bobtailed blanks may be used, the state governor must certify by July 15 that they are authorized by law in his state. Even then, the law provides, state, and not federal, ballots must be voted by service personnel in this country unless their states have no absentee voting laws; and by those overseas unless the service man has applied for a state ballot by Sept. 1 and has not received it by Oct. 1.

In response to a survey by President Roosevelt, 20 governors said their states do not and probably won't approve the federal ballots. Nineteen said their laws now or probably will by July 15 authorize counting the short ballots. Nine governors were noncommital.

In the Chicagoland area, Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin have made no provision for counting the federal forms. Indiana and Michigan have not authorized them, but the governor of Michigan has announced an effort will be made to do so thru legislation.

Four of five Chicagoland states and many others have, however, arranged their absentee voting laws to permit service men and women in this country and overseas to vote the complete state ballots.

The new federal law supplements these state laws by instructing the army and navy to coöperate fully with state officials in transmitting ballot applications and ballots between service personnel and local election officials.

The secretaries of war and navy are directed to distribute form postcard applications for the state ballots to all army and navy personnel by Aug. 15 for those overseas and by Sept. 15 in this country. The postcards are to be similarly distributed to members of the merchant marine, and to those attached to the military who are in the Red Cross, United Service organizations, and Women's Auxiliary service pilots.

Provides Postcard Applications.

These cards are to be used by men and women, if state laws permit, as applications for state voting forms. Those from states such as Illinois, which will not honor the cards as ballot applications, may use them to request the actual applications.

The army and navy also are instructed to speed the delivery and return of the applications and ballots to the fullest extent compatible with military requirements. All ballots mailed from overseas are to be returned by air mail, if feasible.

All states are called upon, if they have not done so, to streamline absentee vote laws by waiving registration requirements for service personnel, and by having absentee ballots ready to mail at least 45 days before elections. The states are further urged to reduce the weight and dimensions of ballots and voting instructions to facilitate transportation.

Prohibits Election Marches.

In order that those forced to use blank federal ballots may be informed as to the candidates, commanding officers are required to post lists of nominees for federal offices at convenient places. The law requires that the federal forms be voted secretly and attested under oath after they are sealed. Service men may vote at a time of their own choice and commanding officers are prohibited from marching their men to a polling place. The federal blanks, after they are voted, will be sent to the war and navy departments for transmission to local election officials.

The law prohibits any government official or agency from distributing election propaganda to service men thru radio or literature, and requires government controled short wave stations to give equal broadcast time to the two major parties for campaign purposes. All polls to test political sentiment of service personnel, before or after elections, are banned by the law.

HOPKINS IS IMPROVING.

Rochester, Minn., March 31 [AP].—Improvement in the condition of Harry L. Hopkins, Presidential aid, who was operated on at Mayo clinic Wednesday, was reported today.

SERVICE BALLOT BECOMES LAW; GOES UNSIGNED

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 31.—President Roosevelt permitted the soldier vote bill to become a law without his signature today. The bill provides a full state ballot for the service personnel, with the short or bobtailed federal ballot for those who fail to receive a state ballot or whose states do not provide for service absentee voting.

Rep. Grant.

The President gave his reasons for neither signing nor vetoing the bill in temperate language which members of congress hailed as an open acknowledgment of the stunning congressional rebukes brought by his previous soldier vote message and his tax bill veto.

The soldier vote legislation, which he caustically attacked for the precedence it gave the state ballot, was passed in a rebellion that followed his challenge to congress to "stand up and be counted." Sen. Barkley [D., Ky.] resigned as majority leader of the senate in protest over the bitter tax bill veto and was unanimously reëlected by the Democrats the day after his break with Mr. Roosevelt as the actual leader of the majority and not, as he had been, as the White House spokesman.

Shoe on Other Foot.

The President's failure to sign or veto the soldier vote measure, which was to become law at midnight, turned his own words against him in the house.

"Mr. Roosevelt recently sent congress a scorching message," said Rep. Grant [R., Ind.], "challenging congress to 'stand up and be counted.' Now the President has neither signed nor vetoed this bill. Today the shoe is on the other foot."

The President had called on congress to "stand up and be counted" after asserting that the soldier vote bill might be passed without a roll call vote. Both houses passed it over his protest by roll call votes.

Mr. Roosevelt did no demanding in his message today. "I appeal," his message said when he made requests to congress and the states.

Seeks New Amendment.

His principal appeal to congress was for an amendment to the bill to authorize those who do not receive state ballots to use the federal ballot—whether or not they have complied with the present requirement that they must apply for a state ballot before becoming eligible to emergency use of the federal ballot, and whether or not the voter's state has previously expressly authorized acceptance of the federal ballot.

If the states do not accept the federal ballot, Mr. Roosevelt said, the responsibility would then be their own.

His appeals to the states were that they coöperate to make the bill effective, that they grant sufficient time for absentee service voting, that they accept the postcard ballot applications provided by the bill and that they authorize use of federal ballots even tho no application for a state ballot has been made.

Plan to Draft Changes.

Sen. Green [D., R. I.] announced for himself and Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] that they would introduce an amendment as suggested by the President. Green and Lucas were the authors of the original bill, which provided for the use of the federal ballot.

Despite their plans, many on Capitol Hill said the bill will probably not be changed. Green and Lucas said the President had invited congress to amend the bill, and they would act to enable congress to accept the invitation "if it sees fit."

FOREIGNERS PUT IN EVERY TYPE OF JOB BY NAZIS

Drafted Against Wishes, Says Darrah.

[David Darrah, Chicago Tribune foreign correspondent, has returned to America after 13 months' internment in Germany.]

BY DAVID DARRAH.

In Baden Baden, Germany, we saw a cross section of the millions of foreigners who have been conscripted for labor in Germany. These men and women, representing 16 or 17 nationalities, are employed largely in German armament production, and they are enlisted also in all other kinds of employment, from hotel service to sweeping the streets, thus relieving German man and woman power for service at the front.

The Germans say there are between 12 and 13 million foreign workers in Germany, including prisoners. Never before have men and women in such numbers been drafted to contribute to the war effort of another country.

Requisitions Threatened.

The foreign workers are in Germany because the German command notifies the governments of German occupied countries that so much labor is needed and that if it is not supplied it will be requisitioned. Usually those countries pass compulsory labor laws and use various other kinds of persuasion to induce their workers to go to Germany.

About half the foreign workers in Germany are prisoners. The status of some of the French prisoners has been changed to that of workers. As workers, but not as prisoners, they may be employed in ammunition factories. This transfer affected 250,000 French prisoners.

I talked with many foreign workers around Baden. They did not like the fact that they were compelled to come to Germany, but were pleased that they were able to earn money to send back to their families.

The Ukrainians were the most numerous of foreign workers, the Poles next, and the French third.

Of Economic Importance.

The presence in Germany of these workers, many of them women, seemed to be of considerable economic, as well ar social, importance The Germans reported the foreign workers sent back to their respective countries the sum of 1,350,000,000 reichsmarks between Jan. 1, 1940, and April 30, 1943. The figures of remittance mounted steadily during those years. The average remittance is about 50 marks a month, or about 1,000 French francs. A French bank handles the remittances.

French workers in Germany now number about seven to eight hundred thousand. The Vichy government has organized a social service to look after these workers, with clubs, recreational centers, and other welfare institutions.

Vacations Every Half Year.

Every six months foreign workers get 10 days' vacation to go home. Once, last fall, a large number of the French workers failed to return. For several months all leaves were stopped.

The Germans say the labor of these conscripted workers and prisoners is effective. It requires, however, a great outlay for interpreters and preliminary training.

The Germans seemed to feel also that the large number of foreign workers might become a menace in event of a collapse and that they should be turned loose on the country. On the other hand, some German labor leaders insisted the foreign workers would be a post-war trump card in reassimilating returned soldiers. They would merely have to send the foreign workers home and fit the demobilized soldiers into their jobs.

THE QUESTION.

Did you ever take some one else's advice and regret it?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Pvt. Charles H. Stiffler, 196 E. Delaware pl.—When I was invited to our regular spring dance I was in doubt about what clothes were considered proper. I was elected to be the master of ceremonies so I asked a friend what suit I should wear. He suggested spats. clothes. All the others came dressed in formals.

Gloria Jensik, stenographer, 4857 N. Talman av.—The beauty operator told me she had inside information on a new color nail polish that was going to be a real fad. I thought it would be fun to be one of the first ones to introduce it so I boldly went to work wearing black nail polish. They still tease me about my individuality.

Gregory Antikol, salesman, 1861 S. Komensky av.—It would have paid me to exercise my own judgment on the condition of my tires. I asked a man who was supposed to know if he thought I could make a 200 mile trip on them. He was so positive that I could that I took his advice and I was delayed by blowouts and flats.

Emily Watkins, copy writer, 325 Webster av.—A friend of mine arranged a double date for us. She convinced me I would never regret breaking the date I had to go on this blind one. I did as she suggested and had a miserable time. My other friend found out about it later and scratched me off his list.

Peter Orofino, office superintendent, 608 S. Dearborn st.—It flashed thru my mind that it might not be so wise to pay an individual for furniture until it was delivered, but a friend with me said he knew an honest face when he saw one. I paid the man $800 for the furniture and never got it—or my money back.

Janice Robison, stenographer, 105 Delaware pl.—In one of my former places of employment a bunch of the workers advised me to make a complaint to the head of the department. I barged in and told him about the whole situation. I regretted having done it when he told me it had been taken care of two days earlier.

DRAFT 3 POWER POST-WAR AIR ROUTE PARLEYS

Washington, D. C., March 31 (AP).—American officials have arranged talks with Great Britain and Russia in preparation for a "preliminary international discussion" of post-war aviation this summer, the state department announced tonight.

It was the first formal statement concerning the long awaited conferences on questions related to air commerce when peace ends the emergency arrangements under which half a dozen or more domestic carriers now fly world routes.

The brief announcement appeared to emphasize the tentative nature of the discussions.

Berle Heads Delegation.

"Adolf A. Berle Jr., assistant secretary of state, and Edward Warner, vice chairman of the civil aeronautics board, are going to London for an explanatory exchange of views with his majesty's government in the United Kingdom on civil aviation as a first step toward preliminary international discussion this summer," it said.

"It is expected that a group composed of Joseph C. Grew, special assistant to the secretary of state; L. Welch Pogue, chairman of the civil aeronautics board; W. A. M. Burden, assistant secretary of commerce for air, and others will conduct similar exploratory conversations with representatives of the U. S. S. R. in Washington within the next fortnight."

The Canadian government announced meanwhile that Berle and Warner had been in Canada for informal talks with C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply; Norman Robertson, undersecretary of state for external affairs, and H. J. Symington, president of Trans-Canada Airways.

Parley Questions Listed.

The United States, Canada, and Great Britain have been working on post-war aviation policies for some time. One important difference between this country and the others in their work thus far is that while Canada and Great Britain have put forth concrete proposals for international control of the air, the United States has not gone beyond listing the questions to be considered.

Because of that, some officials feel that nothing definite is likely to come out of the preliminary discussion.

Britain Transfers Women from War Jobs to Homes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 31.—Girls and women in some war factories are being transferred to domestic jobs in private homes as well as in hospitals and institutions. They were assured today by the ministry of labor that they will be directed only to houses where a real hardship exists because of the lack of domestic help.

MAJ. GEN. ROYCE NAMED DEPUTY OF 9TH AIR FORCE

LONDON, March 31 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce was appointed deputy commander of the United States 9th air force under Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton today.

Royce, who formerly commanded United States army forces in the middle east and was chief of staff of the United States air forces in the Southwest Pacific, "will take an important part in planning operations before and during the entry into Europe," an announcement said.

The FARM by Gail Compton

March 31, 1944.

MARCH had few lamb-like qualities, in the opinion of the men at the farm. This week the farm was swept with cold rains and snow, and the fields resumed their winter garb. One or two warm days encouraged both plants and beast, but sleet slowed the approach of spring.

The snow and rain were welcome, however, for the moisture they brought to the fields. Surface moisture now is good, but there still is a lack of water in the subsoil. The men dug several post holes recently and found that two feet below the surface the ground was very dry. The water now on the fields will have a chance to seep in deeply and become a reserve for the dry summer months.

Repair Machinery.

The weather, which held back most outdoor activity, allowed the men to catch up with their machinery repairs. All the equipment has been reconditioned and everything is ready for the fields. When the weather has permitted, the farm has been given a good cleaning.

The farm buildings are getting some long needed repairs, and everywhere on the farm one can see the bright yellow of new boards where the carpenters have been busy. After the repairs have been completed, the buildings will get a coat of paint.

The snow storms have given the men a chance to play with the farm's latest piece of machinery. It is a tiny tractor, complete with all attachments. In addition to the usual plow and cultivator there also are a hydraulic dump cart, a weeder, and a mowing bar.

Argue About Tractor.

Arguments are going back and forth as to whether the little tractor will be able to pull its two bottom plow thru some of the clay knobs that appear in a few fields. Some of the men stanchly assert that the tractor can go anywhere and do anything. The others are skeptical.

The size of the tractor makes it ideal for mowing roadside weeds, cultivating corn and doing the thousand odd jobs that call for more power than can readily be supplied with a team. The faithful mules are getting elderly and the midget tractor will take over many of their duties.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

AFTER asparagus crowns are planted, as described in this space yesterday, they must be carefully cultivated during the first season. Two inches of loose soil is placed over the crowns in the trench, and after they start growth the additional soil from the trench is gradually returned to the trench around the new stalks. In three or four hoeings during the summer the trench should be refilled to ground level.

No harvest is taken from a new asparagus patch during the first season. The plants are allowed to grow until frost time, when all the foilage should be cut at ground level. The asparagus patch should be heavily fertilized next spring, either with poultry manure or commercial fertilizer spread at the rate of eight pounds to each 100 square feet over the patch. The largest shoots can be harvested next spring, but the smaller plants should not be cut. By the second spring the entire planting will be ready for harvest.

BIG BILL THE BOODLER.

Nearly a million and a half dollars in cash was found in two of the five safety deposit boxes in which the late William Hale Thompson kept his valuables.

Thompson as mayor surrounded himself with grafters and boodlers. Nobody could ever deny that, particularly after some of his so-called real estate experts were forced to disgorge as a result of the suit brought against them by this newspaper.

Thompson's friends always said that, tho his associates in the city government were thieves, he did not share in the loot himself. This tale was repeated only a few days ago at the time of his death.

We were never able to prove conclusively that Thompson personally profited from the gross dishonesty of his administration of the city's government, but we were morally sure that he did. When some years ago it was found that he had stolen a large part of the fund collected for the relief of Mississippi river flood sufferers we were satisfied that this was not his first or his grossest betrayal of a public trust.

We still don't know exactly how he amassed his million and a half, and whatever else he may have acquired, but we are confident he didn't get all of this money honestly. Probably very little of it was without taint. He inherited a sizable fortune, but his inheritance was not to be compared in value with the hoard he left behind. He never operated a notably profitable business. When he was mayor he lived extravagantly, far beyond his income from public office. After his return to private life he lived in idleness. For many years he maintained a yacht and he used to entertain lavishly.

The Capone gang rose to power while he was mayor. He got along with Insull, too, and the presence in one of the safety boxes of a substantial chunk of Insull shares may have its memorial significance. His administrations were a long series of scandals having to do with the looting of city funds. Scores of contractors who dealt with the city had to come across. He always collected big campaign funds.

Evidently much of the dishonest money stuck to Thompson's fingers. The next time anybody says that this or that public official is surrounded with grafters, but is himself an honest man, the facts regarding Thompson's estate can be profitably recalled. Honest men do not surround themselves with crooks and thieves. Honest men in public office do not tolerate stealing by their underlings.

RUSSIA'S DEBT TO US.

Japan has entered into an agreement turning over to Russia one of her most tenderly held prizes—the oil and coal concessions on the Island of Sakhalin. The Nips had their eyes on this island for years. At the treaty of Portsmouth in 1905, after the war with Russia, the Jap representatives pressed hard for the cession of Sakhalin, and they blamed the intervention of Theodore Roosevelt for the fact that they obtained only the southern half, leaving the northern half to Russia. The mounting enmity of the Japanese people for the United States is credited to their being thwarted in obtaining the whole of the island, under a treaty signed in the United States.

At every subsequent opportunity the Japs tried to take over the Russians' half. Thus in 1917, during the Russian revolution, the Japanese occupied the whole island and didn't get out of the northern portion for eight years. When they did they obtained the right for Japanese companies to develop and operate the coal and oil industries in the Russian area. In 1935 Japan pressed Russia to sell out northern Sakhalin, but the parties could not agree on the price. At various times later, there were rumors that the Russians were going to be kicked out. Thus, two weeks before Germany attacked Poland in 1939, the Japanese foreign office gave out a statement that the war, navy, and commerce ministers were called into consultation because of "soviet threats which jeopardize Japanese oil concessions on Sakhalin." At another time the "official spokesman" at Tokio told the press how strong the fleet was and how weak the Russians' fleet at Vladivostok.

Yesterday it was announced that the Japanese government had agreed to get out of northern Sakhalin and surrender up the oil and coal leases. Japan is to get the coal and oil that is in storage, but isn't to get any more until after the war. Moscow is to pay nearly a million dollars, but is to get all the Jap property in the concession.

This action shows how the war is going in the Pacific. Japan wouldn't be giving up her prize if she didn't have to. There isn't a doubt that Tokio would have taken over northern Sakhalin by force of arms if she were winning her war. Russia was able to get the Japs to yield the coal and oil properties only because Japan is being defeated by the American army and navy, which are crowding ever closer to Tokio. Since Russia is being cut in on the profits of our war against the Nip the least Stalin could do is to give us air fields from which to bomb the Jap homeland and thus bring the war to an early and successful conclusion.

FROM PASSCHENDAELE TO CASSINO.

Passchendaele is one of the bitterest names in the history of the British army. It stands for the hundreds of thousands of casualties suffered to take a village in Flanders which, when taken, advanced their fortunes not a whit.

By the summer of 1917, when the offensive was started, the tank had been introduced and its potentialities for ending the stalemate of trench warfare had been seen, dimly. Passchendaele was to have been a tank battle in part. Unfortunately, the British staff ignored the fact that the country had originally been swamps, reclaimed for agricultural use by painstaking tiling and digging of drainage canals.

The battle opened on July 22, 1917, with a 10 day artillery bombardment by 2,300 guns. When the guns had finished their work the land was a morass. Not only tanks, but infantry, were immobilized by the destruction of the manmade drainage facilities of the region. The fight was senselessly continued for months, long after hope of any military advantage had vanished, and the casualties suffered did much to prepare for the British collapse in the spring of 1918.

Gen. Alexander, the British commander in Italy, served brilliantly in the front lines in France from 1914 to 1917. Gen. Wilson, his superior as commander of the Mediterranean area, was also in France, emerging from the last war with the rank of lieutenant general. Yet the recent failure at Cassino would indicate that neither remembered Passchendaele when the plans for the tremendous aerial assault on Cassino were drawn.

It was intended that the bombing and artillery fire soften the Nazi stronghold in order that allied tanks might smash the way open for infantry to take it. The destruction was terrific. The tanks sought to enter the town and found their way blocked by debris. The infantry had to make the assault alone, and when they attacked they found the Germans waiting for them. It was Passchendaele over again. Instead of one arm preparing the way for another, the bombardment had made the use of tanks impossible.

It is a sound theory of warfare to leave the fighting in the field to young men and the planning and direction to older men, tempered by experience. The theory fails when the older men fail to profit by their experience.

THE POST-WAR ARMY.

Rep. Woodrum of Virginia has just been appointed to one of the most important posts in congress, the chairmanship of a special house committee on post-war military policy. On taking the post he urged that the United States avoid the fatal mistake of neglecting its military establishment in times of peace.

"After the last war we lost no time in moving in to dismantle our army and junk our navy," said Mr. Woodrum. "We are paying now for that blunder. Let us not repeat it."

What happened after the last war was what happened after every other war in our history. From Yorktown on this nation has always finished wars with the delusion that the conflict just ended would be the last one in a long time and that if trouble did arise our genius for improvisation would be adequate to solve it. We reduced the armies of the Civil war to a few sparse battalions of Indian fighters. After the Spanish-American war Elihu Root did establish the general staff, the army war college, and other higher army schools in which military science was really born in this country.

We lapsed into a military coma in 1919 and, after 1933, with all Europe arming, the national administration continued to neglect the army and navy in favor of leaf raking and other forms of political vote buying. That neglect has already cost us tens of billions of dollars and we do not yet know what the cost will be in lives.

One of the functions of Mr. Woodrum's new committee will be to determine just what kind of an army and navy we want after the war. It is rather generally conceded that we must keep a larger fighting establishment than we have ever had before in peace time. Despite lend-lease and other blunders, we will still emerge from the war the most powerful nation in the world in many respects and, for that reason, the most envied nation and the one that furnishes the greatest temptation to spoliation if we ever drop our guard.

The character of our establishments, however, is not one easily determined. There is always the danger that the vast stores of equipment accumulated in war time will remain as a false pillar of strength during the peace years, only to fail when they are needed. We saw what happened to France and also saw how the Germans, stripped of their armaments, of necessity built a modern army instead of maintaining an antiquated one.

One thing, however, is certain. An adequate program of military and naval preparedness will not be accepted by the American people without dissent. Our peace time lapses of the past have not been wholly the fault of the administrations and powers in Washington. The American people do not like military establishments and do not like to spend money on them. That prejudice has to be overcome if the nation is to be made safe. The ease with which it will be overcome will depend in a very large degree on what we do with the forces established.

The wilder the proposals to keep American troops on duty thruout the world, and to send them to intervene in any quarrel that may arise on any continent, the harder it is going to be to convince the nation of our need for protection. Fathers and mothers of America want no part of a post-war army if it involves making lend-lease mercenaries of their sons.

MR. PEPYS TALKS OF SPRING.

1st April—What with snow flurries, bitter winds, bleak skies, and worries about my first robin, have had a rather dismal week. Wished I had gone to French Lick with Ed Burns and Irv Vaughan to watch the Cubs and White Sox get the kinks out of their arms and legs, but after reading the moans of these authors about the mean weather in southern Indiana decided I had the laugh on them.

Wore my blizzard buster cap almost every day to avoid losing my fine chapeau in the gales that sweep across the Michigan avenue bridge. Met with no reproaches from the citizens, because they were generally chasing their own hats thru the motor traffic at the risk of their lives. Have arranged the blizzard buster so that it puffs up in front like Gen. MacArthur's cap, and hope to set a new fashion.

Went to the Civic theater, next door to the opera house, to see a new play about the romance of circus life, but was not stirred except by a desire to go home early. Remembered my old friend, I. K. Pond, the architect, who haunted circus lots all his life and was always tempted to run away and become an acrobat.

Read in the papers that Stephen Leacock, famous Canadian humorist and scholar, had died, and remembered hearing that when Bert Leston Taylor, founder of this column, passed on, among the 10,000 applicants for the job was this same Stephen Leacock, who never wanted to be a college professor.

Now to watch my step in observance of All Fools' day, and to wonder when April will turn green.

THOUGHT FOR PALM SUNDAY.

One heavy heart there was among the throng
On that resplendent Sabbath long ago;
But One to whom it was vouchsafed to know
He knew the suffering way was dark and long
Till selfish men should ultimately grow
To realize the things He knew were so,
But hope within His bleeding heart was strong.

That hope He gives to those who wait today,
Concerning fate of loved one far away;
Uncertainty and grief are vaguely blurred,
And turning to the Light that shines alway,
Casual.

Mebbe now I've got some backin' for what my family calls my "outlandish heathen notions." He set down my ideas to a T and, with a few changes, mostly in names of folks and places, his last wishes are mine.

One thing, tho, since wakes are the custom here, I want at least one barrel of beer on tap—and a second if the first one blows. No hard stuff. Mebbe they'll get to singin' some of the old barbershop melodies, and there's two good, deep basses in that gang that I want to stay reasonably sober.

Not that it matters a hoot, but I'd prefer to be on a knoll overlookin' a certain big marsh where the ducks and geese come and go each fall. Dogwood won't grow up here nohow, so a sturdy young bur oak would make the best marker.

Finally, altho I'm a web-footed swamp angel—perhaps because of it—on top of the 23d Psalm I'd like read that part of the one that says, "I will lift mine eyes up unto the hills from whence cometh my help." Buckshot, O. R. S.

WHEN ROBIN CAME.

Just as it has done in years before
Dawn came tiptoeing past the door;
Her feet were rosy on lawn and roof
Where white frost lay in spring's behoof.
In the selfsame tree of the nest he would build.
The streets were empty, the houses all dark,
No other voice than his was heard, but hark!
A flute that matched the rose and white dawn—
The robin at matins and then he was gone.

What Happens to Bridge Prizes.

An advertisment told the tired business man to get a Worry Bird, that it was born to worry, and would stay up all night to fret for him.

Another ad asked him if he ever got mad enough to smash something. If so, the Wackaroo was recommended, made of chalk in three colors.

The t. b. m. tried to decide which would give him more relief. He pondered all the way home. He walked in the front door, and there on the hall whatnot stood a Worry Bird and a Wackaroo.

Pondering gave way to impulse. He seized the Wackaroo and hurled it to the floor. Feeling foolish, he hurriedly swept the fragments out with the hearth broom. Then he tucked the Worry Bird into his pocket to see if it would console him.

At dinner his wife proudly announced she had won two prizes that day at a benefit bridge and knew exactly to whom she was going to give them. She scurried to the whatnot, then came back with a puzzled expression. "I could swear I put them there."

The t. b. m. sighed and said nothing. He took the Worry Bird to the office next day and put it in his desk.

THESE ARE DIMPLES.

Little valleys that would store,
As 'gainst some future drouth,
Showers o' kisses falling o'er
A thirsty, rose-lipped mouth.

When the first two words are translated as "Who raw," the whole thing becomes "Hurrah for the red, white, and blue."

WHAT CAUSES HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE?

We have identified some of the factors which increase tension within the arteries. The recent studies of Page and others have shown that the kidney tissue may be partly to blame. In certain circumstances, if the blood supply to the renal organs is decreased, chemicals will be produced which will raise blood pressure.

But there are many as yet unknown sources of trouble and the symptom deserves the most intensive investigation. The disorder is one of our great killers, particularly among the very group of individuals who deserve to live long and who are desperately needed for the public good. Unfortunately, when the physical body crashes, the trained mind is carried away with the wreckage.

To the best of our knowledge, hypertension does not come from any one cause. Neither are its effects observed upon any one part of the system altho they may be more severe in a particular region. Sometimes the arterioles [tiny arteries] will be obliged to bear the brunt of the attack. In other cases, the main conduits will become brittle and lose their elasticity. The capillaries are under the control of the nervous system and we can do one thing—namely, guard against psychic upsets [anger, fear, worry, etc.] which can throw them into a state of spasm.

In this same connection we must recall that the kidneys can be deprived of their normal quota of blood whenever the sympathetic nerve fibers get out of hand. If this condition persists, these minute channels will thicken. In consequence, after a while they will be unable to deliver adequate nutriment to the cells, even tho the patient is wholly relaxed.

Then too we must think of infections which can damage these delicate pipes. We are not sure just how such poisons operate. They probably injure the nervous system. At any rate, the one who has been the victim of a long sustained toxemia is likely to find that his vital organs are receiving far less than their natural allotment of circulation.

The chief value of learning that you have a high level lies in the fact that you are likely to take more rest and spare yourself excessive effort. Beyond this, the best thing to do is to forget about it. Making monthly trips to the doctor's office may serve merely to keep alive a type of apprehension that is deadly. We realize, of course, what emotions can do to us. One who is jittery or nervous, and who carries great responsibilities, can jump the reading 20 to 40 points and not half try.

Yes, there are helpful drugs and the cautious use of the sulfocyanates may be recommended for those whose levels are considered dangerous. But better hygiene and physiological living is a far safer plan. We can reserve medication for those with whom the elevation is over 200 and who show signs of heart failure, renal damage, or other destructive results.

We may look upon hypertension as an indication that some degenerative process is going on. The least we can do is not to hasten it by exhibiting undue concern. Perhaps before long we shall have an antidote, an extract of renal tissue, which can neutralize the chemicals which harden the arteries.

EYE INFECTION.

D. R. G. writes: What is the cause and cure for persistent redness and scaling of the rims of the upper and lower lids?

REPLY.

Your condition is probably blepharitis. This is an infection of the lash follicles, usually with staphylococci. The lid borders become red and exhibit scales of dead epithelium. In certain cases, small abscesses form around the hairs. Hot packs are advised, followed by the application of 3 per cent ammoniated mercury ointment or 2 per cent yellow oxide ointment. Do not rub the parts.

WHEEZING.

G. R. writes: What are the symptoms of cardiac asthma?

REPLY.

There is really no such thing altho the heart may become disturbed in time. The struggle for breath may be so desperate that the pumping apparatus will be accused of falling down on the job. Look for the cause in some substance to which the individual reacts violently—food, or irritants of all types, including bacteria.

DISCOLORED LEGS.

M. O. D. writes: What causes my legs to have a deep bluish or purplish color and to be covered with what looks like goose pimples?

REPLY.

Some interference with the return circulation. The ensuing congestion may lead to vasomotor disturbances which will present a roughened skin. Check the cause without delay.

LIKE DUCKS.

A. T. writes: What are webbed toes?

REPLY.

The structures are connected by a membrane. The trait may run in families—hereditary. Individuals thus blessed should be good swimmers.

DECREASED FUNCTION.

REPLY.

No. On the other hand, a moderate amount of atrophy ensues.

The Mute's Voice.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—And so words actually fell from the mouth of Charlie Chaplin. After 30 years of muteness, he exposed his voice. He has one. He even has a good one. It speaks words.

It is all strange, confusing, very upsetting to the traditions we hold dear. Mr. Chaplin let the world know, but only by his silence, that he fought the advent of sound films because his voice was poor. Then he made "City Lights," a picture full of sound, but none of it emanating from him. Then he finally made "The Great Dictator." It had a voice, all right, but those in the know said that another voice was piped in.

In the six days of his trial here preceding his initial appearance on the witness stand he made a few casual remarks here and there. In them his voice lived up to its well established tradition. It seemed high, squeaky, cockney. But once he had an audience of 12 unknowns, the jury, it changed. It became round, full, deep, with the accent of a polished Briton. Why the metamorphosis? Was this his new voice, one he had created for his apocryphal role of the Catholic priest in his apocryphal film, "Shadow and Substance"? Or had he had it all along and kept it mute to satisfy the public that could never believe the nuance of the voice equal that of the gesture? Or maybe that voice coming from the witness stand, like that in "The Great Dictator," was piped in. The words rolled easily enough.

In any event, it has started a neat controversy in the ranks of those who flourish on such. The controversy is whether he could have done better in the courtroom with it or without it?

As a pantomimist he is unexcelled. If he had just told his story in gestures and shrugs [as one of his defense witnesses, an Italian lad, virtually did], would he have had a more magnetic effect? Fully half of his answers to direct questions on the witness stand were "No," usually given in hurried triplicate, as: "No, No, No!" On an ascending scale. He could have done beautiful things with his head to achieve the same total denial.

And his various meetings with the lady in the case . . . all were, he insisted, so innocent and proper that he could easily have depicted them. A flutter of a hand to indicate she is on a dance floor. A brief, sour smile to indicate the courteous [but no more] salutation that passed between them. A wave of the hand to indicate that was that.

She wanted to go to the Waldorf Astoria to look at his suite. He shows her around with old world grace and simple gestures. See the big living room, my discarded dear? And the warm fire? And the soft chairs? Let's sit down and read the newspapers. A yawn. So sleepy. Time for you to go back down in the elevator. Is it money you want? A quick separation of $100 bills, two back into the pocket, three to her.

And now he takes the lady to dinner back in Los Angeles. He is proud, pleased, paternal. See his proud walk, his fatherly smile? But she . . . surely she cannot be, but she is, inebriated. O, she weaves, she falters, she . . . she goes straight home.

And now he is in his bedroom at night, alone. He is telephoning. He hears a noise. He turns. The lady is advancing with a gun. She is going to kill him. Yes? No! He implores her to give him the gun, his outthrust, supplicant hands, curved to receive it. She will not. She does not. He is terrified. He goes downstairs. He comes back upstairs. He shoos her into a bedroom and locks a door. He shakes his head? No, No, No! Then . . . well, Mr. Chaplin, you carry on from here.

Really, it is a shame. It could have been so beautiful, so beautiful . . . and strong, silent men are so scarce these days.

THE PUBLIC IS CORDIALLY INVITED.

Princess Anne, Md., March 27.—Political Maryland will put on its big show of the year the week of April 17, when I am brought to trial here in Princess Anne for criminal libel, the first case of its kind in the history of the free state. As we say in country weeklies: The public is cordially invited to attend.

I am grateful to the American Newspaper Publishers association for sending its distinguished attorney, Elisha Hanson, to defend me and thereby assuring the presence of representatives of the press associations and great newspapers of this country.

Just as polluted water is purified after running a few miles in sunlight, so will political corruption wither away in the fierce rays of widespread publicity. RIVES MATTHEWS.

THE LIGHTER YOU DON'T USE.

Chicago, March 27.—A friend of mine in one of the combat zones of the South Pacific asked me to send him a cigaret lighter with a protection against strong winds, as matches were not only hard to get where he was, but of very little use owing to the intense heat, which made them soggy and useless.

I combed the stores around town and found that lighters were almost impossible to get. So I did the next best thing, and sent him my own, and believe me, he was tickled pink with it.

A sudden thought occurred to me. I imagine thousands of fighters overseas want and need lighters, and there must be hundreds of thousands of these gadgets lying around unused in homes and offices.

Why not dig those cigaret lighters out of those top drawers, have them sent back to the factory which made them to be put in first class condition, and then send them across to some soldier, sailor, or marine who'd really use and appreciate them?

ERNEST RICHMAN.

KINDLY "L" GUARD.

Chicago, March 28.—This afternoon the Jackson Park express, upon which I was riding downtown, started from Edgewater Beach station. "Sailman 1832 came into the car where a blind woman was sitting, helped her to her feet, guided her carefully down the aisle to the end of the car and made certain that she had a firm grip on one of the window rods alongside the door. The train stopped at Argyle, the trainman opened the door, then left his post to assist the woman along the station platform to the head of the stairs, assuring himself that she had grasped the handrail. Then, acknowledging her grateful smile, he hurried back to his post. FRANK J. HART.

HE EXPECTS A ROW.

Stephenville, Tex., March 28.—I have noticed all my life that when a man goes all-out he usually comes back all in. Seems there is no use to try to conceal it any longer, Roosevelt, Stalin, and Churchill have reached the point where each would like to see any one of the others whipped. If they have another conference I have a pair of old fashioned brass knucks I would like to loan Mr. Roosevelt. The only thing I would ask in return is this: If Sen. Gonnelly wants to know our foreign policy let him ask Stalin.

J. E. FITZGERALD.

HE SUSPECTS RUSSIA.

Chicago, March 29.—It has just commenced to dawn on our diplomats that regardless of the Moscow conference or any of the other spectacular by-play, including Teheran, Russia is getting out of hand. She is making good use of the huge amount of material we are sending there and giving very little credit to us. While her military operations are big she is protecting her political operations ahead of them.

Whatever the Atlantic charter meant, she has knocked it into a cocked hat. She will treat only with Communists in the conquered countries. She does not let us into her councils but, on the other hand, she has members on the AMG to govern countries we have conquered. She has recognized the French committee without consulting us and the same with Badoglio.

Now what will she do next? It is easy to tell from her history. As soon as she is free from the German war she will stop us in the Pacific. She will do this even to taking the side of Japan. Japan is her ace in the hole. Japan is counting on this, too. Yes, we have the navy and Russia has none, but this will be decided on land, probably in Manchuria, and Russia has the army.

CARL BIRD.

A SOLDIER ON VOTING.

Munising, Mich., March 28.—We received a letter from our son in Italy the other day which gives one an idea the way some of the boys over there are worrying about who will be the next President:

"Not much is said around here about the soldiers' vote. The fellows usually have more to worry about than a mere Presidential election. Of course, this is a very short-sighted view but the immediate future and usually the present is so imperative that nothing seems big enough to overshadow it. Of course, I don't know about the soldiers in rear areas, who know what they will be doing tomorrow, next week, or next month. The President is too far away. The captain is right here and he determines the course of the war as far as I'm concerned, and I have nothing to say about him, he's just there."

MRS. C. M. SCHOOLEY.

HER SON IN A PICTURE.

Aurora, Ill., March 28.—I bought the March 25 issue of THE TRIBUNE and glancing over the color section, my favorite part of the paper, there was my son in the picture of soldiers aboard an American transport. He is the one in the lower right hand corner with the field jacket, interested in his card game. Thanks a million for another glance at him. He left for overseas in December and is now stationed somewhere in India. MRS. W. H. WHITE.

TAX SALES.

Berwyn, Ill., March 30.—Would you please tell me how to go about locating farm property that is being sold for taxes or is for sale in Probate court? Am interested in property in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, or Michigan.

P. V.

By writing to the county clerk of the county in which you are interested, you could obtain information as to dates of tax sales, but we would advise you not to bid at such sales expecting to obtain a clear title unless you first employ an attorney to represent you thruout.

U.S. MARAUDERS HANG UP A NEW BOMBING RECORD

Drop 4,500 Tons on Nazis in March.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT THE 9TH AIRFORCE MARAUDER BASE, Somewhere in England, March 30 — [Delayed].—Swift American Marauder bombers made March a record month for total sorties [individual flights] and tonnage of bombs dropped on German freight yards, airdromes, and rocket installations along the "invasion coast."

The medium B-26s carried out 3,500 sorties, dropped 4,500 tons of bombs, and lost only 10 planes thru enemy action. During the month these bombers shot down two enemy planes, probably destroyed two more, and damaged eight.

Tops February Record.

This record tops that hung up in February when approximately 2,000 sorties were flown, 3,200 tons of bombs dropped, and 13 of our planes lost against two enemy planes destroyed, one probably, and three damaged.

The March operations included one of the biggest B-26 raids ever carried out in the European theater, the 350 plane smash at the E-boat pens at Ijmuiden, Holland. More than 600 tons of bombs were dropped on a target which measures only 710 by 315 feet.

Call It "Revenge Raid."

This raid is unofficially known as a "revenge raid" because Imjuiden was the first target bombed on May 13 and May 17 last year when the Marauders made their combat debut. These raids were made at "deck level" and all the bombers returned from the first mission badly shot up. Ten went out on the second mission and none came home. Only one of the 350 failed to return from the "revenge raid."

This month also saw a record penetration of the continent by Marauders in a raid against the airdrome at Juvincourt, near Rheims, which is 120 miles inside France.

According to intelligence reports, including photographs, three raids directed against the Creil yards 30 miles north of Paris on March 17 practically wiped out that objective.

Mustangs Set Record.

A. U. S. FIGHTER BASE IN BRITAIN, March 31 (AP).—Col. Donald Blakeslee's Mustang fighter group in March destroyed 156 enemy aircraft—123 in the air and 33 on the ground. The group's total bag now is 297, it was announced today.

3 HOUR BATTLE IN SKY COSTS RAF 94 PLANES

LONDON, March 31 (AP).—The R. A. F. lost 94 planes last night as its heavy bombers encountered the greatest Nazi fighter force ever seen by British pilots and a determined ground defense, which included a new type of "scarecrow rocket," at Nuremberg and other targets in Germany.

The Germans were unable to turn back this latest thrust of the big British Lancasters and Halifaxes in a three hour pitched battle which raged alternately thru clouds and bright patches of moonlight.

The official description of the raid suggested that in the neighborhood of 2,240 tons of bombs were dropped by a force of probably 1,000 four engined bombers on the southern German transport center and Nazi congress city which now is about the size of Cincinnati, O. Nuremberg is the birthplace of the Nazi party.

The British announcement of the loss of 94 planes contrasted with the claim of the German DNB agency, which said 141 bombers were destroyed.

Missing Evanston Soldier Is Prisoner in Germany

Pvt. Joseph P. Schumer Jr., 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Schumer Sr., of 925 Sherman av., Evanston, is a prisoner of war in Germany, he informed his parents yesterday. Previously the war department had notified his mother that he was missing in action in Italy Jan. 22, and no additional word was received until a postal card arrived from Schumer. He was graduated from the Evanston township High school in 1942.

Bataan Day on April 9 Is Proclaimed by Mayor

Mayor Kelly yesterday proclaimed Sunday, April 9, as Bataan day in Chicago and asked that all citizens be mindful of the second anniversary of the fall of Bataan. In his proclamation, the mayor pointed out that this day is one on which the American people must remember a wrong that must be righted.

The South Pacific general depot, with millions of cubic feet of storage space in hundreds of warehouses, plus millions more under tarpaulins, was established by four officers and a small group of enlisted men. Today with thousands of officers and men it is the source of supply for everything from shoestrings to field guns for the fighting forces in the South Pacific.

DIXIE FLYER HITS CAR IN DOLTON; DRIVER KILLED

Richard P. Hofstra, 30, of 241 W. 111th st., was killed yesterday when his automobile was struck by the fast Chicago bound Dixie Flyer on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad tracks at 144th st., in Dolton. Hofstra was knocked out of the car, which was dragged some 250 feet and smashed. Police said that altho the crossing is not protected by blinkers or gates, and is marked only by the usual cross-arm sign, it is open and unobstructed.

Fifty-one automobile accident deaths occurred in Cook county last month, bringing the toll for the first quarter of the year to 152, Coroner A. L. Brodie reported yesterday. Last year, 35 automobile fatalities occurred in March, and 124 in the first three months.

Brodie said 119 of the deaths this year have occurred in the city and 98 last year. The 1943 automobile death total was 517.

Move Herzl Gym Classes to Altgeld Fieldhouse

Gymnasium classes for Herzl college students, who will move into Crane Technical High school, 2245 Jackson blvd., Monday, will be held in the Altgeld park fieldhouse, 2658 Harrison st., August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director for Chicago schools, announced yesterday. The Crane gymnasium was reported taxed with classes for 4,000 boys five days a week, without room for Herzl's 550 students. The fieldhouse has two gymnasiums, lockers and showers for men and women, and an adjoining play field. It is about five minutes' walk from Crane.

Headliner

THEATER OF AIR TO OFFER 'NEW MOON' TONIGHT

The broadcast of Sigmund Romberg's operetta "New Moon" on the Chicago Theater of the Air from 8 to 9 o'clock tonight will be followed by an hour of entertainment by soldier talent from the army's 6th service command. Three thousand five hundred civilian employes of the army will be studio guests in Medinah temple. The operetta will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting system.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, will speak.

Marion Claire will sing the starring role of Marianne. Bruce Foote and Earle Wilkie will sing the leading male roles.

Maj. Wayne King will be master of ceremonies of the post-broadcast show. The aftershow program will include music by the 344th army band from Fort Sheridan, featuring Corp. William [Red] Hodgson, instrumentalist, comedian, and composer of "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round."

Charles McKiel of the treasury department will urge the purchase of war bonds.

Two Bandits Rob, Beat, and Imprison a Grocer

Police yesterday sought two Negro bandits who late Thursday night took a small amount of money from Thomas Sieretis in his grocery store at 1909 Madison st., then tied him, beat him with a crowbar and locked him in the refrigerator room.

SEAMAN TELLS 3 TORPEDOINGS AND 76 BOMBINGS

Colin Mackenzie, quartermaster in the merchant marine, one of the "most torpedoed men" of the war, yesterday told members of the Executives club at a luncheon in Hotel Sherman how he survived three torpedoings and 76 bombing attacks in a few months.

Colin Mackenzie.

Mackenzie, 26, and a resident of Buffalo, N. Y., had his first ship shot from beneath him in the Caribbean sea in June, 1942, when an entire convoy of 16 ships was sunk within 36 hours by German submarines. The other torpedo attacks occurred soon after when the ships which had rescued Mackenzie and other survivors also were sunk.

When Mackenzie reached the Mediterranean sea with another convoy, he decided to vary his experiences with a little action on shore, and slipped away from his ship during the invasions of Sicily and Salerno. Both times he was nearly killed by German shells. During one of these trips ashore he thumbed a ride in a command car and learned it was the personal car of Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley.

CHICAGO TROOPS ROOT FOR TEAM OF ILLINOISANS

Local Boys Get Rest at Bougainville.

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOUGAINVILLE, Solomon Islands, March 29 [Delayed].—Illinoisans are justly proud of their own outfits' accomplishments but as a group are not jealous of each other, a visit to the Americal division's part of the Bougainville beachhead line demonstrated today.

One regiment, more than half of whose men are from Chicago and other Illinois areas, holds a part of the line which the Japs have not hit hard since Feb. 6. Over in the 37th division sector, another Illinois unit has become the champion Japkilling outfit in this campaign. But the Americal Illinoisans are rooting wholeheartedly for the more active fellows, even bragging of their prowess.

Capt. Timothy Mulcahy, 27, an engineer on Chicago's subway project before joining the 33d National guard division in November, 1940, summed it up this way:

"We Chicagoans come from a great city in a great state and we are pretty clannish. We like to see each other do well. Since we are not in the Bougainville hot spot, we are glad it is an Illinois outfit that is showing the Japs cards and spades. We are plugging for that 37th gang to the limit."

Tribune Man There, Too.

Mulcahy's wife, Mary, and their 2 year old daughter of the same name, born since he left the United States, live at 9425 S. Laflin st. He is a special service officer here.

The same pride was expressed by Capt. Lawrence Buskett, 29, whose wife, Harriett, lives at 599 Central av., Highland Park. Commissioned in the national guard in 1939, Buskett is on leave as a Chicago Tribune classified advertising salesman. He played a big part in planning his battalion's tank and infantry push in the Torokina river early last month. The action was marked by the first use of tanks by the army in this campaign.

Sgt. Ernest F. Teeman, 28, whose wife lives at 6010 Glenwood av., has led several patrols deep into Jap territory to gain valuable combat information and kill and harass the enemy. Sgt. Theodore L. Mieloszyk, who flaunts a splendiferous set of pink whiskers on the patrols, is the son of George and Emma Mieloszyk, of 8320 Buffalo av., Chicago. Tech. Sgt. Howard M. Rich, 25, of Atlanta, Ill., has been the intrepid leader of many patrols here and at Guadalcanal.

Many Others from Chicago.

Sgt. Adam F. Rymek, 25, of 5221 Oakdale av., son of Lucille Rymek, also has headed many patrols. He is the possessor of an abbreviated chin tuft which makes him look like Uncle Sam. Sgt. Joe Camp, 24, of Streator, is a former gasoline station man. Sgt. Frank Milazzo, 22, is the son of John and Josephine Milazzo of 1515 N. Lorel av. He was the black bearded leader of several deep patrols at Guadalcanal. Tech. Sgt. Louis J. Lisiak, 27, 1013 N. Throop st., is the son of Nettie Lisiak.

Sgt. James P. McDonald, 28, of 3948 Lincoln av., Dalton, Ill., is the son of Richard McDonald. He won a silver star in Guadalcanal for recovering two machine guns whose crews had been knocked out by the Japs. Pvt. Kenneth E. Quam, 28, is the son of Frances Quam, 719 Austin av., Evanston. Tech. Sgt. Edward D. Hammer, 31, is the son of Edward Hammer, 8112 S. Eberhart av., Chicago. The sergeant's mother died a year ago last month after he had gone overseas. Sgt. Anton J. Prunckle, 32, of 10420 S. Maryland av., has a wife, Julia.

Tech. Sgt. Edwin C. Szczesny, 21, 1904 N. Lawndale av., is the son of William and Mary Szczesny. Pvt. Duke D. Monico, 31, 9551 Avenue N, is the husband of Lucy Monico, secretary to Cook County Superintendent of Schools Noble Puffer. Pvt. Chester Grzembski, 24, formerly lived at 8810 Exchange av., Chicago.

ILLINOIS GUARD OFFICERS FETED IN SOUTH PACIFIC

Members of Old 33d Division Guests.

A U. S. ARMY BASE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, March 5 [Delayed]—(AP).—Officers at this base who entered active army duty as members of the 33d division, Illinois national guard, when that unit was federally inducted on March 5, 1941, were entertained at a party and buffet supper by Lt. Col. John H. Russell, Bloomington, Ill., and the officers of the quartermaster battalion which he commands.

The party was in celebration of the beginning of the fourth year of active army service.

On Many Battle Fronts.

Toasts were made to the members of the old 33d division, many of whom are now fighting on all the battle fronts of the world. Present were:

Lt. Col. John H. Russell, Bloomington; Lt. Col. Frank M. Brown, Rock Island; Lt. Col. Julius Klein, 3172 Sheridan rd., Chicago; Lt. Col. Fred W. Rice, 803 N. Elmwood av., Oak Park; Lt. Col. Cyril L. Wolfhope, Pontiac; Maj. Harold N. Bowen, 518 S. Lyman av., Oak Park; Maj. J. B. Colegrove, 3991 Ellis av., Chicago; Maj. Elias F. Desens, 806 Ferdinand st., Forest Park; Maj. Edgar T. Drayson, Monmouth; Maj. H. G. Guttensohn, 1435 S. 15th av., Maywood.

Three Unable to Attend.

Also Capt. Otho K. Avery, Macomb; Capt. Phillip H. Edwards, Hillsboro; Capt. John A. McCallum, 550 Sherman av., Evanston; Capt. Henry A. Meyer Jr., 950 W. 50th st., Chicago; Capt. Bruce D. Moore, 7706 Essex, Chicago; Capt. Earl S. Sleeper, 841 Judson av., Evanston; Capt. Fred G. Weppler, Colfax; Lt. Anthony Ferrandina, 505 S. Trumbull av., Chicago; Lt. Earl E. Odal, 5217 Fulton st., Chicago; Warrant Officer [j. g.] Donald E. La Valle, 1622 N. Sawyer av., Chicago.

Stationed at this base, but unable to attend the party because of military duties were Maj. Paul H. Briggs, Galesburg; Capt. Frank A. Sandholm, Moline, and Lt. John W. Cowan, Rockford.

ZARIEF QUADS NAMED, PUT ON STANDARD DIET

Z-A-R-I-E-F is the last name. They are the quadruplets born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zarief here last Wednesday.

Names of the children were announced today following a hospital bulletin that they had been removed from their air-conditioned, oxygenated cribs, and placed on standard formula.

The quadruplets, born at the Sloane Hospital for Women, are in excellent health and their mother also is doing fine, hospital officials said.

So are the triplets, born yesterday to Corp. and Mrs. Herbert Bachant. Two of the Bachant babies also were removed from oxygenated cribs, but the smallest will remain until she can catch up with her sisters in weight.

FORESEES CHINA AS A DEMOCRACY AFTER WAR ENDS

China will be ready to organize a constitutional government of Democratic form one year after the war ends, Dr. Hu Shih, former Chinese ambassador to the United States, said last night in a lecture on the life of Sun Yat Sen before the Friends of the Library of the University of Chicago. He spoke in the James Henry Breasted hall of the Oriental Institute.

"The question I am asked most frequently about China," he said, "is: Are the Chinese ready to practice Democratic government?"

"Sun Yat Sen predicted three stages of national reconstruction for his country: 1. The military or revolutionary stage. 2. Political tutelage. 3. The constitutional government stage. China today is in the second stage, and will emerge as a practicing democracy a year after peace comes."

Seabee's Wife Saves All His Holidays for Return

Long Beach, Cal., March 31 (AP).—Ove Hoyer, chief carpenter's mate with the Seabees, arrived home today after a year in the South Pacific and found his wife had saved up all the celebrations he had missed. At home, when he arrived, were a Christmas tree complete with presents; a birthday cake with candles; a wedding anniversary gift, and a box of Valentine candy.

YANK JIVE AIRS GREET GENERAL VISITING INJURED

They Boost Morale, Wilson Is Told.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED FIELD HDQ., Algiers, March 31.—Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson, commander in chief of the Mediterranean forces, visited the American 79th station hospital today and was greeted by "jive" resounding thru the tented area from amplifiers connected to a radio. The general, intrigued by the riotous rhythms, was assured they boost the morale of the patients.

The general was accompanied by Col. Anthony J. Vedala of Denver, Colo., surgeon of the central district Mediterranean base section. He was conducted thru the hospital by Lt. Col. Edward N. Adams of Whitesboro, Ky., commanding officer, and Maj. Paul Doescher, 211 N. Elmwood av., Oak Park, Ill., executive officer.

'LISTING' URGED TO DRIVE 4-F'S INTO WAR JOBS

Draft Official Proposes Making Names Public.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 31.—Reporting that approximately 6 million men eventually will be classified in 4F, draft officials today outlined to congress a method of "moral suasion" to induce the great majority to work in war industries.

This new approach to the man power shortage problem was explained by Col. Francis V. Keesling, legislation representative of selective service, before the house military affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Costello [D., Cal.].

Local draft boards would survey their lists of those deferred for physical disabilities, Keesling said, and determine how many could hold down war jobs. These then would be listed publicly with stars beside the names of those employed in essential industries.

Others Would Be Inducted.

Those whose names lacked the stars would quickly get war jobs, Keesling contended, or face the alternative of induction into an army labor corps.

The subcommittee yesterday recommended that both administrative and legislation action be taken to channel 4F's into war factories or agriculture and to set up a surplus labor force under the army.

Rep. Sparkman [D., Ala.], a subcommittee member, said emphasis should be laid on the fact that the proposed army labor corps was a penalty to be held over the heads of those refusing to take a war job.

"Many men unfit for military service are anxious to get war jobs," Keesling said, "but don't know how to do it. The government's interagency committee could get a plant by plant survey of how many are needed in specific jobs. Then the draft boards should channel them into those jobs in their home towns."

The "Last Resort."

"These men, upward of 6 millions of them, are the last resort of man power in the current stringent situation."

New figures submitted by Keesling as of March 1 showed that 9,502,000 men have been inducted and enlisted. Of these 215,000 are fathers. In February alone the local boards shifted 1,147,000 fathers out of class 3-A, giving 525,000 deferments for occupational reasons. Of the remainder, 364,000 are liable to immediate induction, 45,000 are in essential farm groups, and 93,000 in class 4-F. Two-thirds of the 1,871,000 men now in class 1-A are fathers, he said.

The number of registrants deferred for occupational reasons, both in agriculture and industry, was increased by half a million in February and reached a new high of 5,399,000.

There were 3,623,000 classified as 4-F on March 1. Reclassification from 3-A, 1-A, and other sources will add more than 2 millions more, Keesling said.

CITY TO REMAIN CRITICAL LABOR AREA IN APRIL

The war man power commission will announce in Washington today that Chicago will remain in a No. 1 critical labor shortage classification during April, William H. Spencer, regional WMC director, indicated last night.

Spencer, who conferred by telephone with the national offices yesterday, said he expected no changes in existing classifications of cities in Illinois, Indiana, or Wisconsin. Chicago was placed in group 1 March 1, and since that time, Spencer said, labor shortages here have grown even more acute, due to the starting of work on contracts placed here before March 1.

"Not only have the railroads made new demands on the diminishing supply of workers, but manufacturing plants have told me they must have more men and women to complete their contracts on schedule," Spencer said.

OPA FIRES AID AFTER CHARGES OF WASTING GAS

Henry Rosenthal, an accountant who lives at 7002 Merrill av., was discharged yesterday as an investigator for the metropolitan office of price administration after it had been reported he had left the motor of his car running for several hours in front of a "no parking" sign at Franklin and Lake sts.

Paul A. H. Schults, OPA area director, said he fired Rosenthal "for the good of the service," after he had given the investigator a chance to resign earlier in the day.

Rosenthal was said by Policeman James Keller to have been away from his parked car for five or six hours, but a man who said he was a friend of Rosenthal had arrived and shut off the motor a short time before Rosenthal returned.

The child, a patient at Michael Reese hospital, has received 45 blood transfusions, Mrs. Felzer reported.

Ruled Mentally Ill After Violence in Dentist Chair

Anthony Jonaitis, 24, of 725 S. Jackson st., Waukegan, who became violent last Tuesday in a dentist's chair after three of his teeth had been extracted, was adjudged mentally ill yesterday by a commission of physicians in the Lake county court of Judge Perry L. Persons. The commission ordered Jonaitis confined to the Elgin state hospital.

81 SCHOOLS LOSE ARMY AIR CREW TRAINING JUNE 30

40,000 Students Are Affected.

Washington, D. C., March 31 (AP).—The army air forces announced today that it will terminate the air crew training program in 81 colleges June 30.

The action, the war department explained, affects only air crew students and does not concern the training of AAF personnel in other college programs, nor the army specialized training program, and the AAF ground crew training program. The army also is terminating contracts at 11 civilian flying schools, effective Aug. 4.

Affects 40,000 Students.

More than 40,000 students in the air crew training program will be withdrawn monthly on a quota basis between now and June 30. Students in college on June 30 will be assigned to air crew training at air fields in the AAF training command while awaiting pre-flight instructions.

The list of colleges where the training program will be discontinued includes:

Arizona—Arizona State Teachers college.
Colorado—University of Denver.
Idaho—College of Idaho.
Illinois—Augustana College and Theological seminary; James Millikin college; Knox college; Southern Illinois normal.
Indiana—Butler university.
Iowa—Coe college; Drake university; Iowa State Teachers college; Morningside college.
Kansas—Kansas State Teachers college.
Kentucky—Centre college; Western State Teachers college.
Missouri—Drury college; Rockhurst college; Southwest Missouri State Teachers college; University of Missouri; Washington university.
Montana—Montana State college; Montana State university.
Nebraska—Creighton university; Nebraska State Teachers college.
Ohio—Capitol university; Kent State university; Mount Union college; University of Cicinnati; University of Toledo; Xavier university; Wittenberg college.
Oklahoma—Eastern Central college; Northwestern State college; Oklahoma A. & M.; Oklahoma Baptist university; University of Tulsa.
Oregon—East Oregon College of Education.
Pennsylvania—University of Pittsburgh; Waynesburg college.
Texas — Austin college; Southwest Texas State Teachers college; Texas A. & M. college; Texas Technological; West Texas State Teachers college.
Utah—Branch Agricultural college.

Eliminate Flying Schools.

Brayton Flying Service, Cuero, Tex., Aug. 4; Spartan Aircraft company, Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 4; Hunter Flying Service, Vernon, Tex., Aug. 4; Allan Hancock College of Aeronautics, Santa Maria, Cal., June 27; Morton Air academy, Blythe, Cal., Aug. 4; Polaris Flight Academy, Inc., Lancaster, Cal., June 27.

MARGARET McUMBER.

Lansing, Mich., March 31 (AP).—A first degree murder charge was lodged formally today against James Riley Gillihan in the hatchet slaying of his stepdaughter, Margaret McUmber, 23.

J. R. Gillihan.

Prosecutor Victor C. Anderson said that Gillihan, 46, a war worker from Tennessee, told of marrying Margaret's mother, Ludma, 41, in order to be near the younger woman, and that he killed Margaret "in a fit of jealousy."

Margaret was found in the home yesterday with her head crushed from hatchet blows. Shortly afterward Gillihan surrendered at police headquarters.

"I had a jealous fit," Anderson said Gillihan confessed. Margaret's mother, employed at a war plant in Charlotte, returned home only weekends. Mrs. Gillihan, suffering shock, was taken to a hospital.

163 MILLION N. Y. FUNDS SURPLUS TOLD BY DEWEY

Albany, N. Y., March 31 [Special].—The state treasury surplus at the end of the current fiscal year, which ends at midnight tonight stands at 163 million dollars instead of the 148 millions estimated by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey last January. It is the largest surplus in the history of the state.

The 15 million dollar increase was disclosed today by the governor who said it will be locked up in the post-war reconstruction fund under a law enacted as part of his legislative program.

"All of the 163 million dollars will go into a great pool to provide jobs for war veterans and defense workers who may find themselves out of employment when peace comes," the governor said. The governor said 10 millions of the increase came about because certain state taxes produced greater revenues than he had estimated. The largest previous surplus was accumulated in the 1928-'29 fiscal year and reached within a few thousands of 100 million dollars.

THORPE GRANTED DIVORCE AFTER LURID HEARINGS

Los Angeles, Cal., March 31 [Special].—Superior Judge William B. McKesson today termed the marriage of Carlyle and Paula Stanway Thorpe a "marriage of convenience" as he granted a decree to the husband after a two-week contested hearing. The court terminated a $400 a month temporary alimony settlement, and denied Mrs. Thorpe's separate maintenance suit for $1,000 a month.

Thorpe, wealthy walnut grower and sportsman, charged his wife with adultery and extreme cruelty, and during the trial cited several instances of her asserted intimacies with other men.

DEMOCRATS ACT TO 'KILL' G. O. P. SENATE IN R. I.

Providence, R. I., March 31 (AP).—Rhode Island's Democratic house today passed an amendment which would abolish the state's Republican senate. The action by the house was the second act in a sarcastic exchange that started Wednesday when the senate passed an act to redistrict the house of representatives in accordance with the 1940 federal census. Tonight, with both branches just about even, the entire act and amendment had been referred to a purely technical conference committee which may never meet.

INDICT BREWSTER UNION CHIEF FOR FALSE SWEARING

Lied About Arrests, Says Grand Jury.

New York, March 31 (AP).—Thomas De Lorenzo, 35, president of local 365, United Automobile Workers [CIO], was indicted today by a federal grand jury on a charge of making false statements in an affidavit submitted in connection with his appointment to the labor panel of the national war labor board.

Tom De Lorenzo.

The indictment charged that De Lorenzo, whose local represents employes of the Brewster Aeronautical corporation's plant, asserted in an affidavit sworn to April 30, 1943, in connection with an application for federal employment, that he never had been arrested or indicted except for traffic violations in New York City.

Thomas F. Murphy, assistant chief of the criminal division of the United States attorney's office, said that De Lorenzo was arrested on March 15, 1933, in New York on a disorderly conduct charge; on Dec. 16, 1933, on a homicide-by-automobile charge; on July 7, 1941, in Hackensack, N. J., on charges of inciting a riot and malicious mischief.

Murphy said De Lorenzo was indicted on the latter charge.

Find Work Discrepancy.

He also was charged in the indictment with stating he had been employed from January, 1935, to July, 1939, by the Seversky Aircraft company as an assembler. The statement, the indictment set forth, was false in that he was never employed in any capacity by the Seversky organization.

De Lorenzo, whose residence was given as Long Island City, testified before a senate committee last November that he was born Harry Posner, used many aliases, including Tom De Lorenzo, James Harris, and Sid Trauris and that he legally had changed his name to De Lorenzo in 1940.

The union local president was reëlected to his position in February.

10 Year Term Possible.

Conviction on the charges in the indictment carries possible maximum punishment of 10 years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

De Lorenzo was called before the congressional subcommittee in the course of an investigation of Brewster's production which followed charges of mismanagement.

The house naval affairs committee ordered an investigation of the Brewster production situation last fall after Chairman Vinson [D., Ga.] charged the company had failed to deliver airplanes to the government "in anywhere near the quantity it should."

When De Lorenzo was called as a witness he admitted freely he had used a half dozen different names "when they came in handy," acknowledged he had lied about his 1940 income tax and his draft board record, and conceded "I will lie at all times in order to get a job and support myself."

OPA Sues to Enjoin Cafe Chain in Row Over Prices

The Chicago office of price administration yesterday filed a suit in federal District court asking an injunction to restrain the Stoner Commissaries, Inc., restaurant operators, from violating maximum price regulations.

TOUGHEST PART OF WAR AHEAD, NAVY MEN WARN

Backed up by Rear Admirals H. S. Kendall and Arthur S. Carpender, both of whom have fought in the South Pacific, Secretary of the Navy Knox yesterday again warned that the war is far from won and that the greatest fighting and sacrifices lie ahead.

All three men spoke before the members of the State Street council in the Palmer House, with Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly at the speakers' table.

"Don't assume the game is over—it isn't," Adm. Kendall warned. "You're all familiar with baseball or football and you know that the game is never over until the last man is out or the last gun cracks. I say this because on my return after two years in the South Pacific I sense everywhere a feeling of apathy and relaxation, which must be changed."

Praises Midwest Men.

Adm. Carpender, now in command of the 9th naval district at Great Lakes, said: "I am glad to be back here, for it is from this area that the main portion of the men and material for this war are drawn. And they must keep going until the Japs are completely crushed. If we let up, that job will not be done. We must give our maximum effort to bring the war to a successful conclusion."

Secretary Knox told how the navy had been built up from about 160,000 men and 8,000 officers to a vast force of more than 3 million. He said the quick conversion of this number of men, mostly from inland areas, into seamen and officers was the most notable feature of the war.

Points to Sub Successes.

Every day, he said, crews must be ready for 12 new ships coming off the ways. And the American navy now, he declared, is the greatest and most powerful the world ever has seen.

He told of the battle to beat the German submarine menace, adding: "But we beat it. This last month we sank more submarines than they sank of our ships. On the other hand, our navy's most constructive blows against the Japanese sea power have been from our own submarine fleet."

"Nix, lady. I want a bowl of Wheaties!"

Apparently there's no substitute for that famous "Breakfast of Champions." Once you've tasted Wheaties "second helping" flavor, you'll understand why. Build your breakfast around fruit, milk and a bowlful of Wheaties—America's favorite whole wheat flakes.

"I guess she's afraid she'll run over five minutes on Long Distance."

SO THIS IS PARADISE.

Exactly what was said about it in the Costello household never has been disclosed, but Jack was less than a welcome suitor in the eyes of the mother and father of the girl who now occupied his dreams.

Barrymore, playing love scene on the motion picture stages with Dolores, was sly enough to insist that these photographic moments be repeated more times than were at all necessary. The burning emphasis of his love managed to enhance the mood of the scenario, a result that does not always obtain, either on the stage or in the films.

Indeed, Jack himself maintained that actors in love usually play unconvincing performances opposite each other. "The trouble with impassioned wretches of the theater," he said, "is that their pale faces and throbbing temples mislead an audience to believe that ptomaine poisoning has just set in, and that the next line will be: 'Is there a physician in the house?'"

His love-making in "The Sea Beast" refuted his own theories in respect to professional romantics. Dolores' part was not pitched in a major key, yet her actual love for Jack was so like the bright spring—and it was her own springtime of beauty and of life—that the role seemed important beyond its genuine dimensions. They won each other, and "The Sea Beast" won the love of the world.

He seemed young and he looked young, yet Jack was 43 years old when he met Dolores. She was in her 20s. Barrymore said that it was her naturalness, her childlikeness, that appealed so strongly to his heart. She seemed to fill his need for expressing paternal as well as romantic love.

He was incredibly happy with her, but the fact that he was expected to be secretive about the romance annoyed him. There was the technical obstacle of his marriage tie to Michael Strange. They had been legally separated but not divorced. The studio was guarding against scandalous implications being read into publicity touching upon the eminent actor and the young actress.

When "The Sea Beast" was completed, Barrymore began a second picture under his Warner Brothers' contract, "Don Juan." Mary Astor, the leading lady for that photoplay, had been chosen and approved by Jack before he had met Dolores. The studio refused to make a change in its plan, altho Barrymore tried to place Dolores in the cast.

Early in October of 1925, when Jack was calling on Miss Astor at her home in Temple Hill drive, he met two persons who were to become closely associated with him during the 10 best years of his Hollywood career. They were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hotchener.

Hotchener, a person of experience in both business and cultural pursuits, was a calm-mannered gentleman whose pleasant exterior, when scratched too rudely, disclosed steel beneath the surface. Several long-time exploiters of Barrymore's money-ignorance and carefree ways were to learn that Jack's new friend and counselor was a Marshal Foch, traveling incognito. He introduced a new word into the Barrymore lexicon, the word "no."

Both Helios and Henry had lived much in India. This fact alone would explain why Barrymore at once was drawn to them. His father had been born in India, and Jack always had been interested in that land of ancient culture.

There were two things on Jack's mind—other than Dolores—the night he met the Hotcheners. One was India and the latest news on reincarnation. The other was a materialistic problem expressed by his question: "Hotchener, do you know anything at all about the damned income tax?"

Hotchener knew a great deal about the income tax. He volunteered to examine Jack's return, a matter into which the governmental sleuths had entered with no sense of humor whatsoever. The bureau of internal revenue, it seemed, wanted something more business-like from Taxpayer Barrymore than a series of explanations drawn from "Alice in Wonderland."

Jack invited the Hotcheners to lunch at his Ambassador bungalow the next day. Henry found Barrymore's income tax the least garbled of the actor's business affairs. Jack didn't even know the name of the manager of the New York bank that was receiving his money. His huge pay checks were being sent by the Warner Brothers directly to his New York attorney. His two alimony obligations and other current fixed dues were being paid out of this account. He hadn't the slightest idea as to how much money he had in the bank. He never kept statements or memoranda from business firms. When Hotchener finally had the papers forwarded from New York to California, he pointed out that Jack had more than $100,000 in his checking account, and was receiving no interest on this sum.

One day in March, 1926, and when the income tax bogey man again was sitting at Barrymore's door, it dawned on Jack that Henry was doing an enormous service for him, free.

"Hank," he cried, "take over! Manage me."

For the first time in his life he now enjoyed financial elbow room for the carrying into execution of his grand plans. He wanted very much to own a yacht, not as an evidence of growing wealth, nor for the sake of luxurious ease, but for the adventurous escape from a convention-bound world. Meantime he chartered an 80 foot cabin cruiser from Producer Hal Roach, together with its captain and a crew of five men.

Barrymore now professed a foreboding that, were he to win a final freedom from Michael Strange by divorce, then marry Dolores, their love somehow might languish. He said he actually was afraid of marriage, believing that for him a dark spell lay upon the institution. He wished to go to some remote place to think things out, appraise himself in relation to his great new love, and at the same time decide how best to ward off the antagonism of Dolores' parents.

Jack sailed away aboard the Gypsy upon what he termed "a quest for myself." He steered a coastwise course for the southern tip of the Mexican peninsula of Lower California.

FEDERAL AGENTS PROBE EX-MAYOR THOMPSON CASH

Revenue Bureau Scans Tax Possibilities.

The federal income tax office and secret service agents yesterday began investigations into the currency cache of $1,466,250 found Thursday in two safety deposit boxes of the late William Hale [Big Bill] Thompson, former Chicago mayor. Besides the currency, stocks and securities worth about $20,000 also were found.

The money, in bills of $50, $100, $500, and $1,000 denominations, included $36,000 in gold certificates that had been recalled by the government, which fixed a criminal penalty for retention.

E. C. Wright, in charge of the internal revenue department here, said that an investigation would be started to determine whether proper income tax payments had been paid by the former mayor. Capt. Thomas E. Callaghan of the federal secret service said that the gold certificates would be picked up by the government and redeemed with legal currency.

Mystery Surrounds Hoard.

Considerable mystery was attached during the day to the source of the large hoard found in Thompson's deposit boxes in the American National Bank and Trust company at 33 N. La Salle st. There also was much speculation as to why the former mayor kept the bulk of his wealth in cash.

James W. Breen, who was Thompson's personal attorney, said that additional assets would probably be found in three more safety deposit boxes to be opened Monday. One is in First National bank and another in National Boulevard bank, 400 N. Michigan av.

One rumor current was that, after a judgment of $2,245,604 was entered against Thompson and nine others in the real estate expert fees case in the Circuit court, associates of the former mayor contributed to a fund to cover the judgment. Altho the Supreme court reversed the judgment, it was hinted the money was kept to protect against further suits. Atty. Breen said that the rumor was fantastic.

Fees Suit Filed by The Tribune.

The real estate fees case was filed by THE TRIBUNE in behalf of taxpayers and the judgment was entered by Judge Hugo M. Friend in June, 1928. The high court reversed the decision in 1930. It was alleged that Thompson and the others conspired to collect excessive expert fees for the appraisal of real estate purchased by the city for improvements.

Atty. Breen, in filing a petition for administration of the estate a week ago, had estimated the former mayor's estate at $150,000, consisting mostly of real estate.

Father's Estate $200,000.

Probate records disclosed that William Hale Thompson Sr., who died in 1891, had left an estate valued at $200,000, nearly all in real estate. Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze, the former mayor's sister, said that the family estate had never been divided and was still in probate. Profits from the estate, she said, were divided equally among four children, including herself. She said that the property now was valued at about the $200,000 figure.

Close associates of the late mayor said that he was a millionaire when he was elected mayor for the first time in 1915 and had an income of close to $30,000 or $40,000 a year.

Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, who served as alderman when Thompson was mayor, said an investigation of gas and electric rates at the time disclosed the mayor owned $100,000 in Commonwealth Edison company stock. He was elected mayor again in 1919 and 1927.

RED CROSS PAST HALFWAY MARK, BIG TASK AHEAD

Leader Ask Double Gifts This Year.

The 1944 Red Cross war fund drive in the Chicago chapter area has passed the half way mark, with pledges of $6,100,315, against a quota of 12 million dollars, it was announced last night at a dinner meeting of the chairmen of 67 industrial and 10 governmental agency groups in the Stevens hotel.

However, the time has not yet come when efforts can be relaxed, Martin H. Kennelly, campaign chairman, warned. "While we should feel heartened by the response," he said, "the most difficult part will be the last half."

Double Contribution Urged.

Both Kennelly and James B. Forgan, chairman of the Red Cross Chicago chapter area, stressed the need for additional funds this year because of the expansion in the armed services and because of the demands that the invasion year of 1944 may put upon the organization. Give double the contribution of last year, was Kennelly's plea.

Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of the People's church and guest speaker at the dinner, characterized the Red Cross as "the organized mercy of the world." He saw in the good will and the international coöperation that it represents hopeful signs of an era of peace and brotherhood in the future.

Dr. Bradley Praises Cause.

Emphasizing the dignity and nobility of contributing to a cause as worthy as that of the Red Cross, he said that the reaction of a person to suffering and human need was an excellent index to his character.

He was not sanguine about an early end to the war and suggested that our troops might be in Tokio before they were in Berlin. He said he was confident that the "unconditional surrender" formula applied only to the vicious leaders of the enemy peoples and that an armistice would follow within 24 hours if other elements within the hostile countries could form governments that would command the allies' respect.

WPB AID IN CITY FOR FILTRATION PLANT SURVEY

Arthur E. Gorman, chief engineer of the water section of the war production board, arrived from Washington yesterday and inspected the 23 million dollar water filtration plant at 79th st. and the lake to determine what is needed to complete the project.

The huge plant, nearly two-thirds finished, is designed to supply pure drinking water to 1,500,000 residents of the south side who now are compelled to use heavily chlorinated water contaminated by the wastes of northern Indiana industries.

Two days ago the WPB and the war man power commission backed down in their refusal to authorize the use of labor and material for work on the water filtration section.

Gorman conferred with City Engineer De Berard and John R. Baylis, city water purification engineer, then inspected the 79th st. works. He declined to say positively whether Chicago would be granted the necessary priorities.

By fall, water that is 70 per cent free of bacteria will be serviced. If all priorities are obtained the plant will be in 100 per cent operation in two years.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with queries.]

P. C. B. writes: "I was married in March, 1942. My wife left me the following July. I haven't lived with her since. In December, 1943, I was inducted into the army and went in as a single man, not wanting my wife to get the allotments after acting the way she did. She found out I was in the army and put in for the allotments anyhow. I tried to get a divorce from her before I went into the army but couldn't make it, but a few months ago she agreed to give me a divorce, but, sir, I find I have to be in a certain place for so long before I can start action. But the worst of the whole thing is the lawyer bill—I just can't afford it on $21 per month as a private. What I want to know is, is there some means by which the army or government helps in things like this?"

ANSWER: Yes, both the army and the government will help you out. The army has completed the establishment of a personal affairs division in each of the service commands and has also established field offices and officers at all camps, posts, and stations. The personal affairs divisions are concerned "with dispensing information and assistance to men in the army about problems pertaining to emergency financial aid, allowances, arrears in pay, war bonds, insurance, pensions, legal assistance, employment, vocational rehabilitation, hospitalization, housing facilities, and personal effects, etc." Therefore it is suggested you take your problem to the proper officer at your camp or headquarters and every assistance will be given you—even to the point of getting a lawyer for you so you can get your divorce.

A. W. K. writes: "I have been mailing magazines and reading matter to my nephew stationed in England. The boys very seldom receive magazines. They need reading matter. Last week my envelope with the magazines inclosed was returned to me with the following notation of the postoffice, 'Returned to sender—dispatch prohibited by order No. 19687.' What is the meaning of this? Aren't our boys allowed any more reading matter?"

ANSWER: Copies of newspapers and magazines will be accepted by postoffices from the public, either singly or in a quantity when presented in response to a specific request from service men. When such material is mailed to personnel overseas it may be sent at the transient second class rate of 1 cent for each 2 ounces or less or for the parcel post rate, which is lower. Parcels of such material must not be more than 15 inches in length or more than 36 inches in length and girth combined, nor more than 5 pounds in weight. Parcels must be indorsed, "Mailed in Response to Specific Request." The mailer must present a request from the service man with each package mailed.

T. T. C. writes: "My local board in Chicago is calling everybody strictly by order number. I read or heard definite categories were being called, but they say I am wrong."

ANSWER: Paragraph 4 of state memo. No. 777, March 25, says: "The local board shall fill its calls for preinduction physical examinations from the following groups, in the order given: [1] volunteers, [2] registrants under 26 classified in class II-A and II-B, [3] nonfathers, and [4] fathers." The actual induction calls will be filled, as far as possible as follows: Volunteers, nonfathers, and fathers "shall be ordered to report for induction in sequence of their order numbers."

OBITUARIES

John Matlocha.

John Matlocha, 64, editor and publisher of two Czecho-Slovakian newspapers in Chicago, died yesterday in Oak Forest hospital of injuries sustained recently when he was struck by a car in front of his home at 14624 McKinley av., Posen. He was one of the owners of the Mally Press, Printers and Binders company. He leaves his widow, Mary, and three daughters. Services will be held Tuesday afternoon in the Bohemian National cemetery chapel.

Dr. Frank J. Berger.

Dr. Frank J. Berger, 86, a physician and surgeon in Chicago since 1901, died yesterday in American hospital. He resided at 3557 Southport av. Before he became a physician he was a pharmacist, and operated drug stores from 1878 to 1902. He is survived by two sons, Walker W. and Arthur W., of Seward, Neb., and a daughter, Mrs. Lee Partridge of Chicago. Services will be held Monday at 3 p. m. in the chapel at 5501 N. Ashland av.

Christ W. Gunther.

Services for Christ W. Gunther, 84, a retired farmer who lived at 1415 Crain st., Evanston, will be held in the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Evanston at 2 p. m. Monday. He died Thursday in St. Francis hospital of injuries suffered when he fell in his home Christmas eve. He is survived by his widow, Sophia, a son, Albert, with whom he lived, and a daughter, Mrs. Elsie Meyer of Gurnee, Ill.

Joseph J. Carmody.

Joseph J. Carmody, 69, who retired two weeks ago after 25 years as head guard at the Bridewell, died yesterday in St. Anthony's hospital. Mr. Carmody, who lived at 3915 W. 62d st., had been a guard for 40 years. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Bernice Bessette. Services will be held Monday at 9 a. m. from the chapel at 3604 Ogden av. to the Epiphany Catholic church, 2524 S. Keeler av.

Mrs. Winifred G. Long.

Mrs. Winifred Goodsmith Long, 54, former dean of women and former member of the board of trustees of Northwestern university, died yesterday in Youngstown, O. She was the wife of Arthur M. Long, sales executive of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company. Services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday in Rosehill cemetery chapel.

CHICAGO GETS TEXAS ONIONS AT FANCY PRICE

Onions were available in Chicago yesterday—at fancy prices. A carload from Texas, the first of the 1944 crop, reached the South Water market and dealers enjoyed a holiday because the office of price administration had not got around to setting a ceiling price.

The onions were described as of poor quality but went quickly at wholesale prices of from $7.50 to $8 for a 50 pound bag. Under the 35 to 40 per cent markup allowed retailers, the onions were available at prices ranging from 20 to 22 cents a pound. Latest retail ceiling price on dry medium onions from the 1943 crop, which is almost exhausted, was three pounds for 24 cents.

Wholesalers said there had been almost no onions in the market for the last six weeks and that there had been a general shortage all winter. They were anxious to get into the market but many followed a "hands off" policy because they feared the OPA would set maximum prices while the onions were in their stocks.

A ROBIN WOOS OR FIGHTS ITS IMAGE 5 DAYS

A spring robin yesterday rounded out its fifth day of concentrated effort to establish contact with the reflection of itself in the basement window of the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Lucius, 7016 Constance av.

Since Monday, the bird has been alternately preening itself and casting its weight against the window pane. Early in the week, these attempts were regarded as suicidal by the Luciuses, who sought to head off the onslaught by blacking out the window with newspaper. The robin, tho, found another basement window, and resumed activities.

Mrs. Lucius said the robin's behavior had been a great source of wonder to its fellows, who have gathered in nearby trees to watch proceedings. She has been unable to determine whether the bird is trying to woo or wollop the reflection it sees. She gives it strength for either enterprise by regular feedings of bread crumbs and raisins.

3 HELD TO JURY IN LIQUOR THEFT HIJACKING HOAX

Three men arrested on charges of larceny in connection with a fake hijacking of $5,000 worth of whisky were held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge John R. McSweeney in Boys' court when they entered pleas of guilty. The defendants are: Hyman Brodofsky, 25, of 3229 Evergreen av.; Frank DeMarie, 19, of 901 S. Oakley av., and Alfred Mazzocchi, 21, of 3532 Van Buren st. Brodofsky, a truck driver, first reported he had been held up by five Negroes who stole his truck and its contents. Later he confessed taking the liquor, and named his accomplices.

SANITARY BOARD SEEKS REDUCED CHANNEL TAXES

Asks Valuation Cut in Will County.

The Chicago Sanitary district has decided not to fight a state Supreme court ruling last week that it must pay taxes to Will county on land that forms the sanitary channel bed in Will county, but will seek to have the valuation of the land reduced from approximately $400 an acre, Atty. Ernest Buehler said yesterday.

Charges Excessive Valuation.

Farm land adjoining the channel is valued at only $100 an acre and some unproductive land at less, Buehler said. "It is evident," he added, "that $400 an acre for land under water is excessive."

The attorney said he will file a petition for reassessment with the Will county board of review. He will argue, he said, that the land can not be taxed as part of the district's electric power plant at Lockport because taxes are assessed against the plant separately and cover the whole property.

Last Payment $18,000.

The district for years has paid taxes on the channel bed. The last annual payment was $18,000. The Supreme court suit was brought by the district on grounds that the channel is part of the lakes to gulf waterway and tax exempt because it is public property.

The channel is 168 feet wide most of its length, engineers reported, and extends six miles in Lockport township and two and one-quarter miles in Du Page township. The total area is 168 acres.

CHICAGO'S SIXTH NAVY RADIO UNIT WILL OPEN MAY 1

Plans for converting the naval air technical training center at Navy pier into a naval training school, radio material, were announced yesterday by Vice Adm. Randall Jacobs, chief of naval personnel, in Washington. The transfer will be made around May 1.

Capt. E. A. Wolleson, who has been the commanding officer of the technical training center at the pier, will be in command of the new school.

The conversion reflects the navy's need for training increasing numbers of radio technicians to join the fleet, it was announced. Establishment of this material school at the pier will give the navy six schools in Chicago training radio technicians.

Aviation machinists and metalsmiths, until now trained at Navy pier, will get their training at the centers at 87th st. and Hoyne av., Chicago; Jacksonville, Fla.; Memphis, Tenn.; Norman, Okla., and Corpus Christi, Tex. Instructors and technicians heretofore assigned to Navy pier will be transferred to other training centers.

COUNTY'S MARCH MARRIAGE TOTAL IS 124 BELOW 1943

Michael J. Flynn, county clerk, reported yesterday that 2,819 marriage licenses were issued in Cook county last month, 124 fewer than the 2,943 issued in March last year.

In the first three months of this year, 8,882 marriage licenses have been issued, compared with 9,023 for the first quarter of 1943. Flynn said 40,998 were issued in all of last year.

"We may never again reach the 1941 all time high of 48,317," he said, "but our monthly totals are still high compared with the months of the pre-war years."

9 ARMY FLYERS KILLED IN CRASH OF 2 BOMBERS

Liberal, Kas., March 31 (AP).—Two four engine army bombers from the Liberal army air base collided and crashed 10 miles east of Laverne, Okla., early today, killing all nine men aboard, the public relations officer announced.

The dead included: 2d Lt. Blanchard J. Horne, 20, son of Mrs. Blanchard J. Horne, 504 W. 8th. st., Anderson, Ind.

Truck, Street Car Collide; 500 Gallons of Oil Lost

Five hundred gallons of fuel oil were spilled at Ashland av. and Fulton st. yesterday when an oil truck driven by Max Tashman, 39, of 1112 N. Christiana av., collided with a street car. Firemen flushed the oil down sewers.

WHEN COLDS AND CONSTIPATION

STRIKE TOGETHER—TAKE THIS FAST-ACTING LAXATIVE

When Colds are accompanied by headaches and acute constipation, you feel miserable all over. When a laxative is needed, trust Pluto Water. Although PLUTO works swiftly, it works by gentle osmosis, creating fluid bulk in the colon, flushing digestive waste, usually within an hour. Pluto is a concentrated, fortified and scientifically stabilized saline mineral water with all minerals and salts in complete solution. It passes through the stomach without disturbing its function, is not absorbed, and acts in the colon where physicians want a laxative to act. Try Pluto now! Caution—Use only as directed on label. You must get refreshing, comforting relief in one hour or your money back. In 25c and 50c economy bottles, also 10c size. French Lick Springs Hotel Co., French Lick, Indiana.

U. S. JURY INDICTS FIVE ON GASOLINE CONSPIRACY CHARGE

The federal grand jury yesterday returned an indictment before Judge John P. Barnes charging five men with conspiring to defraud the government by illegally engaging in the purchase and sale of coupons for more than 60,000 gallons of gasoline.

At the same time, United States Atty. J. Albert Woll announced that the April grand jury, which will be sworn in early next week, will explore more widely gasoline black market operations in this area.

Those named in the indictment—first on the charge to be returned here—were Sam Beer, former owner of the tavern at 506 N. Michigan av.; Sam Brancato, 1815 Burling st., a service station operator; Joseph Leight, 3519 Pine Grove av., said to be a handbook operator; Philip Packer, 5240 Sheridan rd., owner of a cigar store and pool room at 1130 Argyle st., and Ralph Adamczyk of Cudahy, Wis.

Since their arrest a month ago all have been at liberty on bond set by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

MRS. TOBIN, 80, BAHA'I LEADER FOR YEARS, DIES

Mrs. Esther Tobin, 80, who donated the cornerstone for the Baha'i house of worship in Wilmette, died yesterday in her home, 2921 N. Halsted st., after an illness of four years. She is survived by two sons, John and Harold, both employed in the press room of THE TRIBUNE.

She was one of the city's first members of the Baha'i faith, which was introduced in Chicago in 1893. When Abdul Baha, son of the founder of the faith, came here from Persia in 1912 to dedicate the ground for the new temple, Mrs. Tobin provided the ceremonial stone.

Baha'i funeral services will be held in the home tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, and a second service will be conducted Monday at 2 p. m.

JOSEPH GALVIN LEAVES ESTATE TO HIS FAMILY

The will of Joseph Galvin, radio manufacturer, leaving an estate valued in excess of $100,000, was filed yesterday with Frank Lyman, clerk of Probate court, by Atty. Charles E. Green. Half the estate is left to Galvin's widow, Myrtle, and the other half to their children, Mary, Thomas, and Patricia. Mr. Galvin, who was 44, died March 7 in his home at 1035 Forest av., Oak Park. He was vice president of the Galvin Manufacturing corporation, and a brother of Paul V. Galvin, president, whose wife, Lillian, and her maid were mysteriously murdered in their Evanston home Oct. 22, 1942.

3 WILL INHERIT CHARLES KELLY $467,882 ESTATE

A tax appraisal filed yesterday in County court showed that Charles Kelly, 1321 E. 56th st., a retired stock dealer, who died June 5, 1943, aged 77, left an estate of $467,882. Federal estate taxes were estimated at $115,000, and Illinois inheritance taxes at $22,005. Mr. Kelly was a bachelor. Principal beneficiaries of his estate are two nephews and a niece, Carl D. Kelly, 35 Indian Hill rd., Winnetka; Thomas L. Kelly, 237 E. Delaware pl., and Mrs. Lena Bastien, 2430 Lake View av.

COLORADO MAN AWARDED TITLE OF WHEAT KING

Wheat king of the nation is Leo Lindstrom, Sterling, Col. This title was conferred yesterday by three judges when they held Lindstrom's grain best in the annual Pillsbury contest to select the finest samples of wheat grown in the country.

The sample sent in by Lindstrom was a No. 1, dark hard winter wheat of the Tenmarq variety. This is the second year in succession in which the first award has gone to a Logan county [Col.] farmer, proving it one of the best wheat growing sections in the nation, the judges said.

Reserve championship went to a sample of heavy dark spring wheat submitted by Peter Schirrick of Red Lake Falls, Minn. There were 26 samples entered in the contest. Judges were professors from the University of Illinois, University of Minnesota, and Kansas state agricultural college.

TAVERN OWNER SEIZED; WHISKY IS CONFISCATED

Agents of the federal alcohol tax unit working under Ralph E. Herrick, acting district supervisor, yesterday announced the arrest of Thomas H. Runyan, a tavern owner in Savannah, on charges of violation of the internal revenue code. The agents also seized 250 cases of whisky. Herrick said transactions involving large quantities of whisky had been handled by the tavern owner despite the fact that he possessed only a retailer's tax stamp. The liquor, which agents said was sold at prices in excess of ceilings, was believed to have found its way into Iowa's black market. Runyan will be arraigned before a United States commission in Rockford this morning.

Some of the Toppers Chicago Women Obtained in Making Record Purchases on State St. Yesterday

Chicago women, who rang up a record for hat purchases in State st. stores yesterday, indicated a preference for such hats as these. Left to right: (1) Natural straw, which hugs the head and shoots upward slightly. It's the familiar off-the-face hat, etched in stiffened black veiling. (2) This is the hat sequel to the popular side drape dress. Less than a half hat, it droops black lilacs over one ear, ignores the other, and presents a concentration of pale pink posies front and center. (3) This is the time honored beret, making a return in felt and organdy. (4) A kind of sailor, this is one of the styles that the average woman likes, because it is so variable and wearable. This one features a trim of gay fuchsia plaid. The gloves, long and colorful, duplicate the hat's trim.

Barbara Wakeley Will Be Wed to Edward A. Wheeler May 20

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHEN Miss Barbara Wakeley is married on May 20 to Edward Anderson Wheeler, she will be walking without the aid of crutches or cane for the first time in many weeks. Miss Wakeley, an ardent skier and ice boater, survived those rigorous winter sports without coming to harm, but slipped and suffered a broken leg when merely playing in the snow.

The cast she has worn for the last six weeks won't come off for another three, and even after she returns from Vassar college on April 19 to prepare for her wedding she will spend additional weeks using first crutches and then a cane. The evening wedding and reception will take place in the south side home of the bride's grandfather, Harry A. Wheeler, where her parents, the Arthur W. Wakeleys of Kenilworth, also were married.

Mr. Wheeler's sister, Mrs. Albert Mac Leod; his stepsister, Miss Barbara Blankenhorn, and the bride's cousin, Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, all will be coming from Pasadena, Cal., to be in the bridal party, Miss Wheeler as maid of honor. Also on the list of attendants are another cousin of the bride, Miss Natalie Wakeley of Kenilworth, and three Vassar classmates, Miss Judy Adams of Chicago, Miss Dorothy Scott of Short Hills, N. J., and Miss Mary Lee Hewitt of New York. Mr. Wheeler, son of Mrs. Louis McLaughlin Blankenhorn of Pasadena and of the late Harold Sayre Wheeler of Tacoma, Wash., already has bought a house in Wilmette, where he and his bride will live.

Today's Weddings.

Only members of the family will attend the marriage of Miss Jean Wolcott and Petty Officer Ezra Pugh of the navy at 4:30 p. m. today in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ryland A. Wolcott of Winnetka. Here for the ceremony and reception are the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Chauncey Ezra Pugh of New York; his sister, Martha, who will be a bridesmaid with the bride's younger sister, Katrina; his aunt, Mrs. Daniel Pugh of Utica, N. Y.; the bride's grandmother and uncle and aunt, Mrs. Eben Wolcott and the Roger Wolcotts of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Craft of Rochelle, Ill.

Lt. [j.g.] Nancy McKeown [Mrs. Scott McKeown] of the SPARS has come from Seattle, Wash., to be her sister's matron of honor, and James Crocker Pugh of the navy V-12 program at the University of Oklahoma will serve as best man for his brother. After a brief trip Mr. Pugh and his bride will live in Evanston.

In a candlelight ceremony at 8:30 o'clock tonight in St. Chrysostom's church, Miss Cherry Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hull Smith Jr., of Los Altos, Cal., formerly of La Grange, will become the bride of William Kerry Curtis, first class petty officer of the naval re-

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

It's the Little Things.

It's the little things that move you. Not a world at war and the bright, beautiful promise of youth broken. You don't let yourself think of that . . . but you cry over "Lassie Comes Home" and weep like a fool over the last line of "Good Night, Sweet Prince."

You can't let your mind stray to an invasion but your blood runs cold when you see a rush hour crowd standing beside a crumpled body of some one who crossed a street too hurriedly. You don't talk much of Eisenhower, but you keep remembering the sweet mother whose windows are opposite yours . . . and how she smiles when she speaks of her son tho beads of perspiration dot her forehead.

You notice, as if a searchlight played upon them, all the little things about your friends: The former career girl who makes no fuss over a pretty house dismantled, or furniture for sale, but speaks happily of Trigger, the playful spaniel contented in his new home. . . . You notice your cousin, returning each night to an empty apartment, complaining only that the cleaning man charges extra when he brings his lunch—but what about her husband . . . and how does she feel about his going overseas?

Crowding Your Mind.

You crowd your mind with small incidents—the recollection of Smitty, the neighbor boy who studied his lessons in your home and now returns from distant lands with lessons you could never fathom. . . . You listen to his tales of generals he has flown . . . and what he said to Bob Hope . . . and what Bob Hope said to him. . . . You notice the secretary in your office who bids her bridegroom a tearless good-by—then goes to pieces because she breaks an enameled finger nail.

You watch the scrub woman in the office the night you work late and you wonder what's in her mind and then see her go thru the waste baskets for canceled stamps for her child: "I like to take him some little thing" she explains. . . .

Trivia.

You write of trivialities when you type a letter to a reader who uproots your heart: She wants to give her husband's returned Christmas gifts [now arriving from overseas] to some one.

It's the little things that possess you. . . . The lad on Jackson blvd. with his shabby duffle bag—on his way. . . . The chap with your company, leaving a fine job, amusing himself his last few civilian days with a one-man crusade against bumptiousness . . . doing all manner of incredible things to those who take more than their share of train seats, etc. . . . having the "time of his life." . . . You laugh over each silly episode he recounts, but you know in your heart what he's doing . . . he's crowding his mind with little things.

Flower Drenched Hats Popular in Shopping Rush to Avoid Tax

BY JEANNE McCARTHY.

Chicago women shopped in earnest yesterday for their Easter bonnets. The items they took home with them were described as fabulous in color, contour, and cost.

Lured to State st., in a last minute effort to beat the new "luxury" tax, which went into effect at 12:01 today, the women also purchased unprecedented quantities of perfumes, other cosmetics, and enough furs to make salesmen hail the day as a banner one, considering that it was March and Friday, both normally unfriendly to the fur trade.

The women paid as much as $49.50 for a hat as small as a demi-tasse saucer. One saleswoman reported that a customer spent a $40 war plant check on a shocking-pink sailor hat, livid with roses the color of unripe tomatoes and grapes in a color alien to grapes, and topped by a bit of veiling that didn't match either.

Another purchaser indicated a preference for a number named, "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree." This was pink, and wide, and dripped stiffened, bunched horsehair. Another popular edition took its cue from the side-drape dress, clustering lush black lilacs on one side of the head, and ignoring the other completely.

The women were intrigued by the cloches—hats with closeness, height, and brim. These were popular in a myriad of colors, most of them highlighted with flowers or fruit. One exotic presentation was of the half-hat variety, made almost entirely of plastic. Small amber colored discs, threaded over the tiny thing, sloped down over one ear. The women gave lip service to this number, but didn't expend much money on it. Saleswomen explained that it required more regular features than most of the hat buyers were wearing yesterday.

The Chinese influence reared its head in a coolie model of natural straw that boasted a snood of lotus blossoms. There were scores of berets, and variations on them, and one designer thrust into the market a large floppy black one that combined black felt with organdy.

Many of the hats, especially the variations on the sailor type, were lavishly covered with ribbons, the kind that used to come around the necks of chocolate Easter bunnies, who have become war casualties. The small, close fitting, flower drenched hat hogged the spotlight, but there was everything from the familiar reversed flower pots, to things that looked like chopped off stocking caps.

Thru the Looking Glass

How about treating yourself to a facial at your favorite beauty salon? If you don't indulge in them regularly or have never had one, then we'd say that now is the time to plunge. It will be a wonderful spring tonic and you'll like the effect it will have on both your complexion and your spirits.

Along about this time of the year some of us get to feeling a little dragged out and our faces show the unhappy effects of winter time's rough wear. The sad state of the skin can be discouraging to contemplate, and often we don't feel quite equal to the task of banishing the dry, muddy look it bears.

That's the time to hie yourself off to the beauty shop and let the expert ministrations of your favorite beauty operator help restore the skin to a semblance of its normal self while you relax in comfort. You'll be pleasantly surprised at how much can be done in a short time with expert care to bring the complexion to a pretty softness and clarity.

The dingy, tired look that was so dispiriting to see will be practically chased away and you'll want to race out and buy the frilly Easter bonnet you didn't feel up to beforehand.

It's true that a single facial is not a cure-all for skin troubles, but we'll promise that it will do an unbelievable job in making you look and feel better and brighter.

Cotton Stockings Sans Seams Are Magic for Slender Ankles

BY REA SEEGER.

The care and treatment of cotton stockings is almost as important as the involved rules for the care of leather and books. Just because most of the available hosiery these days is made of cotton, it's a heedless shopper who values such important accessories casually. And it's a wise shopper who buys three pairs, matched, at a time, for if one goes the way of all sheer stockings, up a run, there are still five left with which to match for a perfect pair.

Most of the present supplies of cotton are quickly dried in 12 hours, but the smartest routine is rotation of the three pairs to even wear. You'll be surprised how long you can wear three pairs of thin cotton hosiery if you will rotate the six. This also means that a longer period of drying is possible, thereby evading the danger of wearing a pair that isn't sufficiently dry. If you are the lucky owner of either silk or fast vanishing nylon, the same rules should be followed precisely.

This is anything but an April fool joke, but there are some new cotton seamless stockings that are amazing magic for sleek slender ankles. The low price [under a dollar] for such sheer glory is almost unbelievable. The texture is a decorative mesh [two patterns], thin and clinging, with two summer street shades for choice. These stockings fit smoothly, like a film of suntan even after repeated sudsing. For all who crave that stockingless dull sheen, here is the opportunity to indulge in it.

Burton Holms will give his travel lecture on Mexico at 8:15 o'clock tonight in Cahn auditorium, Northwestern university, Evanston, for the benefit of Christopher house.

Service Center Officers' Club Has 1st Birthday

Stage Note

Luther Adler and Beth Merrill will come to the Great Northern theater Saturday night, April 29, in "Uncle Harry," playing the roles created by Joseph Schildkraut and Eva Le Gallienne. The play by Thomas Job had a long New York run, and was once scheduled for American theater society subscription, but the original production closed when the stars joined the revival of "The Cherry Orchard."

78 Freshmen Nurses Receive Uniforms at St. Luke's Exercises

Seventy-eight freshman students in the St. Luke's hospital school of nursing received their student uniforms yesterday afternoon during ceremonies in Grace Episcopal church, the hospital chapel. The ceremony was followed by a tea sponsored by the hospital's nursing council.

Women in War Work

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Maj. Doris E. Epperson, WAC director of 6th service command; Capt. Irene Grodzka, and Pvt. Jadwiga Opolska of Polish women's army (left to right) at command headquarters conference.

Maj. Doris E. Epperson, WAC director of the 6th service command, yesterday introduced Chicagoans to five valiant women, members of the "Pestki," auxiliary military women's service of Poland, at a conference at headquarters, 20 N. Wacker dr.

The members of the Polish army, four blondes and one brunette, are touring the United States and observing activities of the WAC and other women's services. "We came to this country primarily," said Capt. Irene Grodzka, senior of the contingent, "to thank the United States for all the help it has given our people, and to take some training with women of your army."

Polish women in khaki perform military functions similar to those of the WAC, in that they release men for active duty by driving army vehicles, nursing, handling communications, and filling clerical jobs. One thing they do which WACs do not, is to learn the use of arms, principally for self-defense.

One of the Pestkis, Pvt. Stanislawa Zaremba, was born in Chicago in 1908 and went with her parents to their homeland in 1920. The soviet government evacuated her from Poland in 1939, and when she reached Russia she entered training with the Polish army, under an agreement between the soviet and Wladislaw Sikorski, at that time premier of the Polish government in exile. Pvt. Zaremba's mother and sister still reside in occupied Krakow. Her father lives in Detroit.

Three others of the visitors, Capt. Grodzka, Sgt. Wanda Skalinska, and Pvt. Jadwiga Opolska, enlisted in Russia. The fifth, Corp. Stanislawa Kos, enlisted in England. She was born in China, and was in Tokio at the time the Doolittle raiders bombed the Japanese city. "The Japs wouldn't believe that they were being bombed by Americans," she said.

Corp. Kos traveled far to enlist in the Pestki. She finally made her way from partial internment in Tokio to her home city in China. From there she went to Africa and then to England, where she joined the Polish army.

There are 4,000 Pestkis, Capt. Grodzka said. There is a training center for them in Scotland. A feature of their uniforms which interests women is that officers button the jacket from right to left, while noncommissioned women button theirs, as do men, from the left.

The women came to Chicago from Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., where they spent five days touring the WAC installation there. The next stop on their itinerary will be Fort Des Moines, Ia., where they will take instruction under American women officers.

"THE UNINVITED."

A Paramount picture, based on Dorothy Macardle's novel, directed by Lewis Allen, starring Ray Milland, Ruth Hussey, and Donald Crisp, and presented at the Chicago.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Here you have the none too adroit adaptation of one of the most quietly hair-raising novels since "Rebecca."

Some mystery stories cry for the comedy touch. Some—and this is one of them—collapse like punctured balloons when it's inserted.

"The Uninvited" is a ghost story. It's about a sister and brother—young London sophisticates—who purchase a "haunted" house in the country to find that rumors of its ghostly visitants have not been exaggerated. . . . The owner, Commander Beech, who somewhat reluctantly sells them Windward House—for a remarkably small sum—is a strange man with a strange but charming young granddaughter.

The latter loves the old place where she had spent the first three years of her life with her beautiful mother [now dead] and artist father, and doesn't want it sold. When this has been done she yearns to make friends with her new neighbors. . . . But grandfather forbids any visiting back and forth between herself and Pamela and Rick Fitzgerald. . . .

Stella will not be kept away—and strange things happen.

The picture is both over and underacted. Most down to earth performances are by Ruth Hussey, as Pamela, Alan Napier as a neighborhood physician, and Donald Crisp as the grandfather. . . . Gail Russell is pretty but somewhat amateurish as the terrified Stella, guarded by one spirit and tormented by another, and I thought Cornelia Otis Skinner almost unbelievably ham as Miss Holloway, head of a stylish insane asylum called the "Mary Meredith Retreat." . . . Also Ray Milland is certainly nothing to brag about in his role of young Fitzgerald.

Photography, sets and scenery are fascinating. And this I will say—the film will appeal much more to those who haven't made acquaintance with the book . . . which do not read when you are all alone in the house—as I did one night!

See you tomorrow.

Child's Suit

There's no April foolishness about this two piece frock for girls. It's a sensible model with the versatility required to bridge the spring and summer seasons. It's grand for school and for juvenile social occasions. Style No. 3792 is designed for sizes 8 to 16. Size 12 requires 3⅝ yards of 35 inch fabric with 2⅛ yards of braid.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"I haven't any cake flour. How do I substitute bread flour in a recipe for cake?" asks a reader.

Sift the bread flour several times, measure, and remove 2 tablespoonfuls from each cupful. Some cook books tell you to replace those two tablespoonfuls with cornstarch, but we think this practice not advisable as it seems to make too dry a cake. Cake flour usually produces a lighter cake than bread flour, especially in the more delicate eggy types, but all-purpose flour makes a quite acceptable product.

"Some frozen vegetables I bought partly thawed before I put them in the refrigerator. Does it hurt to refreeze them?"

Frozen food manufacturers advise against refreezing, as some decomposition takes place. It is better to cook the food promptly once it has begun to thaw.

"What is the difference between evaporated and condensed milk?"

Evaporated milk is whole milk with much of the water removed. It is mixed with water [an equal amount] for use in cooking, or may be used as it comes from the can, as cream. Condensed milk is a thick, sweetened evaporated milk, used chiefly in making desserts. The two types of milk cannot be interchanged in recipes.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Prune Cream Cookies.
[Four dozen.]

- 1½ cups cooked dried prunes
- 1 cup rolled oats
- ⅔ cup shortening
- 1½ cups brown sugar
- 1 cup sour cream
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 3 cups flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon soda
- ½ teaspoon mace
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Cook prunes in enough water to cover for about 20 minutes. Drain, remove pits and chop. Grind oats. Cream shortening until soft, add sugar and mix until light. Add sour cream and beaten eggs. Combine ground oats and sifted dry ingredients. Add prunes and mix thoroly. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheet and bake for 10 to 12 minutes in 425 degree oven.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Much of the food spoilage which followed last summer's canning was due to the canner's lack of familiarity with new type closures. Explicit instructions came with most of the equipment of the better known manufacturers, but in many cases these instructions were completely ignored.

So much trouble occurred last year that manufacturers are taking extra precautions to see that detailed, illustrated directions for using rubbers and lids accompany their product when it is purchased.

It is easy to excuse spoilage with the complaint "These new war time rubbers and lids are absolutely no good." Such is not the case. It is true that rubber bands are made with a great deal of reclaimed rubber, but they are just as efficient as the old rubber bands, if used properly. They must never be stretched to test elasticity, and they shouldn't be boiled longer than a few minutes for sterilization.

Here is an important point: Rubber bands to be used with glass lids should be attached to the lid, not stretched over the top of the canning jar. All too many women last year tried to fit these smaller rings over the mouth of the jar, as they used to do when zinc jar caps were available. Then sometimes they'd put the glass lid onto the jar upside down and have no seal at all.

"The "self-seal" or "vacu-seal" type of cap, which consists of a screw band and a metal lid with a composition edge which makes the seal, caused trouble last year, too. Many of the complaints were that "the lid came off when I removed the screw band." These bands must not be removed for 24 hours after the food has been processed, for the vacuum, which seals the jar, is formed as the food cools. If they are taken off before sealing has been completed, of course, the lid will come off.

If the jar is filled to within less than one-half inch of the top, sealing cannot take place. It is possible, also, to screw the band on so tightly that the force required to loosen it also will break the seal. But the usual reason why the lid comes off when the screw band is removed is that the jar never was properly sealed in the first place. If there was a nick in the top of the jar, or if the jar mouth wasn't of the exact size and shape to seat the lid firmly, trouble was inevitable. These lids are made for standard canning jars, and in smaller size, to fit coffee and mayonnaise jars which have smaller openings.

A point of technique which many women did not get straight last year was this: All jars with two-piece caps [self or vacuum seal], a metal lid with composition edge and a screw band, must be sealed completely before processing. No jars with separate rubber bands should be completely sealed before processing. In the case of the glass top with rubber ring which fits it, the screw band is turned tight, then released a quarter turn. After processing the band is tightened.

Crocheted Bib

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

A crocheted bib for an infant is an ideal gift suggestion. The stitches of the bib are not difficult, for any needleworker may create one in little time. These launder nicely and do not require pressing if they are crocheted of white mercerized cotton.

For instructions in crocheting the bib, No. 1050, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York City.

Child's Health Is Allied with His Behavior

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Body and spirit almost always are spoken of as being two utterly separate things. But more and more we are finding that our physical state affects our mental functioning, our emotions, our moods, our response to life and people, our degree of joyousness.

If your child seems low, is uneven in disposition, is doing badly at school, or is acting in a way unlike himself, look for a physical cause. It's a practical impossibility for a child to be buoyant, sweet tempered, and full of ambition who is "sick on his feet," or chronically tired or below par.

Sometimes a child whose behavior troubles you is only a physical, not a psychological, problem. He may need a doctor or he simply may need to have his day reorganized and to be put on a well rounded program. Perhaps some conversations I've heard will point up what I mean:

"How's Billy been lately, Molly?" said a husband to his wife one evening.

"O, everything's been as serene as a summer day," she answered. "Ever since he got over his flu he's been his own sunny self. Do you know, I've decided that those little tantrums and irritable spells were because he was coming down with that thing."

"How is Sheila?" asked a loving grandmother. "Does she still have those little crying spells that she had when I was there? I felt quite anxious about her; she was so different from the sunny little girl she used to be."

"Sheila's come thru all that," answered the child's mother. "The doctor told me only yesterday that that old trouble of hers was disturbing to her nervous system."

"I am so happy about Joan's school work this term," said Joan's mother to Joan's father one evening. "She does it with such ease now."

"Is it the new teacher?" asked Joan's father.

"Well partly. But it's chiefly because she's so well this year. Last year everything was an effort for her. She was tired all the time."

On the Record

By Claudia Cassidy

Singles Worth Acquiring.

Particularly interesting in today's batch of records are Victor singles by the late Sergei Rachmaninoff, who plays the Tausig arrangement of Schumann's "The Smuggler," from the Spanish poems of Opus 74, and two of the Chopin-Liszt Polish songs, "The Return Home" and "The Maiden's Wish," and by John Charles Thomas, who sings Mattei's "Non E Ver" and Duparc's "Chanson Triste," with the Victory Symphony orchestra under the direction of Frank Tours. Mr. Thomas' record is one of his best, a superb display of his beautiful baritone at its peak of artistry. The other is valuable not because it rivals the best of Rachmaninoff, but because it is John Charles Thomas.

Actresses, Tsk, Tsk.

Some one did Judith Anderson a disservice by persuading, or permitting, her to recite for records. She is one of our best actresses, with almost the most beautiful voice on the stage, but this album [Victor M-960; three 12-inch records] is just about as misguided as the patriotic set Helen Hayes perpetrated several years ago. With musical background, Miss Anderson reads a dramatized version of Lincoln's letter to Mrs. Bixby, John Latouche's "The Fog" and "The Statue of Liberty" and excerpts from the Sermon on the Mount. If in doubt, buy her "Macbeth" album with Maurice Evans. It is one of the best.

The Rasoumowsky First.

Columbia continues to fill the Beethoven shelf of chamber music, and a recent addition is the Quartet No. 7, in F major, Opus 59, No. 1, played by the Busch Quartet [M-843; six 12 inch records]. You may quarrel that the slow movement lacks the profundity and poetry distilled by Budapest Quartet recordings, but the performance on the whole is full of vitality and brilliance, worthy to open the door to the Rasoumowsky trio. The final side holds the menuetto ma non troppo from Haydn's Quartet No. 83 in B flat major, Opus 103, the "Ultimo."

Bravura Organ.

Collectors of organ music have a chance at a bravura set in the Sonata in C minor, on the 94th psalm, written by Julius Reubke, once a pupil of Franz Liszt, and brilliantly played by E. Power Biggs on the organ at Harvard's memorial church [Victor M-961; three 12 inch records]. The sixth side holds Purcell's Trumpet Voluntary, played with equal distinction.

Miss Wakeley Sets May 20 as Wedding Date

serve. Lt. John D. Smith, who just has received his commission at Fort Benning, Ga., will give his sister away in the absence of their father, who is on duty with the air transport command. Also here for the wedding are the bride's mother, Mrs. Smith, and Mr. Curtis' mother and father, Mrs. Raymond H. Ewell of Washington, D. C., and Stanley R. Curtis of Toledo, O. After a short trip Mr. Curtis and his bride will be at home in E. Delaware pl. while he is stationed in Chicago.

On the Calendar.

The 28th annual exhibition by the professional members of the Arts club will open with a reception and high tea from 4:30 to 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Young singers who have had their operatic training under Miss Anna Fitzu are putting their heads together to turn out a series of humorous skits which will be the pièce de resistance tonight of her surprise birthday party. Their plans almost came to grief on Thursday night when Mrs. Ernest Graham spirited the "birthday child" off to dinner so that the conspirators could have the theater at 1016 N. Dearborn pkwy. for rehearsal. Miss Fitzu slipped on the icy pavement and had to be taken to Henrotin hospital for treatment, but despite a bandaged head she will be well enough to attend tonight's party as planned.

Mona Bradford has come from Detroit, where she has been appearing in "Roberta," to take the role of Carmen tonight, and Clarence Hoffman has a one day leave from Chanute field to appear as Rigoletto. Others joining in the fun include Shirley Dickinson, Richard Gordon, Floria Campbell [Florence Donnersberger], Daniel Cobb, Joseph Christes, Mary Frances Godwin, and Judy Patton.

Local alumnae of Randolph-Macon college will meet for luncheon at 1 p. m. today in the Piccadilly tea room to elect new officers. Miss Janet McIlraith, who has served as president of the group for the past year, will read a Founders' day message from the college, and Mrs. Jack Steele, executive secretary of the Women's College board, will speak on "Emphasis on Women's Colleges."

Friends of Park house will gather tonight for a farewell party as the building in which the social center is housed has been sold. The evening will be devoted to the memory of the late Dr. Robert E. Park, president of the American Sociological society, for whom the house was named.

A square dancing party that was a great success at the Sheridan Shore Yacht club recently will be repeated tonight. Mrs. John Magie is chairman of the club's entertainment committee.

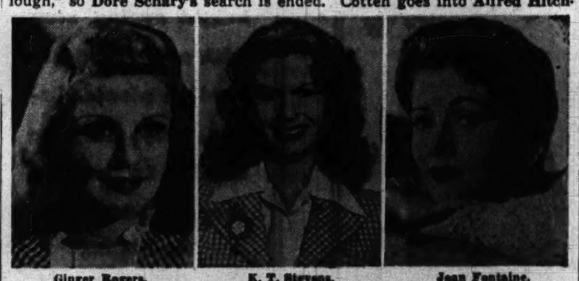
Looking at Hollywood . . . . . By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 31.—Hellzapoppin'! Just as spring really ushered its beautiful head into Hollywood, 'tis rumored Hal Wallis ups and leaves Warners. Hal's leaving has been in the air for a long time. He's talked a deal with Louis B. Mayer, also Twentieth Century, but the logical place for him to put in is with David Selznick. David can't do all the work and Hal is a terrific go-getter. It was evident at the Academy awards that all was not well between Warner and Hal. When the studio was given the Oscar for "Casablanca," Jack popped up on the stage with the speed of an antelope. We didn't know then Wallis was to receive the Irving Thalberg award. This fighting for personal glory seems so silly. The public doesn't give a hoot who produced what or when. All they're interested in is: Is it a good picture?

Now and Then.

Joe Cotten plays the lead opposite Ginger Rogers in "Double Furlough," so Dore Schary's search is ended. Cotten goes into Alfred Hitchcock's next but that isn't ready yet. Understand David Selznick wants Joan Fontaine to play opposite Joe in that, but Alfred has directed the little lady in two, and if you don't mind he'd like to be excused. K. T. Stevens is finishing her Columbia stint and is reading plays like mad. She'll soon be back on Broadway. . . . When Gwen Carter graduates from Hollywood High in June she'll visit her husband, Donald O'Connor, air cadet in Texas. . . . What's become of Baby Sandy? She's not old enough to join the WACs and too young to be an adolescent.



Ginger Rogers. K. T. Stevens. Joan Fontaine.

Ho Hum.

Steve Hannagan, super salesman, sadly scanning a picture of his heart, Ann Sheridan, posing for his biggest competitor; nevertheless, she wears an identification bracelet with his name on it. . . . Mrs. Irving Berlin's book, "Land I've Chosen," already sold for a picture, sold its first edition before reaching the book stores. . . . Claudette Colbert talking a picture-a-year deal with Warners. . . . Kitty Carlisle has been on salary with them nine months. They tell me she actually goes to work to earn it this month. Seeing is believing, so I'll wait and see. . . . Ida Lupino slipped on a rug and is on crutches. Nevertheless, she still stars in "Hangover Square." Title has nothing to do with her accident.

Heaven Help You.

Olsen and Johnson's next is "Laughing Room Only." I went out to see the boys yesterday. They had a little surprise for me — an Easter parade for the newsreel boys. What do you think it was? Fancy female hats on horses, jackasses, camels, and cowboys, right thru the studio dressing room. Bringing up the rear were Olsen and Johnson with hats especially made for The Hopper. The prop department had worked weeks on them. One sported a windmill which ran for five minutes. The other was a break-away egg. You pulled a string and inside was a full grown chick. The boys asked if I'd do the reel with 'em. "Sure, but let's have a real finish." I won't tell you what that was — that might spoil the surprise — but they gave me the business, which you'll see on the screen. I can only say when it was finished their director, Eddie Cline, took the ear of corn he was wearing on his coat lapel and pinned it on me.

Tain't Funny, McGee.

Leo McCarey, with his foot in a plaster cast, and "Going My Way," which will probably garner three Academy awards and is soon to be seen, finds himself in a strange predicament. Some time ago he signed a contract with our millionaire playboy producer, Howard Hughes. He'd sit on Mr. Hughes' front porch until 3 a. m., trying to nail him down for a conference. Most of the time he just sat. The contract was canceled. I believe Leo tried to pay back the salary he'd received. Anyhow, Leo's hooked to make a picture for Hughes, which is going to be tough. Howard doesn't care how much he spends on it. Leo can't rush thru and make a quickie — he's got his reputation to uphold — so it looks as if he's got himself behind the eight ball with no exit open.

Well, It Could Be.

Harry Cohn offered Travis Banton a contract after the way his "Cover Girls" looked. Speaking of that, Harry's pals wonder if he expects his new baby to look like a cover girl. . . . The Danny Winklers' baby is a whopper—nearly 10 pounds. Ezra Stone, the original "Henry" of the Aldrich family, is now Papa Ezra. Son's name Joseph. . . . Hedy Lamarr's son, Jamsie, age 5, spent a day on the set with her. He wasn't impressed with anything — not even mother. . . . Ava Gardner, doing all right as a dramatic actress, gets second lead in "Maisie Goes to Reno" with Ann Sothern.

Two Sides in Bob's Case.

Bob Young, one of our finest actors, would like to cancel his Metro contract. Bob's been loaned out nearly two years to other studios, but what actually broke the camel's back was that Capt. Ted Lawson wanted him to play him in "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo" but the studio gave the part to Van Johnson. . . . Felix Jackson leaves for New York April 10 but Deanna Durbin, who was supposed to be there when he arrived, remains here. Studio didn't want her to go. . . . Alfred Hitchcock back from London, where he made a couple of shorts for the government. Says making pictures there is like making two at once over here.

Girl Advised to Be True to Service Man

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I am in love with a man overseas. He has been abroad for over a year. Before he left we had an understanding that we would marry immediately after the war.

"For a year I haven't let one day go by without writing him at least one letter. He writes about once a month, sometimes a little oftener, saying he is very busy all the time and that is why he doesn't write often. But he also says he loves me and is saving for our wedding. He also says he could cry with joy every time I assure him I'll wait for him, no matter how long the war lasts.

"But he always seems to worry about whether I am going out with other fellows and I haven't been out with one since he left. My friends try to discourage me. They say I am crazy to sit home and not go out with others. But I don't want to go out with others. I'm happy waiting for him. But my friends argue that the men overseas get leave and go out and have good times with girls. But I love my man and trust him. He has told me he doesn't bother with other girls. Am I right in trusting him? I am 19 and he is 21." HIS GIRL.

You haven't a problem in the world, except what you now seem willing to stir up for yourself by giving ear to those so-called friends. You don't want to get mixed up with their kind, do you? Avoid them like the plague and stay true to your man and to your own ideals. Those boys overseas aren't playing around with girls. Not your kind of young man who keeps on encouraging you to wait for him.

Lecture on Peace.

Robert Redfield, professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago, will give a lecture on "Peace as a Problem of Ethnology" at 5 p. m. Tuesday in the International Relations center, 84 E. Randolph st.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is downright silly to show partner two suits and thereby to imply that you want him to choose between them, when as a matter of fact your own preference is so overwhelming as to be conclusive. For example:

North, dealer.

	NORTH
	♠ 2 ♥ AQ1076 ♦ 983 ♣ A643
WEST		EAST
	SOUTH ♠ KQJ1074 ♥ None ♦ K62 ♣ KJ82

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	3 clubs [!]	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 spades	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the diamond queen, and when declarer had finished with his desperate but futile maneuvering he found himself down two tricks.

"Why didn't you leave me in four spades?" he asked North. "I rebid the suit even after you had shown preference for clubs."

"Rats!" said North disgustedly. "I hadn't shown that I preferred clubs at the ratio of about 5 to 1!"

And there you have the best comment on South's method of bidding. South's six card major suit was not only infinitely superior to his four card minor suit; it was plenty strong enough to be selected as trumps without support from North. South's bidding virtually announced that while he himself preferred a spade contract he was willing to defer to North's judgment. How, then, could North be blamed for choosing clubs?

South should have bid spades, and then rebid spades, jumping to three spades over two hearts and continuing to bid the same suit as long as was necessary. A four spade contract would have been unbeatable.

Science Academy Begins Youth Programs Today

The annual Saturday morning spring programs for young people at the Chicago Academy of Sciences in Lincoln park will open at 10 a. m. today. Two films on the general theme of "The Other Americas" will be shown, "South of the Border with Walt Disney," a color and sound movie of South and Central America, and "The Grain that Built a Hemisphere," a Disney cartoon on the story of corn. The children's programs are arranged by Miss Harriet M. Smith, assistant to the director of the academy.

Lecture on Comets.

Paul G. Dallwig will give his dramatized lecture, "Night Riders of the Sky," which deals with comets, meteors and meteorites, at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the Chicago Natural History museum.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. M. N., Chicago—A very handy tool I use to loosen up the ground of my house plants is a long handled olive fork. This gets under and between the leaves without damaging them.

Miss Alice Clarke, Batavia and Joliet rds., West Chicago, Ill.—After having washed a woolen sweater put a few drops of cologne in the rinse water. The sweater will then have a fragrant odor instead of a soapy one.

Mina Adams Tyndall, 2326 Argyle st., Chicago—I have found that an ugly black mark made from children's shoes is easily removed from a polished floor or from linoleum by rubbing with a bit of cold cream. Very useful to know, especially in bad weather.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., March 31 [Special].—For the third time since they bowed themselves into their spring camp, the Cubs have all arrangements completed for making their 1944 debut on the exhibition circuit. The weather foiled 'em before, but the prospects tomorrow are so pleasing that no one even has dared to hint that a ride to Evansville in the morning may prove only a ride instead of a pair of week-end matches with the sorely pressed Detroit Tigers.

The Cubs' bow into formal competition will be a bit more than an every day exhibition since it will reveal them approximately as they'll look in the April 18 opener, Uncle Sam permitting. About the only exception is Right Fielder Bill Nicholson. Even the starting pitcher tomorrow is a possibility for an opening day assignment. He will be the hard firing Ed Hanyzewski, who is well along in his work because he gave some thought to his conditioning prior to reporting.

Dual Plans for Pitchers.

Wilson has dual plans for his pitchers both tomorrow and Sunday. For the first half of the two Tiger matches he has three inning tasks awaiting Hank Wyse and Johnny Burrows as well as Hanyzewski. But the latter, being fairly toughened up, may be granted a five inning stretch and Wyse one of four. This same plan may not work for Sunday's game, unless Bill Fleming is the exception. The two other nominees for that frolic—Paul Derringer and Paul Erickson—lost time thru injuries, so three innings apiece could easily be plenty of work, if not too much.

Wilson's prospective lineup, that is, prospective for the season's grind, proves that times really have changed in baseball. Five positions will be occupied by fellows who were in the minors last season. Three-quarters of the infield is freshly imported, the exception being the perennial Phil Cavarretta at first base. There also will be five newcomers, even when Nicholson shows up to displace, Dom Dallessandro, no matter who occupies center field. For the time being Ed Sauer is at the position, but Andy Pafko will have something to say about that later. Both are in the freshman class.

Competition Will Be Welcomed.

The Cubs did another double hitch of hitting and fielding on their practice lot today, their desire for exercise being increased by a breeze on which a bright sun had little effect. From now on they won't have time for such routine matters because of a fairly busy exhibition program. Only two days will be available for practice next week, but there is no objection to this. They've got about all they can get out of the ordinary grind. Thus competition will be beneficial as well as welcome.

No Easy Task.

Nor offer false appraise of any skill.
No silver serving tray will bring you these:
The gleaning of the master works; the will
To put in practice education's theme;
Deft hands; the power to judge and choose aright;
The winning of that love of whom you dream;
No easy path has ever been divined
Where man may walk in effortless estate.
While one may feel the tax on purse and mind,
Another gives with blood and life; thus fate
Decides to some extent the role you'll fill.
No easy task, this fight, but win we will.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., March 31.—The sunshine was bright enough here today to lead the White Sox to hope they will be able to play their scheduled matches with the Pittsburgh Pirates in Louisville tomorrow and Sunday. Louisville is 53 miles southeast of here and generally gets the same weather dosages as this vicinity.

The Pirates have been in training in Muncie, Ind., and have been more sorely beset by weather than the Sox. Two of their scheduled exhibition games have been frozen out and most of their practice has been in a fieldhouse—all this after they had enjoyed 74 degrees of warmth the first day they reported for training, March 15.

Best Battery in League.

The Pirates believe they will be National league pennant contenders. Many of their stars are in 4-F and there are several who have been discharged from the Canadian and United States service. They have only one important holdout, Vince Di Maggio, and they are possessed of what probably was the best battery in the National league last season—Rip Sewell, who won 21 games in 1943, and Al Lopez.

The Pirates were in Louisville today and were reported to have had their best outdoor workout of what jocularly is known as the spring training season, even including that first 74 degree day, when the lads were much too tender to work as hard as they did today.

Sox Get Long Workout.

The temperature here was in the 50s, but Manager Jim Dykes reported the best drill since the athletes returned from their series with the Tigers in Evansville last week-end. The weather was perfect in Evansville and the Chicagoans fortified themselves against the unfavorable conditions which have persisted here. Today they had a particularly long hike and later had fielding and batting practice on Gallagher field, training home of the Cubs.

Dykes will start against the Pirates with the same cast he sent against the Tigers, except that Hal Trosky will start at first base instead of Floyd Rightenberg. Trosky will play as long as he wishes, then will be replaced by Rightenberg. Vince Castino will be the starting catcher and will be succeeded by Mike Tresh.

No One Will Be Overworked.

Ed Carnett will start in center and probably will be replaced by Myril Hoag. Skeeter Webb will be at short, but will be succeeded by Don Yohe; John Dickshot will push off in left field and later will give way to Guy Curtright. Trosky will bat fourth and then will come Ralph Hodgin, who will play right field. Grey Clarke will be at third, to be relieved by Cass Kwiet. Leroy Schalk will play second, succeeded by Peter Sharp.

The pitchers will be Thornton Lee, Bill Dietrich, and Orval Grove in that order. Lee and Dietrich will do their first competitive pitching of the year. Grove was the winning pitcher for the Sox in the 10 to 4 conquest of the Tigers last Sunday.

Gordon Maltzberger, the efficient relief pitcher, arrived in camp today, leaving Joe Haynes, another pitcher who is listed as a holdout, the only missing player.

At St. Louis, Mo.—Jim Elliott beat Nathan Logan [10]; Charley Riley knocked out Sammy Scully [2].

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Jack Lamotta, new York middleweight, was awarded a split decision last night over Sgt. Lou Woods of Camp Grant in a 10 round bout which headed the first professional show of the year in Chicago Stadium. The decision was booed by the 6,402 spectators, who paid a gross gate of $18,704.

Referee Walter Brightmore voted 58-42, and Judge William O'Connell 51-49 for Lamotta, while Ed Hintz, the other judge, scored for Woods, 51-49.

Woods appeared to have an edge, altho he was down twice, for a two count in the seventh round and for nine in the ninth.

Second Knockdown Clean.

The first knockdown was a slip more than anything else. The other was the result of a clean punch, but even so, Lamotta was far from impressive.

The highly publicized Lamotta was unable to land a damaging blow until the late rounds. Even then he failed to cause a stir. He is a methodical fighter with little color. Fans last night were wondering how Lamotta happened to deal Ray Robinson his first defeat in 130 amateur and professional bouts. Woods appeared to have an edge in each of the first four rounds and in the sixth.

Bolden Suffers Leg Injury.

Georgie Parks, Washington, D. C., heavyweight, knocked out Nate Bolden in the seventh round of a scheduled eight round semi-windup. Bolden, 1937 Chicago intercity Golden Gloves middleweight winner, never had a chance after the first round when he suffered two knockdowns. On the second knockdown in this period Bolden suffered a leg injury which handicapped him thruout. Bolden was sent to the canvas four times more before being counted out.

Terry Gibson, Los Angeles welterweight, stopped Jimmy Hunt, former city Golden Gloves 147 pound champion, in the fifth round of a bout which followed the main event.

Hezzie Williams, also a former Golden Gloves champion, hammered out a decision over Don Brouillard, Minneapolis heavyweight, in a four round event. Brouillard was down for no count in the final round.

Kiefer and Smith Set National Swim Marks in A. A. U. Meet

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 31 [Special].—Two great navy swimming stars, Bill Smith of Great Lakes and Adolph Kiefer of the Bainbright [Md.] training station, together broke two American and two National A. A. U. records here tonight as champions were crowned in five divisions in the annual national championship meet.

The most brilliant performance of the meet was Kiefer's in smashing his own American and A. A. U. records for the 300 yard individual medley in which each contestant swims 100 yards breast stroke, 100 yards backstroke, and 100 yards free style.

Breaks Own Record.

His sensational time of 3:23.9 was 4.2 seconds under the American mark of 3:28.1 he established at Honolulu in 1941 and bettered by a full five seconds the A. A. U. record of 3:28.9 which he had tied in this afternoon's preliminaries. The old A. A. U. mark was first set in 1936 by John Higgins of the Olneyville Boys' club.

Kiefer was in third place by 6 yards at the end of the breast stroke leg, but gained that back and more during his favored backstroke hundred. He won the event by a full 20 yards with 17 year old Joe Verdeur of the North Philadelphia Y. M. C. A. second. Verdeur had earlier won the breast stroke title, leading all the way to win in 2:40.3, less than two seconds off the national record.

Smith Sets Two Marks.

Smith's two new records were registered in the opening event, the 220 yard free style which he won in 2:08.

He was clocked officially at the 200 mark in 1:55.1, a new American mark for which official application will be made. The old record of 1:56.4 was made here on May 4, 1927, by Johnny Weismuller.

Smith's 2:08 for the full distance shattered the old A. A. U. mark of 2:09.3 which was registered by Alan Ford, then of Mercerburg, in 1942. He missed equalling his world 220 record of 2:07.1 by less than a second.

Great Lakes Team Leads.

He returned to competition later to anchor the Great Lakes 400 yard free style relay team to an easy victory in the comparatively slow time—considering that the same quartet recently set a world mark in 3:24.5—of 3.29.1.

By placing two men in both the 220 and low board diving, as well as winning tonight's relay, Great Lakes piled up 20 points for a safe lead in the battle for the team title which was won last year by Ohio State. Michigan was second with 12 and the North Philadelphia Y. M. C. A., thanks to Verdeur, third with eight. Ten other teams shared in the scoring in tonight's five events. Competition in five others will be held tomorrow.

Summaries:

200 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Bill Smith, Great Lakes; Jack Hill, Olathe [Kas.] naval air station, second; Jerry Kerschner, Great Lakes, third; Keo Nakama, Ohio State, fourth. Time, 2:08. [New A. A. U. record. Old record 2.09.3 by Alan Ford, Mercersburg, 1942.]

LOW BOARD DIVING—Won by Charles Batterman, Columbia, 400.6; Strother Martin, Great Lakes, second, 384.7; Hobie Billingsley, Erie, Pa., third, 311.3; Bob Stone, Ohio State, fourth, 280.1.

300 YARD INDIVIDUAL MEDLEY—Won by Adolph Kiefer, Bainbridge naval station; Joe Verdeur, North Philadelphia Y. M. C. A., second; Charles Fries, Michigan, third; Tom Gastineau, Indianapolis Riviera club, fourth. Time, 3:23.9. [New American and A. A. U. record. Old American record, 3:28.1, by Kiefer in 1941. Old A. A. U. record, 3:28.9, by Kiefer in today's preliminaries and by John Higgins of Olneyville Boys' club in 1936.]

400 YARD FREE STYLE RELAY—Won by Great Lakes [Bill Smith, Jerry Kerschner, Dobson Burton, Wally Ris]; Michigan "A," second; Michigan "B," third; University High school of Ann Arbor, fourth. Time, 3:29.1.

HAWKS TO HAVE MOSIENKO BACK TUESDAY NIGHT

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The Blackhawks have executed the neatest trick of the 1943-'44 National Hockey league season by crowding their way into the Stanley Cup finals, but this was a boy's job in comparison to the one now facing the dashing Chicagoans.

Their manager, Paul Thompson, half humorously epitomized it when he cracked: "What! Montreal beat the Maple Leafs, 11 to 0? Maybe we made a mistake getting in these finals."

The Hawks will start learning the answer Tuesday night when the No. 1 game of the best four-of-seven series is played in the big Canadian village. In five previous visits to Montreal this campaign the Hawks suffered five defeats. The Canadians won three and tied two in the Stadium.

The schedule for the finals is quaintly arranged, but meets with the approval of the Hawks. Delay of the opener until Tuesday gives them extra time for the wounds of Billy Mosienko to heal. Mosienko definitely will play Tuesday, Thompson said yesterday. After the Montreal inaugural, the teams will come to Chicago for games next Thursday and Sunday, April 9.

Purpur on Second Line.

Because the circus is moving in a few days later, the Hawks will surrender their rights as tenants in the west side building and the finalists will fight out the remainder of the series in Montreal's Forum.

After eliminating the Red Wings in Detroit Thursday night the Hawks lost no time in rushing back to Chicago. They had anticipated a possible order to go direct to Montreal for a Saturday or Sunday opening, but wanted those precious extra days for mending purposes.

May Get Harms.

If Hershey, Pa., is eliminated this week-end in the American league playoffs, this will free 18 year old Johnny Harms for action with the Blackhawks. He would play right wing on the third line, which is centered by Virgil Johnson, with George Grigor, a Toronto boy, at left wing. Grigor played two games

LAWSON TEAMS REACH HANDBALL TOURNEY FINALS

Two Lawson Y.M.C.A. handball teams will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Lawson Y for the Central A.A.U. championship. The host organization was assured of the doubles title last night when Dick Martin and George DiRe defeated Wendel Doolittle and Fred Dillon of the Illinois Athletic Club, 21 to 11, 21 to 14 in the first semi-final match.

Bob Kendler and John Spenson defeated Trip Gentile and Anthony DiOrio of the Duncan Y.M.C.A., 21 to 6, 11 to 21, 21 to 17, in the other semi-final match which lasted over two hours.

LT. CHUCK HYATT, WAC LIEUTENANT MARRY IN WEST

Denver, Colo., March 31 (AP).—Lt. Charles [Chuck] Hyatt, former University of Pittsburgh basketball star, and Lt. Georgia Ward of Dover, Del., WAC recruiting officer, were married today at the Montview Boulevard Presbyterian church.

Clint Smith Is Voted Trophy for Clean Play

Clint Smith, of the high scoring Chicago Blackhawks hockey line which includes Doug Bentley and Bill Mosienko, has been voted the Lady Byng trophy, annual award to the player who combines clean play with hockey efficiency.

Clint Smith.

A committee of 12 hockey writers, two from each National Hockey league city, voted the award to Smith. Altho he served only four minutes in the penalty box all season, Clint was busy enough to score 23 goals and 49 assists for 72 points in 50 games.

Smith also won the Lady Byng trophy in 1938-'39 while playing with the New York Rangers.

LUKE APPLING IS TRANSFERRED FROM CAMP LEE

Camp Lee, Va., March 31 (AP).—Hopes entertained by the Camp Lee Travelers of surprising the Washington Senators when they open their season against the American leaguers at College Park, Md., Sunday were dealt a shock today with disclosure that Pvt. Luke Appling has been transferred to another post.

Appling, who led the American league in batting last season, was to be playing pilot of the Leemen.

10 JOCKEYS GET 1944 NEW YORK RIDING LICENSES

New York, March 31 (AP).—The stewards of the Jockey club [New York] today granted riding licenses to 10 jockeys but took no action on the application of Bobby Merritt, veteran rider who was refused a license last year.

BEAU JACK GETS DECISION OVER JUAN ZURITA

New York, March 31 (AP).—Beau Jack of Augusta, Ga., former holder of the New York version of the lightweight championship, outpointed Juan Zurita of Mexico City, holder of the NBA lightweight crown, in a close 10-rounder tonight in Madison Square Garden. Beau Jack weighed 136, and Zurita, 133¼.

There were no knockdowns,

NORTH AV. MEET ENTRY LIST TO CLOSE TONIGHT

Entries will close tonight for the annual open basketball tournament at the North av.-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. The tournament will open Wednesday and continue thru Saturday, April 15.

Edward Ryan, physical director of the North av. association, said last night that entries already received make it almost certain that the anticipated bracket of 24 teams will be filled.

BROWNS COLLECT 4 HITS; LOSE TO MUDHENS, 4 TO 2

Three Runs in Third Win for Toledo Nine.

Cape Girardeau, Mo., March 31 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns got only four hits today in dropping a seven inning spring training exhibition game to the Toledo Mudhens of the American Association, 4 to 2.

Sig Jakucki.

Pitcher Sig Jakucki started for St. Louis, giving one hit in the first two innings but Toledo reached him in the third for three runs. Outfielder Hal Epps accounted for two of the Browns' four hits. Score:

St. Louis [A.]	020	000	0	2	4	1
Toledo [A. A.]	003	001	*	4	7	2

Batteries—Jakucki, Brown, Lamacchia and Mancuso; Kimberlin, Fannin and Bertich. Comyn.

ATHLETICS WIN, 20-0.

Frederick, Md., March 31 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics made 17 hits, and with the help of eight errors by the opposition, shut out the Martin Bombers of Baltimore, 20 to 0, in an exhibition baseball game today, before a crowd of 18.

Russ Christopher, Don Black, Lum Harris, and Joe Berry pitched for the Athletics in the seven inning contest and allowed seven hits.

There were no home runs, but Jojo White, Dick Siebert, and Ed Busch all hit triples for the Athletics. Score:

DODGERS BEAT ARMY, 18-4.

West Point, N. Y., March 31 (AP).—Outfielder Luis Olmo and Rookies Gene Mauch and Edwin Snider hit homers today as the Brooklyn Dodgers opened their baseball exhibition season by beating Army, 18 to 4. Five pitchers held the Cadets to four hits. Tom Sunkel, owned by Montreal, started on the mound and was followed by Rookies John Gabbard, Les Stunder, Bob Tart, and George Roxburgh. Score:

Army	000	040	000	4	4	3

UMPIRE HELPS GIANTS.

Lakewood, N. J., March 31 (AP).—The New York Giants, handicapped by bad weather much of the week, made up for lost time today with a five hour batting practice.

Manager Mel Ott used every available pitcher and finally had to call on Carl Hubbell, veteran southpaw, now head of the club's farm hands; Coach Bubber Jonnard and Bill Stewart, former pitcher but now a National league umpire, to help out.

Shortstop Bill Jurges, sent home recently to rest his injured back, rejoined the club but will not see action against Baltimore tomorrow or Sunday.

TRIPLETT LEAVES PHILS.

Wilmington, Del., March 31 (AP).—Outfielder Coaker Triplett left the Philadelphia Phillies' training camp today for his home in Boone, N. C., where his wife is ill, and General Manager Herb Pennock said he understood Triplett would not be back unless he brought his signed contract with him.

"It is not the club policy to discuss salaries," said Pennock, "but I will say that we have offered Triplett a very good salary."

CRONIN NAMES LINEUP.

Paul Clement Elected Head of Waltonians

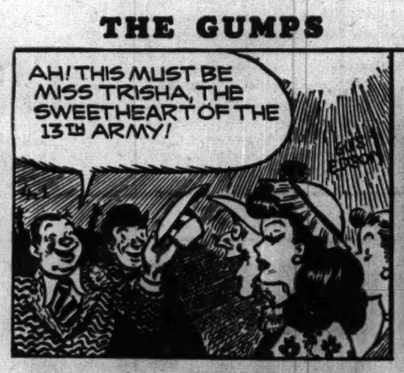
Paul Clement of Minneapolis, Minn., was elected president of the Izaak Walton League of America yesterday for the ensuing year. The retiring president, Ivar Hennings of South Bend, Ind., who had held the post for two years, was elected honorary president. The election climaxed the league's annual meeting in the La Salle hotel.

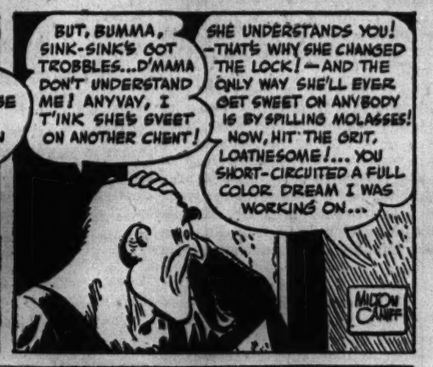
New vice presidents named are C. M. [Skipper] Bryant of St. John, N. D., and Dr. Ferdinand Brown, Sioux Falls, S. D. Reelected as vice presidents were William L. Finley, Portland, Ore.; C. R. Hallowell, Dubuque, Ia.; and Dr. Lewis Radcliffe, Washington, D. C.

Also reelected were Earl Gromer, Elgin, Ill., national secretary, and Harry F. Harper, Lansing, Mich., national treasurer.

Elected to the board of directors for a three year term were:

Frank Barnes, Los Angeles; Frank Brady, Atkinson, Neb.; Burt Brickner, Tiffin, O.; Maj. Oscar Burkard, Rome, N. Y.; Robert O'Hair, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; Walter Fentress, Norfolk, Va.; Ralph Lingwall, Flandreau, S. D.; Judge Grover C. Ladner, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. F. Avery Bishop, Cal.; Daniel Gulban, Hobart, Ind.; Louis Radke, Horicon, Wis.; Bud Jackson, Tulsa, Okla.; Capt. C. F. Culver, Minneapolis; J. N. Darling, Des Moines; Albert M. Day, Chicago; John P. Deck, Wyomissing, Pa.; Talbott Denmead, Chicago; Ralph Hodgdon, Joplin, Mo.; Henry Keltzel, Buffalo, N. Y.; the Hon. Karl Mundt, Washington, D. C.; Louis Radke, Horicon, Ind.; Ria Lake Gunnison, Colo.; Charles E. Piersall, Casper, Wyo.; Trygve Storm, Fort Wayne, Ind.; B. V. Wright, Logan, O.; Judson L. Wicks, Minneapolis; Fred Biermann, Decorah, Ia.; W. E. Sanderson, New York City.





Bill Mosienko to Play Again Tuesday Night

In analyzing his fourth placers' triumph over the second place Red Wings, Manager Thompson paid tribute to the sterling defensive performance of Goalie Mike Karakas and the four defensemen, Earl Seibert, Joe Cooper, Art Wiebe, and Virgil Johnson. That's where the series was won. The Hawks simply wore out their opponents and as one Detroit observer remarked, "that Seibert gives the Hawks another goalie."

Little Doug Bentley, who in street clothes looks as tho he might be an office worker or a bank clerk—anything but a hockey star—more than lived up to the Hawks' claim that he is one of the greatest left wingers of all time. Doug was held to a single goal in the first three games, then bewildered the Wings with three scoring maneuvers in each of the two final contests. The fellow made 9 points in five games, a clip which would have netted him 90 points in the regular campaign of 50 games. This is 13 more than he actually scored in the championship season.

Gottselig Clinches Victory.

Johnny Gottselig, who admits his 40th birthday isn't very far away, was a hero in the final punch which downed the groggy Detroiters. It was the Chief's 35 foot shot which broke a 1 to 1 deadlock in the third period when it seemed the rivals might continue playing all night. That blow started the Wings' third period sag, the Hawks getting three more.

Thompson had been talking about Gottselig the night before the final game.

"I hope the guy makes the winning goal," said Paul. And that's what actually happened. Johnny, a left winger, was playing on the right side, out of position, but it was only incidental to this old, gay campaigner.

The Hawks may not have many laughs in the impending series, but they had a big one at the finish of their Detroit success.

Hawks Leave Tomorrow.

In an altercation against the boards near the Red Wing goal, Hal Jackson's stick landed above little Fido Purpur's right eye. Referee Bill Chadwick waved Jackson to the penalty box for high sticking.

"I saw Fido's wiping motion where he had been hit," said Gottselig, "so I skated over and sure enough there was a faint trace of blood. But that guy's the slowest bleeder I ever saw. He didn't want us to know blood had been drawn because he wanted to stay in the game. But we called Referee Chadwick's attention to it and he had to call it a major penalty. So there was Detroit finishing its season a player short."

The Hawks will leave at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning for Montreal without benefit of any Chicago workouts. They will exercise in the Forum Monday.

RISE IN OUTPUT OF ALUMINUM HELD 'MIRACLE'

Alcoa's 1943 Profit Up 28 Per Cent.

Aluminum, which in February, 1941, was the first basic material to be placed under government priority ruling, now is the first priority metal to be produced in such quantities that some of it is being released for other than military needs, the Aluminum Company of America said yesterday in its annual report to stockholders. The report showed profit in 1943 increased 28 per cent above the preceding year.

Terming the growth in output a "production miracle," the company asserted that in 1943 the aluminum industry in the United States reached an annual production rate of more than 2.1 billion pounds of metal.

Tops World's Pre-War Total.

"This is seven times the nation's peace time production peak," it said. "It is one and one-half times the annual production of the entire world before the war, even including the period when Germany, building the luftwaffe, for a short time exceeded the production of the United States. In this country, during the same period, only a few thousand military planes were on order to be delivered over several years. Today the capacity to produce aluminum in the United States is certainly far in excess of that of all the axis countries combined."

Aluminum in stock at the year end was 91 per cent more than at the close of 1942. The report said that the "huge surplus" which accumulated last year not only made it possible to curtail operations in some plants dependent on steam generated electric power, but permitted the authorization by the war production board of the release of the metal for manufacture of collapsible tubes in place of tin, for making pressure cookers, and for trucks and buses. More releases of the metal during the year are indicated, the report added.

Output Increases Vastly.

Alcoa's aluminum output during 1943 increased 78 per cent above 1942. Plants owned by the company and the government produced approximately equal amounts of the metal, altho when in full operation the capacity of the government plants will be 50 per cent larger than those of the company, the report said.

Consolidated net profit during 1943, after price reductions of 130 million dollars against the year's billings, was $42,901,570, equal to $7.95 a common share, compared with $33,361,762, or $5.93 a share, in 1942. The 1942 profit reflected adjustments incident to setting aside 76 millions for refunds to the government under a renegotiation agreement. Sales last year were the largest in the company's history.

Income Tax 100 Million.

Provision for taxes on income totaled $100,055,864, or 74 per cent of earnings. After deducting post-war credit, the net charge against earnings was $91,868,244.

Alcoa said the post-war market for aluminum will be influenced by the price, now 15 cents a pound against 20 cents prior to the war, by the quantity available, and by the increased number of engineers and workers knowing how to fabricate the metal. The company, thru its subsidiary, American Magnesium corporation, is the largest manufacturer in this country of magnesium products, altho not itself a producer of the metal, the report said.

Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company plans to expand its foreign business after the war, Walter Geist, president, told stockholders in his annual message.

Promises New Products.

Geist asserted that Allis-Chalmers has many important items in the form of "new and better products for the world of tomorrow, ready for instant development once its war obligations are fulfilled."

The company's order backlog as of Dec. 31 totaled $335,926,644, compared with 1943 sales of $295,996,434. At the end of 1942 the backlog was $170,432,848 and at the close of 1939, $19,730,594. Last year's profit, as previously reported, amounted to $8,006,368, equal to $4.51 a common share, against $5,923,992, or $3.34 a share, in 1942, when sales totaled $196,040,341. The 1943 profit was determined after reserving 2½ million dollars for contingencies, compared with $1,271,094 a year earlier.

C. S. Davis, president of Borg-Warner corporation, in his annual statement to stockholders, said a war economy requires a larger degree of precaution against contingencies than is ordinarily deemed necessary.

Arranges for Loans.

"To provide against the chance that some portion of inventories might be 'frozen' during the interim of negotiation for settlement of canceled war contracts, arrangements have been made with a group of banks for loan agreements totaling 65 million dollars," Davis said.

He asserted, however, that the company has not been obliged to borrow to finance its vastly increased production.

Borg-Warner's profit last year was $7,841,359, equal to $3.36 a share, against $7,215,599, or $3 a share, in 1942. The earnings were after a reserve of $3,687,461 for contingencies, compared with 2.5 millions a year earlier. Provision for federal and dominion income taxes rose to $28,354,266, after deducting post-war refund, from $18,203,508 in 1942.

Santa Fe Gives Work Report to Employes

How the war has sent the business of the Santa Fe railway soaring to new records was reported in a message sent yesterday to the road's 62,500 employes by President E. J. Engel. His statement, published in the Santa Fe magazine for April, uses charts instead of long columns of figures to show how big a job the Santa Fe has done in the war.

"In 1943 we did a lot of work," Engel said. "With our lines reaching from Chicago to the gulf and the Pacific, connecting great industrial and war supply centers, we were a major transportation agency. Compared with 1918, another war

"Compared with 1939, only four years back, the 1943 freight figures were up 2¾ times and the passenger 5½ times."

Freight Tonnage Increased.

In 1939 the Santa Fe moved the equivalent of just under 12 billion tons of freight one mile. In 1943 the total was 32 billion ton miles.

The 1939 passenger traffic was about 1 billion passenger miles. Engel said that in 1943 it reached "a previously undreamt figure of nearly 6 billion passenger miles."

The 1943 tax bill was $144,869,638, equal to $2,465 per employe and $60 per share on the common stock, or 10 times the dividends paid on each share. Asserting the nation may expect to pay high taxes for many years, Engel expressed the hope that "statesmanship will find a way to permit business to survive and continue as the source of full employment."

Locomotive Equipment Bought.

The message disclosed that the road in 1943 bought 57 diesel-electric locomotives costing 11.5 million dollars and 17 steam locomotives costing nearly 3 million dollars.

All except two or three of the charts disclosed new peaks in the various phases of Santa Fe operations. The only ones which registered close to the low points on downward curves were rates and fares. Passenger revenue per mile declined from 3½ cents per mile in 1921 to the current 1¾ cents level. The freight per ton mile rate was shown to have declined from 1½ cents in 1921 to about 1 cent.

WABASH CUTS 19 MILLION OFF DEBTS IN YEAR

The Wabash railroad reported yesterday that it had retired $19,213,382 of its funded debt and equipment obligations in 1943. This reduced amounts outstanding on Dec. 31 to $83,841,577. The company also retired $1,890,000 of guaranteed bonds of a subsidiary.

Norman B. Pitcairn, president, said in his annual report that taxes totaled $24,495,372, consuming 25.64 cents for each dollar of operating revenue.

Net income for 1943 was $8,758,574, against $6,826,791 in 1942.

LEADER OF BANKERS INDORSES PLAN TO EXTEND PRICE LAW

Washington, D. C., March 31 (AP).—The senate banking committee, considering the bill to extend the life of the federal price control act beyond June 30, was told by the president of the American Bankers' association today that "the welfare of the banks is at stake."

Indorsing the continuation of authorities designed to control inflation, the association president, A. L. M. Wiggins, asserted that price control and rationing "are not pleasant; they are totalitarian in nature and go against the grain of the American people," but that they constitute "a necessary evil in time of war."

Asserting that his organization represents 93 per cent of all banks doing a reguar banking business, Wiggins said the threat of inflation is a threat to the value of money deposited in the banks and likewise a threat to the welfare of the people.

Chairman Wagner [D., N. Y.] asked if he had any suggestions for changes in the setup and Wiggins replied, "The principal objection in the price control law is that it built a dam three or four feet high, but only three-fourths of the way across the stream."

CHICAGO TOPPED ONLY BY DETROIT IN PRIME WAR JOB CONTRACTS

Prime war contracts assigned by the government in the Chicago area prior to March 1 totaled $9,092,088,000, the second largest volume for any area in the United States, a compilation by the Chicago Association of Commerce showed yesterday.

The Chicago figure, based on reports issued by WPB, includes contracts awarded in Cook, Du Page, Lake, Will, and Kane counties. Government purchases of food, contracts of less than $50,000, and subcontracts are not included.

The only area exceeding Chicago in prime contracts is Detroit, with a total of $13,369,901,000. Los Angeles ranks third, with $9,077,119,000, and Newark-Jersey City fourth, with $9,067,127,000. Among Chicago orders, the ordnance classification was largest, totaling $2,972,584,000.

Cash Hoarded; Big Bank Note Use Increases

Discovery of two large hoards of cash in Chicago safe deposit boxes has confirmed earlier indications of extensive currency hoarding. Black market operations and tax dodging are creating an unprecedented demand for bill in $50, $100, $500, and $1,000 denominations, especially the $50 and $100 bills, bankers report.

Beginning in 1935, the volume of large denomination currency has increased each year, but at a relatively moderate rate until 1942 when the total rose nearly 800 million to 3 billion 837 million. However, in the 13 months ended Jan. 31 the increase was 1 billion 878 million to bring the total to 5 billion 715 million.

Big Bills Rarely Sought.

Business organizations rarely call on banks for currency in denominations larger than $20. Their larger transactions are paid by check. One banker disclosed that "some fellows in the liquor business" are now asking for high denomination bank notes, presumably for black market deals which might be traced if checks were used.

Aside from their value in hiding questionable deals from inquisitive price control authorities, the big bills provide a convenient medium for storage in the safe deposit vaults of tax dodgers.

Professional Men Are Suspect.

Some professional people, such as doctors, dentists, and lawyers, whose income thru fees cannot be readily checked, are suspected by internal revenue authorities of putting currency in safe deposit boxes, instead of depositing it in bank accounts, in order to conceal their true income. Farmers, now reaping the benefit of high war time prices, are also considered potential offenders.

Bankers attribute a substantial volume of currency hoarding to individuals who regard cash in a vault as a protection against inflation, altho they would have precisely the same security, with some interest return besides, thru investment in government bonds. The net interest return after paying income taxes is not particularly attractive to persons in the high surtax brackets, however, bankers say.

THIRD FORMER FORD OFFICIAL ON NASH STAFF

Detroit, Mich., March 31 (AP).—Appointment of H. C. Doss as vice president of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation was announced today by George W. Mason, president.

Doss, former general sales manager of the Ford Motor company, will have charge of sales for Nash Motors division of Nash-Kelvinator. He had been with the Ford company from 1916 until a few weeks ago.

At Nash-Kelvinator, Doss will be associated with two other former Ford executives, A. M. Wibel, who resigned from the Ford company last April as vice president in charge of sales and was named a vice president of Nash-Kelvinator, and Fred W. Black, long a member of the Ford executive staff.

Buffalo Shipping Season Opens as Two Craft Sail

Buffalo, N. Y., March 31 (AP).—The Great Lakes navigation season in Buffalo opened today, three weeks earlier than last year, when two freighters departed from Buffalo harbor. They were the Bethlehem Transportation freighter Edward Y. Townsend and the Col. James Pickands of the Pickands, Mather fleet.

1943 Truck Production Dips to 675,502 Units

Detroit, Mich., March 31 (AP).—The automotive division of the WPB reported today that truck production, both military and essential civilian, in 1943 totaled 675,502 units exclusive of army half tracks.

Vote to Ease Tax on Income of Dependents

Washington, D. C., March 31 (AP).—A proposal to exempt the income of dependents from taxation unless it exceeds $500 was approved today by the house ways and means committee. The small earnings of children, if congress writes the plan into law, would not be considered in computing the parents' income tax liability.

The computation of the income of dependents as a part of the taxpayer's income is required in most states, but some permit the taxpayer to "emancipate" a child. In this case the child's income is not included in the parents' return and the parents cannot list the child for a dependency exemption.

Part of Simplified Tax Bill.

The principle that no income of a dependent, regardless of age, should be computed as a part of the taxpayer's income if it does not exceed $500 was adopted by the ways and means group as a part of the simplified tax law being written. The plan would lift the age limit as to dependent children, defining a dependent as a person receiving his chief support from the taxpayer in question and related by blood, marriage, or adoption.

The "streamliner" bill seeks to eliminate income tax returns for some 30 million of the 50 million taxpayers. This would be done by adjusting the withholding levy against wages and salaries to cover the full tax liability on incomes below $5,000.

Seek to Cut Guesswork.

Simplified filing forms would be provided for the other taxpayers, and the committee is attempting to eliminate some of the guesswork for those taxpayers who, under the pay-as-you-go law, must estimate and declare their incomes before they get it.

Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] today differed with the taxation sections of the Baruch-Hancock report, saying this is no time to try to write a post-war tax bill.

Bernard M. Baruch and John M. Hancock recommended to President Roosevelt recently that preparations be made now for future action "reducing taxes from war to peace time levels, thereby providing necessary incentive for initiative and enterprise and stimulating employment."

FORCED FOREIGN TRADE OPPOSED BY PHONE CHIEF

Forced foreign trade after the war would chiefly benefit the international bankers who are now financing the clamor for arrangements directed toward this end, Carl H. Mote of Indianapolis, telephone company head and candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, told the Citizens USA committee last night. The meeting was at 205 W. Wacker dr.

"There is great danger in an abnormal or forced volume of foreign trade of completely disrupting the domestic economy of those nations which buy our exports, particularly if their domestic economy is not adapted to a fair and equal exchange of noncompeting commodities," Mote said.

"So long as we have any considerable number of our citizens who are ill fed, ill clothed, and ill housed, we ought to make plans to consume our surplus wealth at home rather than devise schemes to export our surplus wealth so that the international bankers may prosper."

EGG CANDLERS, FOUNDRY MEN GET PAY RAISES

More than 125 egg candlers and 647 foundry workers will get additional wages under orders announced yesterday by Edgar L. Warren, regional war labor board chairman.

The egg candlers, employed by 69 produce firms in the Chicago area, were allowed an increase of 5 cents an hour to $1.15. They are members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters union, AFL.

The foundrymen are employes of the Chicago Hardware Foundry company of North Chicago and the firm was ordered to pay time and a half for work on the sixth consecutive day of a work week.

FARNSWORTH TELEVISION.

Kindly send me a report on Farnsworth Television and Radio corporation, covering earnings, dividends, and so on.—F. S.

Answer: Production currently is devoted exclusively to electronic devices for military use, but in peace time the company manufactures radios and radio-phonograph combinations sold under the trade names Capehart and Farnsworth. Radio receivers are also manufactured for sale under the private trade names of others.

Farnsworth has been active in the development of television and holds a number of television and electronics patents. License agreements are held with other companies in the field.

Losses were reported for the 1940 and 1941 fiscal years, but for the 1942 fiscal period, ended April 30, net income amounted to $642,237. The 1943 fiscal year net income, after a $6,989,913 refund to the government and after a $250,000 post-war reserve, amounted to $920,005, equal to 66 cents a share. For the nine months ended Jan. 31, 1944, net income amounted to $681,834, or 49 cents a share, against $556,437, or 40 cents a share, a year earlier.

17 GROUPS ASK SESSION TO SET 'ROOF' ON TAXES

Call Legislature, Plea to Governor.

Representatives of 17 organizations directly concerned with taxation met with Gov. Green in the Union League club late yesterday and proposed that he call a special session of the legislature to end what they termed state-wide confusion caused by Cook County Assessor Clark's 100 per cent valuation policy.

Meeting as the joint legislative committee, the conferees urged that legislation to fix tax ceilings must be enacted by July 1 if downstate taxpayers are to be defended against the risk of increases estimated at from one-third to four times.

Gov. Green said he would consult with leaders in the legislature and would decide whether a special session is practicable.

Plan to Preserve State Aid.

The committee, of which Robert S. Cushman is chairman and J. V. O'Neil is secretary, told the governor it had bills in preparation. These are designed, committee spokesmen said, to insure legislative control over tax rates and to preserve state aid for poor relief and local school aid from the state equalization fund.

The present law, it was pointed out, permits any assessor to follow Clark's lead in raising assessed values from 37 per cent to 100 per cent, thus making it possible for local governments to increase tax bills.

"An indication of what taxpayers thruout the state may expect, unless the legislature meets in special session to reestablish the effective limits set by statute, is seen in the 1944 Cook county corporate tax levy," said Cushman. "In its last session, the legislature set a limit for this tax of $9,500,000, or an alternate rate that would have produced a substantially lower tax on the basis of 37 per cent valuation. However, by means of the valuation increase, the Cook county board recently provided for a corporate levy of $13,475,000 for 1944, and could have gone up to about $20,000,000."

Survey Agency Proposed.

Besides special legislation fixing tax ceilings, the joint committee also proposed an appropriate agency to undertake a study of the problem and recommend to the regular session next year a system of tax limitations "that will not make the size of tax bills depend upon the changing views of assessing authorities."

Organizations included in the joint legislative committee are:

WPB AUTHORIZES 50,000 BATH TUBS FOR 2D QUARTER

Washington, D. C., March 31 (AP).—The WPB today authorized the production of 50,000 cast iron bath tubs for limited distribution in the second quarter this year.

The 50,000 produced during the first quarter were allocated to war housing projects only. The new production is designed for sale to the army or navy, for export authorized by the foreign economic administration and for some priority domestic construction.

Contracts have been assigned to six manufacturers: American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation, Louisville, Ky., 10,500; Crane company, Chattanooga, Tenn., 10,500; Eljer company, Salem, O., 3,000; Ellwood company, Ellwood City, Pa., 5,000; Kohler company, Kohler, Wis., 10,500, and Richmond Radiator company, Uniontown, Pa., 10,500.

OPPOSES BRITISH PAYING U. S. WITH CAPITAL ASSETS

LONDON, March 31 (AP).—Urging a policy of plain speaking, The Economist said today there can be no question of handing over British capital assets, "whether they are strategic islands or oil reserves or industrial securities," in repaying United States lend-lease aid.

The influential weekly publication argued that the United States has not handed over in lend-lease any of her capital assets, but only the current output of factories and farms, and concluded:

"If any material repaying is made at all [it] can only be made in current output of British factories."

Name Continental Illinois to Handle Funds to Italy

The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company was named the Chicago correspondent of the Bank of Naples yesterday to handle the transfer of funds to designated areas in Italy under allied control. The treasury department has permitted the sending of limited amounts of money to persons in many Italian areas.

Drop in Midwest's Freight Car Requirements Expected

Shippers in territory served by the Mid-West Shippers Advisory board said yesterday they expect to get along with 2.3 per cent fewer freight cars in the second quarter of this year than they loaded in the second quarter of 1943. This is the first time since the start of the war period that the Mid-West board has forecast a decline in car requirements.

Irving M. Peters, board chairman, said the expected decline results largely from a reduction in requirements for petroleum shipments. The Norris City pipe line connection has discontinued the loading of oil in tank cars because petroleum is now going east via pipe line.

Biggest Dip in Oil Needs.

The largest decline forecast for this year is one of 50 per cent for petroleum requirements. The territory expects to load 55,853 cars compared with 111,707 a year ago.

Estimated loadings for the second quarter are expected to total 1,213,006 cars compared with 1,241,250 cars loaded in the second quarter of last year. In making its forecast for the second quarter of 1943 the board expected that it would need 1,205,630 freight cars, an increase of 8.4 per cent over the second quarter of 1942.

Reflecting completion of most of the major government war projects, requirements for cars used to move stone, gravel, and sand are expected to decline 25 per cent and cement 30 per cent. Most of the big war plants and camps have now been completed and are in use. Car needs for machinery and boilers are expected to show a decline of 15 per cent.

Farm Tool Shipments to Rise.

With the government increasing quotas for manufacture of farm implements, manufacturers and other shippers of such machinery expect a 28 per cent increase in their requirements.

Various food products are expected to require more cars. Coal needs indicate a 10 per cent increase, raising last year's shipments from 299,398 cars to an estimated 329,338 this year.

People and Events

John W. Corrington has been admitted as a Chicago partner of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, the brokerage firm announced yesterday. Robert W. MacArthur was made a partner in the Boston office, D. W. Chamberlin in Cleveland, and William Wagner in Milwaukee. Corrington has been with the firm since 1932, and from 1929 to 1932 lectured in finance at Northwestern university.

Joseph M. Boyer will assume direction of the Canadian government's Chicago trade and commerce office at 435 N. Michigan av. on Monday, H. A. Spencer, acting Canadian trade commissioner, announced. Boyer, a staff officer in the Canadian army stationed in Newfoundland for the last two years, was Canada's trade representative at Glasgow, Scotland, from 1935 to 1939.

Greyhound corporation announced the appointment of A. N. Brion as general safety director.

CORN SHORTAGE LAID TO PRIVATE COUNTRY SALES

Black market operations and large sales of corn by country elevators to truckers who were said to be paying little attention to office of price administration ceiling prices have curtailed the movement of corn to terminal markets to the vanishing point, warehouse men said yesterday. For lack of supplies the Clinton company corn refining plant at Clinton, Ia., shut down yesterday for an indefinite period. This was the third plant suspended recently.

Shortage of feed grains brought a much larger demand for cash wheat which was reflected in the futures markets in the early trading on the Chicago Board of Trade. May wheat, oats, and barley closed at the ceiling price, as did May and July wheat in Minneapolis and May wheat in Kansas City.

July wheat on the Board of Trade advanced ½ cent a bushel early to $1.71¼, or within ¼ cent of the seasonal high before profit taking and a break in rye brought about a reaction. Closing sales were ⅛ cent higher to ¼ cent lower. The active deliveries of oats lost ⅛ to ¼ cent. Rye finished ½ to ⅞ cent lower after breaking 1¾ cents from the early high.

STOCKS EXTEND UPTURN; RAILS, OILS LEAD GAIN

Profit Taking Holds Back Favorites.

New York, March 31 (AP).—Assorted rails, oils, liquors, gold mines, and specialties made progress in today's stock market, but profit taking on yesterday's rally held back many leaders.

Buyers switched from one group to another, with earnings prospects the principal inspiration. Marked hesitancy was in evidence, however, because whether the recent tumble had sufficiently corrected the extended advance was questionable.

Selected shares were strong at the start and closing gains of fractions to two or more points were plentiful, altho highs were cut in most cases.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was unchanged at 52.1. Dealings were slow at intervals, but occasional spurts raised volume to 797,400 shares, compared with 681,790 yesterday.

Causes of Strong Spots.

Hopes for boosts in crude oil prices and freight rates aided petroleums and rails. Liquors were benefited by good earnings reports. General Motors and Chrysler were off ⅛ each in the wake of the former's 1943 report which disclosed the lowest net income per share in six years.

Touching peaks for 1944 were Sinclair Oil, Hiram Walker, Ward Baking A, American Sugar, Crane company, Ex-cell-o corporation, and Eastman Kodak. Finishing in front were Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Skelly Oil, Texas company, Plymouth Oil, Homestake, Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, Goodyear, Bethlehem and United States Steel.

International Nickel and Eastern Air Lines dipped to new lows for the year. Other losers were New York Central, Kennecott, du Pont, and Consolidated Edison.

On the Curb modest advances were recorded for Aluminum of America, Lake Shore, Cuban Atlantic Sugar, Pantepec, and Venezuelan Petroleum.

BOND MARKET ADVANCES.

New York, March 31 (AP).—Higher prices ruled in most sections of the bond market today but recovery was slow. Only a few issues were truly active and of these most closed within small fractions either way of previous prices.

St. Paul adjustment 5s added ¼ at 16⅝. The 5s of 1975 moved up ⅜ to 57¼. Three other bonds of the road were down.

Commercial Mackay income 4s fell more than 3 points to 118 and then recovered to close at 121 for a net loss of ½. The two bonds of International Telephone, which indirectly controls Commercial Mackay, were behind at one time, but closed with small advances.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS.

Shares extended their advance yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange as volume increased. Among more active issues Standard Dredging, Sinclair Oil, and Commonwealth Edison gained.

HOG PRICES FALL ON REPORTS U. S. WILL CUT BUYING

Drop Biggest in 7 Months; Cattle Are Steady.

A report that the government plans a temporary halt in purchases of canned pork and bellies for lend-lease caused an abrupt slump in hog prices yesterday in the Chicago stock yards.

Hog producers for several weeks have been trying to force the hog market up to the $14.75 a hundred pounds ceiling, and at times managed to get the price within 35 cents of the top. However, yesterday was the first instance in which they ran against lend-lease power as a market factor.

The price slump was the biggest in seven months as all interests bid cautiously when news of the lend-lease action was received. Spokesmen for the food distribution administration refused to verify the report that purchases will be halted, but neither did they say the report was untrue.

Drop 25 to 35 Cents.

Declines of 25 to 35 cents were general in all good hogs weighing from 200 to 300 pounds, with losses of 40 cents in some of the heavier butchers and sows. A decline of 50 cents was widespread for hogs below 200 pounds. Many prime 300 to 330 pound hogs dropped to the $13.75 floor maintained by the war food administration and 340 to 400 pounders slumped to $13.65.

Until April 15 the government will support a $13.75 price for all good to choice hogs weighing from 200 to 330 pounds. After that date only 200 to 270 pounders will get this support. Most of the good 200 to 275 pound hogs sold at $13.80 to $13.90, with $13.90 the top at the close. A few early sales reached $14. The average fell 30 cents to $13.75, the lowest since March 6 and $2.20 below a year earlier.

Repetition of Year Ago Action.

It was recalled that federal pork buying, decreased about this time last year, but increased during May. March pork purchases for lend-lease in 1943 aggregated 143,857,000 pounds, lard excluded. The tonnage fell to 116,420,000 in April, but rose to 202,592,000 in May and continued heavy thruout June and July.

Cattle prices were steady. Two carloads of steers brought $17, equal to the highest price since last July.

UNION, COMPANY AGREE; OTTAWA WALKOUT ENDS

Ottawa, Ill., March 31 (AP).—A three day strike involving 1,400 workers ended today when officials of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company's Ottawa plant reached an agreement with local 19, Federation of Glass, Ceramic, and Silica Sand Workers [CIO], ending a dispute over the layoff of four employes.

Ship Builders' Strike Ends.

Lorain, O., March 31 (AP).—AFL unionists in a mass meeting today agreed to end a strike at the American Shipbuilding company's Lorain yards after union leaders said the company agreed to reinstate two electricians whose discharge led to nearly 4,000 leaving their jobs. A demand by electricians for an 11-cent premium for testing ship's wiring has been referred to the war labor board.

Rain Brings Dock Strike.

Boston, Mass., March 31 (AP).—A dispute over whether longshoremen should work in the rain led today to what army officers called a "strike" and union officials termed a "lockout" at the Boston port of embarkation.

CONSUMER DEBT VOLUME DROPS IN MONTH, YEAR

Washington, D. C., March 31 (AP).—Consumer credit outstanding at the end of February was reported by the federal reserve board today to total 4 billion 674 million dollars, a decrease of 152 millions for the month and 831 millions from the corresponding date in 1943. Half of the February decline was attributed to seasonal decrease in charge account indebtedness, placed at the month's end at 1 billion 218 million dollars compared with 1 billion 333 millions a year earlier.

LUXURY TAXES SOAR; BUYERS IN STAMPEDE

A last minute rush to stock up on cosmetics, jewelry, furs, luggage, and liquor before the new luxury taxes went into effect swamped dealers in these articles yesterday.

At midnight the federal excise taxes on toilet preparations, jewelry, and furs were doubled to 20 per cent of the retail price. The tax on liquor went up to $9 a gallon from $6, the tax on beer to $8 a barrel from $7, while wine taxes increased from 33⅓ to 100 per cent.

Tax on cabaret charges shot up to 30 per cent from 5 per cent, on club dues and initiation fees to 20 per cent from 11 per cent, and on theater and other admissions to 1 cent for each 5 cents of charge, compared with the old rate of 1 cent on every 10. The levy on long distance telephone calls advanced to 25 per cent from 20, and on local telephone service to 15 per cent from the old 10 per cent rate.

Treasury officials expected these and other new excise tax boosts to produce 5 billion 439 million dollars in revenue in a year, against an estimated yield of $4,273,810,000 a year under the old rates.

Fine Chiropractor $200 for Unlicensed Practice

Lawrence E. Pearson, 48, of 4021 N. Harding av., was fined $200 yesterday by Judge Russell W. Keeney of Du Page county, sitting in County court here. Pearson was convicted of practicing as a chiropractor without a license.
